Sharks circle after Solus

The BBC's decision to drop the Solus viewing card scheme last year has to go down as one of the most clumsy moves in the sorry history of British digital TV planning.

It coincided with Sky swapping all of its viewing cards for a more secure version, so hundreds of thousands of Solus viewers were turned off when Sky completed the switch for its subscribers. The changeover was widely publicised, and the BBC must have been aware of the impact it would have.

The number of home receiving free-to-air digital TV plummeted by more than three-quarters (from 827,000 to 211,000) in just three months. Predictably, both the ITC and the government were caught napping, and did nothing to help out as Sky was handed a monopoly on a plate.

Most people were forced into taking out a low-cost Sky subscription to keep satellite reception of ITV, Channel 4 and Five, so there weren't many homes left when these three channels belatedly fixed up a new Solus deal with Sky.

This offer lasted for just three months, and it's hardly surprising that only 111,000 people bought the new Solus cards. Once again, there's no way to get free-to-air reception of the mainstream TV channels on satellite.

But where there's a market, there's always someone willing to make a profit, and we found a website selling the new Solus cards for £99 – four times the original price. As the site states, this is still a lot cheaper than the minimum £13.50 subscription to Sky.

Looking on Ebay might get you a slightly better deal. You'll almost certainly get a P2 card for less than £99, and you'll probably get a Digibox and card for less than £199.

I can't help feeling that we shouldn't be relying on touts and secondhand goods to solve this problem. Ofcom is aware that it needs solving, and this should be at the top of the regulator's agenda.

Set a date for digital

Second on Ofcom's agenda should be a firm timetable for the switch from analogue to digital TV.

The mainstream channels have told the government and Ofcom that they would like to begin turning off analogue signals in 2007, starting with areas like London, Manchester and Birmingham, where the whole population can pick up digital TV.

Setting a date will focus the attention of city-dwellers who haven't picked their digital TV platform yet, and allow the authorities to concentrate on the more complex needs of viewers in rural areas where terrestrial digital reception is poor and cable non-existent ■

BBC deals blow to free satellite TV

75 PER CENT OF FREE-TO-VIEW HOMES LOST

Almost 75 per cent of Britain's free-to-view satellite homes were lost when the BBC dropped the Solus card scheme without warning.

More than 616,000 homes have either switched to Freeview or signed up to Sky to continue getting digital feeds of ITV1, Channel 4 and Five.

Latest figures from Ofcom show that more than 827,000 homes were using the old viewing cards when they were switched off in September.

These homes were using either Solus cards supplied by the BBC, or were former Sky subscribers with an old 'P1' viewing card.

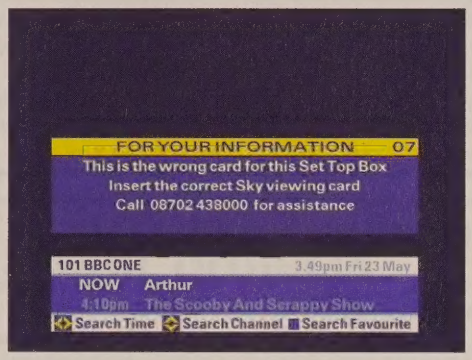
Sky had decided a year earlier to start exchanging P1 cards for more secure P2 cards, but Solus was stopped before these cards could be replaced.

ITV, Channel 4 and Five ran a scheme to supply P2 Solus cards from October to January, but only 111,000 were sold.

Another 100,000 homes are believed to have stopped getting Sky since they were issued with a P2 card, and can still receive all five main channels.

The decline coincides with a 41 per cent increase in Freeview homes, to three million, from the end of September to the end of December, 2004.

Second and third Freeview boxes are also taking off; at least 390,000 homes are believed to have one.



Added to Sky's continued success, the figures leave more than half of British homes with digital TV – a total of 12.4 million.

Ofcom estimates that two million Freeview homes use a new adapter, 525,000 use integrated digital TV sets.

New pay-TV service Top-Up TV will be buoyed up by news that some 510,000 still use an old ITV Digital box – which are compatible with its technology.

ADSL services dedicated to providing TV have continued to suffer, with the operators in Hull and London losing 11.5 per cent of their subscribers to reach a new low of 8,887.

Channels call time for analogue TV

The BBC, Channel 4 and ITV are pressing the government to start analogue switch-off in 2007.

The 'staggered switch-off' would turn off analogue channels region by region, with fully covered areas like London being the first to go digital-only.

The plan would first turn off BBC2's analogue signal, then BBC1, ITV and Channel 4 when all homes in the area have digital reception.

The plan would take about five years to complete, and the channels hope a gradual move will persuade so-called 'digital refuseniks' to upgrade to digital.

ITV would save millions of pounds in analogue licence fees, and costly maintenance to some of the analogue transmitters could be avoided.

Germany has already begun a staggered analogue switch-off, but current British plans only call for switch-off between 2006 and 2010.

The government said it is unlikely to set a timetable before the summer, although it has commissioned a logo for the digital switchover campaign.

Echostar's fantastic four

A simple user interface has been developed for Echostar's latest range of budget satellite receivers.

Users can choose from compact the DSB-770 FTA and DSB-880 2Ci, or go for a larger receiver with front panel display on the DSB-1220 FTA and DSB-2220 2Ci.

All four models have DiSEqC 1.2 motor control with Goto X, and memory for 4,400 channels on 1,500 transponders across 80 satellites.

There are multiple favourite channel lists, event timers, and connections including twin Scarts, S-video and Dolby Digital audio output.

All models can receive upgrades via satellite or via a PC and the internet to keep satellite lists and software up to date.

IN BRIEF

- Six people were killed and several injured when fire tore through India's main space centre in February. The fire followed a blast in the Sriharikota Space Centre's solid propellant space centre,but the Indian government said it would not not affect the country's space programme
- Keene Electronics has released the 2004 edition of its A/V Equipment and Accessory Catalogue. The catalogue includes cables, switchboxes, connectors and standards converters, and can be ordered from www.keene.co.uk, or on 0870 990 9000
- The Horror Channel has again delayed its launch. Fans of spine-chilling films and TV can now expect to see their own channel on Sky from May 3
- Sky's finance director, Martin Stewart, has quit just three months after losing to James Murdoch in the race to be the company's chief executive. Mr Stewart joined Sky in 1996 and is credited with the enormous success of Sky's risky transition to digital, along with former chief executive Tony Ball
- Sky will pay the Rugby Football League £53million for a five-year coverage deal, a £7million increase on its last contract. The deal includes live rights to all British international games except the Tri-Nations series and 2008 World Cup tournament
- Tivo users in America will be giving a clue to how PVRs are changing our viewing habits, thanks to a deal between Tivo and the Nielsen TV ratings group. Tivo will now collect anonymous aggregate information on users' viewing habits for the media research company

Force blows the PVR bubble

Satellite viewers can record up to 150 hours of TV on 200GB hard disc in Force's latest range of receivers.

The Force 5 series can handle discs of up to 200GB, with capacity for a typical time-shift buffer of two hours in addition to permanent recordings.

Viewers can pause, slow down to 1/4 speed, or fast-forward and rewind at up to 15 times.

The Force 5 also comes with a choice of embedded Conax or Viaccess CAMs, or both, and two common interface slots.

It's got a optical and coaxial digital audio outputs with Dolby Digital support, three Scart sockets and supports DiSEqC 1.2 motor control.

Force has also released the Force 3 series compact receivers, which feature DiSEqC 1.2 motor control and a choice of embedded Viaccess, Conax or both, or a free-to-air version with neither.

The Force 3s also have two Scart sockets and a coaxial digital audio output with Dolby Digital support.

All Force receivers can be upgraded by satellite or through the internet, and come with a universal remote control.

JVC launches first IDTVs

Two high-end, Freeview-ready widescreen TVs will mark JVC's first foray into the integrated digital TV market in April.

The 28in HV-28DH40 and 32in HV-32D40 sport black frames and make use of the latest version of JVC's HD1125 line Digital Image Scaling Technology (DIST) to deliver a more detailed picture which is also compatible with high-def TV.

Connections on both include three Scarts (two RGB), a PAL progressive-capable component video input, 20W RMS output and picture in picture modes.

The HV-28DH40 is expected to cost around £900 and the HV-32D40 £1,200.

Sky Plus hits the mainstream

More than a quarter of a million homes are now using Sky Plus after a bumper response in the run-up to last Christmas.

Some 129,000 new Sky Plus users signed up in the last three months of 2003, and Sky expects to have 315,000 by June – almost 5 per cent of customers.

Extra Digiboxes are also proving popular, with subscriptions increasing by more than 100 per cent to 237,000.

A further 193,000 subscribers joined Sky in the three months, bringing its total to 7.2million – on target for eight million by the end of next year.

Around 55 per cent of Sky subscribers take the Sky World package, and each year just 9.4 per cent are terminating their Sky subscription.

Sky's profits over the last six months of 2003 were up to £118million, compared to £12million at the end of 2002.

The Babelbox arrives

Fans of foreign TV will soon be able to get a live translation of almost any satellite TV channel.

The Babelbox has a built-in database which can translate all the major European languages as they're spoken.

The basic model will automatically recognise different languages and relay the translation as text on the screen, just like conventional subtitles.

An advanced model will use a speech synthesis module, with both male and female voices, which copies the speaker's tone of voice to mimic emotions.

Users will have the option of keeping a realistic accent, in case they forget they're watching a foreign channel.

Developer Dr Poal Firlo, at the Shibbur Institute, plans to make downloadable language units available on the internet. Dr Firlo has signed up a major Korean manufacturer for the Babelbox, and plans to show a prototype at the Ekoj technology fair in Hungary on April 1.

Smoking city is world's top space image

This picture of Baghdad wreathed in smoke has been named the most important picture taken by the Ikonos imaging satellite in 2003.

The picture show the brown Tigris river winding through Baghdad, with streaks of black smoke from oil trench fires lit to slow the advance of American forces.

The five-year-old Ikonos satellite is the only commercially operated spacecraft which can take pictures down to a 1m resolution.

Other popular pictures included a 17th century fortress at Bourtange, in The Netherlands, the El Capita rock in Yosemite National Park, California, The Hong Kong convention centre, Lake Arrowhead during the 2003 California wildfires, Mount St Helens in Washington state, the Vatican City, the Taj Mahal, Akkeshi Lake in Japan, and the Victoria Falls in Zimbabwe.

The Ikonos satellite is now expected to last at least two years beyond its original seven-year lifespan by the operator, Space Imaging.

Special missions in 2003 included helping firefighters to tackle forest blazes in California, searching for debris from the space shuttle Columbia, and searching for opium poppies in Afghanistan for the UN.

Geo comes to Hot Bird

Karachi-based free-to-air Urdu language channel Geo TV has arrived on Hot Bird.

Produced in Pakistan, Geo TV is now available at 13°E on 10.723GHz/H, SR 29900, FEC 3/4.

The channel promises incisive news and foreign affairs coverage and discussion, for both children and sports fans.

There are long-running dramas, romance, comedy, music, reality TV, health, mysticism, and careers. Highlights include Police, Pakistan's first reality show, and the dynastic soap opera Faaslay.

Geo claims its mission is to 'inform and entertain while celebrating cultures and prompting dialogue in the spirit of live and let live'.

More details are available online at www.geo.tv

Panasonic projects

Panasonic has just launched the successor to its popular PT-AE300 LCD home cinema projector.

The PT-AE500 uses a new optical system to generate 850 ANSI lumens of brightness and a contrast ratio of 1300:1.

It has a resolution of 1280 x 720 pixels and makes use of the Cinema Works picture processing technology to deliver deeper blacks and remove signal noise.

The PT-AE500 also has a short throw lens for use in small rooms and a low-noise cooling fan.

Connections include a hi-def-compatible DVI-D terminal and a single RGB Scart.

The projector also comes bundled with a free 70in pull-down 16:9 screen and costs around £1,850.

Fusion records from the guide

Freeview users can programme recordings from the onscreen guide for the first time with Fusion's digital video recorder.

The FVRT100 has a 40GB hard disc drive that can record up to 60 hours of TV, and uses 4TV's seven-day programme information for its onscreen Multi Guide.

Users can programme recordings directly from the guide instead of using a manual timer, and there are twin tuners so that you can watch one channel while recording another.

Multi Guide includes programme synopses, extra information for new series, reminders and a favourite channel EPG, and a customisable background.

Fusion is also planning a version with built-in DVD recorder – the FDVRT100 – so users can archive material to disc at digital TV quality.

IN BRIEF

- A US firm has developed a plastic that conducts electricity. Integral Technologies' 'Electriplast' is a resin doped with conductive materials that can be moulded like plastic but conducts like a metal. Electriplast is expected to yield new types of satellite antenna and connectors
- American viewers will be able to catch BBC co-production The Grid in high-def when it airs on the new TNT-HD channel. The high-def channel will show dramas like Law & Order and live NBA basketball from May 2004
- Israel's Amos 2 satellite has gone live at 4°W. UK enthusiasts can look for feeds on its Central European beam at: 10.741GHz/H, 10.793GHz/H, 10.909GHz/H, 11.492GHz/H, 11.576GHz/H, and 11.660GHz/H, but you'll need at least a 1.5m dish in the South-East
- Digital receiver manufacturer Pace is back in the black after a 'torrid' 18 months in debt. The company has been rescued by contracts with Sky Italia, Viasat in Scandinavia, Foxtel in Australia, and its ongoing Sky Digibox and Sky Plus deals in the UK. A new deal with Germany's Premiere will help this year's £800,000 profit
- Irish expats will be able to watch Sky's new Irish evening news bulletin in the UK via Sky News Active. The bulletin will be shown live on Sky News Active simultaneously with its 9pm showing on the Irish version of Sky News
- Women singers have again been banned on Afghani TV channels. Kabul TV broke a 10-year ban on female singers in January, but within a week the ban had been re-affirmed by the authorities, after complaints from the ultra-conservative Afghan Supreme Court

■ US federal attorneys have closed an investigation into conditional access company NDS, centred on allegations that it had published computer code to enable third parties to compromise competing satellite pay-TV systems. Allegations from Canal Plus Technologies and DirecTV have been dropped, but complaints from Echostar, Sogecable and Canal Satellite Digital remain outstanding

■ One of the 27 teams entered in the X-Prize manned spaceflight competition expects to pick up the £5.4million prize by the end of this year. The winners must launch the same three-man craft to 62.5 miles, twice within two weeks. Organisers hope to establish an annual X-Prize Cup for private rocketeers by 2006

■ The price margin between IDTVs and conventional analogue sets has narrowed substantially, according to www.idtv.co.uk. The website found 45 different IDTV models in the UK, with an average price difference of £143, and prices ranging from £299 to £4,200

■ Hollywood Cinema is a new channel for movie lovers on Astra 1 at 19.2°E. Available on 12.149GHz/H (SR 27500, FEC 3/4), it shows trailers, interviews, and 'making of' shows in English and German. Unusually, the channel links to its satellite uplink via a broadband internet connection

■ The BBC and ITV are set to duel for a package of live Premiership football matches. The winner will be able to show one live Saturday teatime match a month for three years, starting in autumn 2004

Sagem goes large

Sagem is throwing down the gauntlet to the large-screen plasma and LCD market with the launch of a 50in widescreen rear projection TV for under £3,000.

The Sagem Axium uses Digital Light Processing technology to deliver a high definition-ready picture with a resolution of 1280 x 720 pixels.

It has a contrast ratio of 2000:1 and a viewing angle of 140 degrees.

The TV has twin analogue TV tuners and includes teletext as well as picture and picture-in-picture modes.

An extensive range of connections includes three Scarts (two RGB), two sets of component video inputs, a DVI-D digital input, composite and S-video inputs, a VGA input for PC users and analogue phonos.

The TV also has two built-in 15W speakers and Nicam support and is out now, priced £2,795.

Eutelsat drops a big one

The biggest-ever satellite launched by Eutelsat was due to take off in March to take on the 7°E slot.

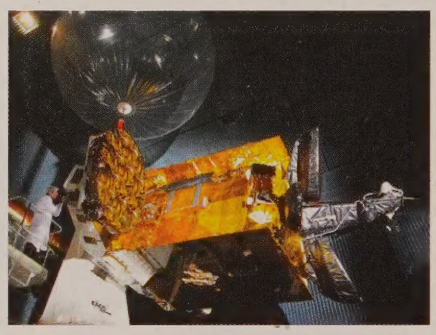
Eutelsat W3A weighs 4.2 metric tonnes and 58 transponders, including eight back-up transponders, with footprints across Europe, the Middle East and North Africa.

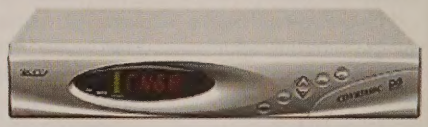
The new satellite will replace W3 with its first 35 transponders, with an optional high power beam for south-east Europe,Turkey, Ethiopia and Somalia.

Up to 12 new Ku-band transponders will be used to supply broadband across the footprint, using the Skyplex onboard multiplexing system. There are also eight transponders for two-way communications between Europe and Africa, using Ku-band over Africa and Ka-band over Europe.

The Eurostar E3000 satellite has been built by Astrium,a nd is expected to last more than 15 years if the launch from Baikonur, aboard a Proton rocket, is successful.

W3 will be moved from 7°E to open up a new orbital location for Eutelsat.





Only the blind can see

Coship's 3188C has already earned itself a reputation as the enthusiasts' favourite, now it's available in the UK.

The Coship 3188C features a 'blind search' which scans the full range of symbol rates as well as frequency, polarity and FEC.

This unique function makes it able to find programme feeds and channels when you don't know any of the details.

It works in both Ku-band and C-band, with memory for 1,200 channels and a symbol rate range of 2000-45000.

Outputs include Scart and S-video, and it can change channels in under a second.

E4 comedy show Little Friends found itself under fire from regulators for encouraging children to use offensive language.

Media regulator Ofcom received 27 complaints from viewers about child actors in the show using strong language, showing inappropriate sexual knowledge, or in sketches with adults where there was a possible sexual connotation.

E4 said the children were all professional actors aged 13 to 16 using scripts approved in advance by their parents, who accompanied them during filming, and there was a clear announcement at the start of each show. But Ofcom decided the use of young people in some scenes was offensive, and that the oldest actor looked much younger than his age, nor did the context justify entrapping adults into using offensive language.

■ Friendly TV got in trouble with Ofcom when a power cut put a picture from topless chat show Babecast on air in daytime. The channel suffered the cut during Babecast at 4.30am, and when the snag was fixed at 9.12am, the picture flashed up on screen.

Fired up for satellite TV

PC users can now tune in to satellite TV using their Firewire ports with the Fire TV adapter.

The Fire TV box includes a digital satellite tuner, which passes the data stream direct to the PC via a high capacity Firewire IEEE1394 link (up to 400Mb/s).

The software performs all demultiplexing, decoding and rendering, with still image capture, hard disc recording, DVB EPG support and a built-in teletext viewer.

The FireTV viewer can be run in a window or full screen, and is also capable of running high-speed data applications for internet-by-satellite.

The adapter takes power from the Firewire connection, but there's an alternative power input for use with laptops to save their battery power.

There's also a second Firewire port for daisy-chaining other devices, and the Fire TV retails at £219.

Soyuz goes to South America

Russian Soyuz rockets will be able to launch bigger payloads when they start using Kourou spaceport in 2006.

The equatorial launch site operated by Arianespace will allow Russia's 40-year-old launcher to take larger payloads into higher orbits than from Baikonur.

The European Space Agency has also signed a deal to finish development on a high-capacity version of the Ariane 5 launcher, which was grounded by a launch failure last year.

Arianespace will build special facilities for the Russian rockets at the site in French Guiana, in exchange for the extra customers Russia's highly reliable launcher will bring.

The deal will also give Europe access to a reliable manned spacecraft to access the ISS.

Newspapers by satellite

Homesick travellers can now pick up the latest newspaper from anywhere in the world using a satellite-updated kiosk.

The kiosks operated by Satellite Newspapers can deliver special editions of more than 140 newspapers from 54 countries at any time of day.

The compact units deliver a special tabloid-sized, black-and-white edition of the newspaper in two minutes.

Kiosks all over the world are updated as soon as the latest edition of the home newspaper is complete, so there's no delay in catching up with the news.

Ratings round-up

24 seems to be a lucky number in ratingsville at the moment.

Nearly one million viewers tuned caught the first episode of the third series (or 'day three' as it's otherwise known) of the real-time Kiefer Sutherland thriller 24 in February, putting it up there with the likes of The Simpsons in the upper echelons of Sky One success stories. With the heavily promoted plastic surgery drama Nip/Tuck getting almost as strong opening figures and even pop science show Brainiac reporting a healthy 75,000 audience tally in the first week of December, it would appear to be a further vindication of Sky One's recent commitment to scheduling more intelligent mainstream fare.

Elsewhere, in the competitive world of rolling news a relaunched BBC News 24 got off to a good start in 2004, picking up more viewers than Sky News in two weeks out of four in January. It was also ahead of Sky News at the end of December. News 24 still lags behind Sky News in terms of percentage share of overall viewing, however.

I'm a ratings flop, get me out of here. At the time of writing Back To Reality, the Five series in which reality show 'veterans' get to do it all over again, wasn't exactly firing up the ratings, with viewership averaging below the million mark after three episodes. A reality show too far it seems – but then aren't they all these days?

Remember Tivo, the shiny silver PVR with the smiley TV logo that learned what you liked to watch and kept recording the news when you didn't want it to? It may be almost dead in this country but, thanks in part to gratuitous plugs on the likes of Scrubs and the David Letterman Show, many Americans have taken Tivo to their hearts.

Research by Tivo into the behaviour of 20,000 users in the US during the Superbowl found that Justin Timberlake's 'accidental' partial disrobing of Janet Jackson during the half-time Superbowl extravaganza was the most rewound moment of the entire event. The commercial break (where film trailers and ads are often shown for the first time) also generated copious calls for a rewind, one the most popular attention-grabbers being a Budweiser commercial featuring a flatulent horse.

SPOOK-TASTIC

Living TV is continuing to mine the enduring popularity of the paranormal with the announcement of a new reality show set in a haunted castle. A host of celebs are due to spend a weekend locked away in a spooky Northumberland setting, completing a series of scary challenges for charity. All for a good cause then, but what's really frightening about I'm Famous And Frightened is the participants. They include Keith Chegwin, Julie 'Bet Lynch' Goodyear, glamour model Linsey Dawn McKenzie, Cheryl Baker and bolshie showbiz journo Gary Bushell.

Footprint thought Back to Reality's line-up was grisly, but surely this film crew will be tempted to throw away the key.

GENTLE JOSHING

Have you spotted it yet? What Satellite & Digital TV was tickled this month to receive a call from an expectant reader wondering when the coin-operated Sky Gamepad (featured in the news section of our April 2003 issue) was going to come out. The poor chap felt rather sheepish when he was kindly informed that the item he had been an April Fool.

To save further embarrassment to our readers, Wotsat has decided not to include any such japery in this month's issue (or have we?). Yes, those Sky subscription prices on page 66 really are genuine.

May's What Satellite & Digital TV – it's drop-dead gorgeous

■ Faith in the future: Rogue slayer Faith was one of the most popular recurring characters in Buffy and Angel. Actress Eliza Dushku returns to Sky One in Tru Calling as a mortuary assistant who discovers that dead men do tell tales

■ Red hot Europe: Dave Taylor takes us on a tour of the sauciest TV channels in the world. Europe's adult channels teach backward Britain a lesson in how to be hardcore

■ Strong return: Meet the flagship of the new range from satellite TV's biggest lineages, the Strong SRT6355

■ Tube tales: It broke all the rules on how to make live TV, set the pattern for 20 years of music TV, and gave us Jools Holland. Rediscover why UK Documentaries is showing the best of The Tube from May

■ Plug and play: Pinnacle is upping the ante for those of us who want to access our PC's music, video and photo selections from the TV. Roll up and see what's on offer in the Showcenter

■ Also on test: Ultimate CAM – Irdeto, Conax and four adult channels in an official module; Arion AF-1700E – free-to-air satellite receiver; Panasonic DT40 – integrated digital TV; Windows Media Center PC – Microsoft's new fun PC system; Panasonic DTT30 – Freeview adapter; Technomate inclined orbit motor – this time it's for real

The nitty-gritty

BARRY FOX PRIES INTO THE DIGITAL TV INDUSTRY EVERY MONTH IN WHAT SATELLITE & DIGITAL TV

In the US two attempts at selling broadband by satellite – Direct PC and Starband – have bitten the dust. Having watched while skilled fitters installed my Astra-AVC system, I'm not surprised.

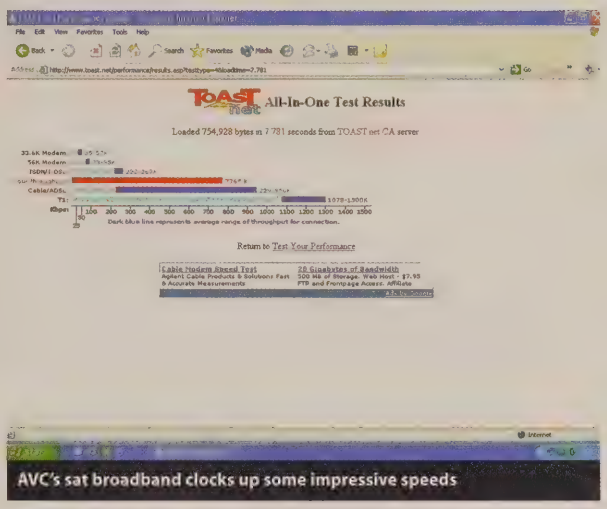
Don't get me wrong. After years of false dawns and coming-soon promises, the Astra-AVC system works a treat. The data speeds are high (except in heavy rain), the PC software is well engineered and stable, and the Hauppauge PC satellite receiver seems to fall over a lot less often than my flaky 'Hop-Hog' PC DTTV receiver. But Astra and AVC aren't kidding when they say they really do need to send out two installation engineers, one a satellite dish rigger and the other a computer software wizard. Unless you have a digital dish alignment meter and are skilled at setting up computer proxy servers, firewalls and networks this is not a DIY job.

It is only a couple of years since I paid an independent contractor several hundred pounds to roof-mount an aerial system, including a Sky dish with quad LNB. So I had a spare feed all ready to plug into the Hauppauge free-to-air satellite receiver that Astra-AVC provides. It connects to the dish by co-ax and to the PC by USB, to let the PC display free TV (like the BBC programmes) and pipe in broadband data under control of the PC's existing modem.

My spare feed from the LNB was quite good enough for TV but not up to scratch for data. The previous installers had used cheap cable, and failed to make the LNB connections watertight. So the cables needed replacing with low-loss co-ax. The LNB needed replacing too because the connectors had corroded.

For satellite broadband the dish must be very accurately aligned to get a strong signal and full data rate. A dish once installed for me by Sky was so loosely bolted that I had to re-align and re-bolt it after a few windy nights. My bet is that very few existing Sky dishes will be able to handle broadband data at over 512kb/s. (The best way to check data rate is to go to the zdnet.co.uk website and search out the free 'bandwidth speed test').

Temporarily disconnecting and then reconnecting the LNB feeds threw the Sky Plus box into confusion. It failed to recognise the second tuner port – apparently a known fault. Re-booting from cold (pull out the mains plug to the Sky Plus box, then re-plug while holding the back-up button on the remote for at least 12 seconds) should do the trick. But not always. The trick then is to manually force the box to record while watching a different channel.



AVC's sat broadband clocks up some impressive speeds

Unlike my DEC 2000 digital terrestrial box, the satellite receiver does not need to be switched on with a manual remote control before the PC can control it. What were Hop-Hog thinking of when they designed the DEC?

Astra has neatly combined the two sets of software needed to enable the satellite receiver and put it under control of the PC's modem. It works even on older versions of Windows. The data rate is high enough to support several PCs at the same time, but setting up a network to share the connection is much easier with XP – although still tricky.

Any broadband connection is 'always on' which makes the PC a sitting target for hackers who are continually scanning the internet for unprotected PCs. They can then plant 'worm' or virus software which later takes over the PC to send off confidential information or attack other computers, without the owner knowing it.

So with any broadband connection it is absolutely essential to have both firewall and anti-virus software installed on the PC, and set to update automatically every day so that new viruses and worms are trapped. This is easier said than done.

New PCs usually now come with anti-virus software pre-installed. But when I recently bought a new Dell PC, it came with Norton anti-virus software, neatly installed but with the vital auto-update feature switched off! In any case, the free software on new PCs will only auto-update for a few months on trial subscription. After that the owner has to pay a subscription to continue.

Heaven knows how many innocents are now using new PCs on broadband, blissfully believing that that they are protected against viruses when, in fact, they are wide open to all the latest strains.

Firewall software stops hack attacks by preventing the PC from accessing unknown sites on the internet without the user's knowledge. Norton Internet Security neatly combines anti-virus and firewall protection. But a satellite broadband system works by accessing a remote 'proxy' site to control the transmission of data to send by satellite link. If the firewall is not set up with 'rules' that allow the satellite proxy server access, all the data will be coming by phone line modem only, with absolutely no increase in speed from the satellite link.

So paying for a satellite connection but not getting the proxy and firewall setting right is a complete waste of money!

Oh, and by the way, the satellite proxy server will not work with AOL (at least not yet) because Time Warner AOL uses its own proprietary software. To use satellite broadband, AOL users must sign up to a completely different Internet Service Provider, like Tiscali or Freeserve, and then access their e-mail by logging on to the AOL website. This adds the cost of the Tiscali/Freeserve call time to the subscription cost of using AOL and the subscription cost of Astra-AVC acceleration.

If you can afford it, Astra-AVC acceleration will be a sanity-saver in parts of the country (here and in Europe) where BT and the cable companies have not yet thought it cost-effective to provide a service.

The one big – and inescapable – downside is that whereas ADSL and cable broadband leave the phone line free for phoning, satellite broadband hogs the phone line for as long as the satellite is delivering ■

HDTV boom or bust for Voom

ALL THAT'S NEW IN THE SKIES ABOVE THE US AND FROM THE NETWORKS ON THE GROUND IS REPORTED EVERY MONTH BY CHRIS FORRESTER

IS there room in the skies for Voom?

Imagine this: you have a great business model. You are a giant US cable operator supplying signals to around 3.5million subscribers and generating revenues of a thumping $4billion each year, and the stock market says the business is worth $15.5billion. And you supply channels, like AMC (American Movie Classics), Fuse (a music channel), IFC (International Film Channel) and 'WE' (Women's Entertainment Ch.) to most of America's 80million cabled homes.

You also own Madison Square Gardens and significant chunks of the New York Knicks and New York Rangers sports teams, and you hold a very long lease on the impressive Radio City Music Hall uptown at Rockefeller Plaza, home of the long-legged Rockets.

The company's name is Cablevision. Yet last August Cablevision's bosses, headed by the wealthy Dolan family, placed the whole of this business at risk by launching a satellite-based, high-definition TV service over the United States. Cablevision has called the system Voom, and in February added its latest service, the world's first all-HDTV news channel HDNews (HDN). Have a glance at www.voom.com/index.jsp.

Viewers of HDN receive news headlines, weather information, sports highlights, and more with a true-to-life picture that's nearly as real as being on the scene. HDN is available exclusively to subscribers of Voom, the first TV service to offer a full array of HD programming to customers throughout the continental United States. Now with more than 30 HD channels, 21 of which are totally exclusive to Cablevision, Voom offers far more HD programming than any other satellite or cable service in the US.

HDN features a news-wheel of top headlines, national weather, sports highlights, business updates, and feature material in the categories of health, science and lightweight showbiz news.

But in this day of CNN, Fox, CNBC and a dozen and one other news channels, it is almost remarkable that it is Cablevision which is backing this new venture. HDN is the first and only national news channel to offer all of its programming in natural high-definition, including news footage, graphics, and in-studio presentation. These visually stunning images create a rich sensory experience for the viewer, making HDN unlike any other news service available today. Newscasters anchor from a custom state-of-the-art set in Woodbury, New York, while regional correspondents based in New York City, Dallas, Chicago, Los Angeles and Miami ensure, says Cablevision, that every major area of the US is covered.

'HDNews satisfies what was an un-met need for owners of high-definition television sets,' said Pat Dolan, president of news for Rainbow Media. 'HDN delivers a newscast that is both journalistically sound and showcases the incredible high definition technology available today,' he added.

Capturing news is expensive, whether it is transmitted in HD or ordinary digital. And yet the Dolan family is 'betting the farm' on this new HDTV technology, and it is not as if they have access to the millions of satellite viewers with dishes looking at either the signals of Rupert Murdoch's DirecTV system, or Charlie Ergen's rival Echostar DiSH satellites, which each already have about 12 high-def channels. The $2billion investment in a new satellite, broadcasting centre and 21 new channels represents a huge gamble, but the Dolans seem quite content to take the risk.

'HDNEWS SATISFIES WHAT WAS AN UN-MET NEED FOR OWNERS OF HIGH-DEFINITION TELEVISION SETS'

But lessons have already been learned since Voom's October launch. Up until the end of March subscribers had only to buy a satellite HD decoder (costing about $750, or £400). The first six months viewing was then 'free', while Voom admittedly got its package of channels up to speed. But now the crunch comes; getting viewers to pay a monthly fee. But Voom also has to address the question of signal reception, not so much of its satellite (Rainbow 1 at 61.5°W) but of integrating incoming satellite channels with over-the-air local HD transmissions from the basic networks. There have also been a few glitches with Voom's set-top boxes not quite handling and identifying incoming channels efficiently. These problems have been mostly addressed with software downloads.

New potential viewers are also being tempted with an ultra low-cost HD set-top box, costing just $249 (about £130). But while critics praise the idea, what Voom doesn't yet have is access to some of the very best HD content from some of its rivals, notably HBO and the all-important HD channel from ESPN. The subscription price – compared with the UK at least – is a modest $39 a month for the 21 HD channels plus 88 'basic' services.

Voom makes no bones about the fact that it is pitching itself to the six million people who have laid out thousands of dollars for HDTV sets. The company points to a recent study predicting that the number of HD set owners will double to 12million this year and could soar to as high as 40million by 2007. However, Wall Street is generally cool to Voom. In another report Bernstein Research cable analyst Craig Moffett says he predicts 'little chance of commercial success' for Voom.

However, another analyst, Eric Zamkoff of IRG Research, says Voom 'is taking a step in the right direction' by focusing on HD because 'there's a big demand by consumers for the high-quality of HD in the marketplace, and the prices of the HDTV sets are starting to fall'.

In other words, you pays your money... Which is exactly what Cablevision has done. We'll keep you informed as to how the investment works out ■

Aligning a fixed dish

Learn how to align a dish yourself and save money on installation

Although most folk will get a professional to install their satellite dish, it's not all that difficult to do it yourself. All it takes is a few normal DIY tools and a fair amount of patience. Of course, it's all made a lot easier if you have some specialist equipment too – like signal level meters or spectrum analysers – but that's not absolutely necessary.

If you are re-aligning a dish after a storm or passing truck has knocked it off-course, or to receive signals from a neighbouring satellite, then finding the right position for it will not concern you. However, for dishes fresh out of the box, it's important to put the dish in the right place.

Armed with a compass, take a stroll around your home to look for suitable locations for the dish. Assuming that you're intending to receive the satellites around 28°E for Sky Digital or one of the other major satellites – Astra 1, or Hot Bird – then your dish should have a clear view from about 15° to 35° east of South (that's the 'azimuth' or bearing) at about 20°-30° vertically up from the horizon (that's the elevation angle – it's about a quarter of the way from the ground to vertically above you).
Remember, for reliable reception:

- The dish must face the satellite
- The dish must have no obstructions between it and the satellite.

If it is Sky Digital you want, look for Sky Digital minidishes on neighbouring properties to get an idea of where they point. Dishes for Astra 1 or Hot Bird are aimed in the same general direction too.

If you're going to fix the dish to a wall, the wall does not have to face exactly at the satellite. The dish's mount allows for some flexibility. Most mounts will allow a dish to be aligned with its line of sight at anything from perpendicular to the wall to parallel with it – although when close to parallel with the wall you should beware of overhanging eaves that would 'shadow' the dish from the satellite.

Satellite dishes are not the most attractive of objects. Although there are a great many other ugly objects dotted around our environment – lamp posts, TV aerials, many buildings themselves – it makes no sense to add to the disarray by installing a satellite dish in an indiscreet position.

Don't place the dish on the front wall of your house if it can be avoided – and it usually can be, by using a longer pole mount at the rear, looking over the roof.

Try hiding the dish behind a parapet or chimney to avoid it being noticeable from the road or from neighbours' gardens. Also avoid placing the dish where it is within reach of passing vandals.

You don't have to place the dish on your house wall at all. It can live at ground level or be mounted on a garage or outbuilding if that is less obtrusive. Indeed, considering that you are doing this yourself, placing the dish on the ground or within reach of a step ladder is considerably safer than high up on a house wall.

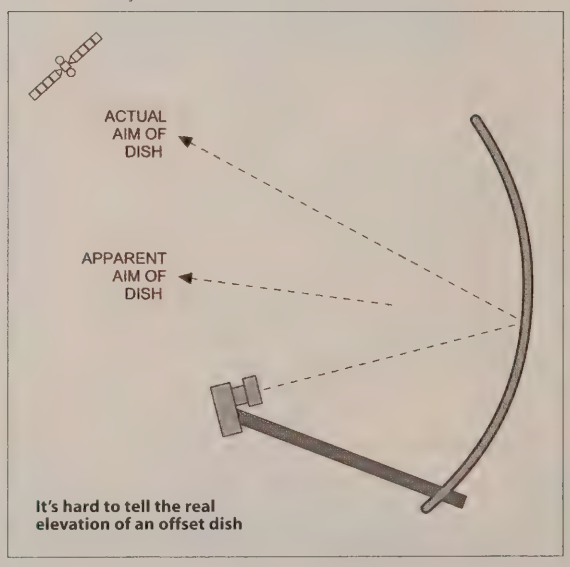
Dish installation is often a compromise between optimum reception and impact on the environment.

So, for the sake of the environment, your standing in the community and your relations with your neighbours, remember:

- The dish does not need to be up high
- The dish does not need to be as close to the receiver as possible
- A painted dish can work as well as a bare one
- The dish does not need to be visible from the ground
- A large logo on a dish is not a status symbol.

The next step is to assemble the dish and LNB and to actually fix it in position. Different dishes vary in their design and their means of mounting but the vast majority have a bracket on the back of the reflector which clamps to a pole – either fixed to a wall, on a tripod or concreted in the ground.

We won't go into details of the actual fixing here; if you cannot manage the fixing of the dish, or you are unwilling to climb a ladder to do it, then you are unlikely to be able to align the dish either! That's when you get in the professionals.



It's hard to tell the real elevation of an offset dish

Calculating the angles

The direction of the satellite varies with the dish's position on the Earth's surface. To work out the angles involved takes some pretty hefty calculations. To do these, you will need the longitude and latitude of your site (you can read that off a good atlas) and either a 'scientific' calculator (with trigonometry functions) or something like the MS Excel spreadsheet. Here, we've given the formulas for Excel.

First calculate the azimuth from the site latitude (lat), the site longitude (long) and the satellite's orbital longitude, or position (sat). Note that east of South should be expressed as a positive number and West as a negative:

az=(ATAN(TAN(RADIANS(sat)-RADIANS(long))/SIN(RADIANS(lat))))*57.296

So for Astra1 19.2°E from a site in North London (51.65°N, 0.18°W) gives an azimuth of +23.67, or 24°E.

Now for the elevation you first need to calculate a factor f:
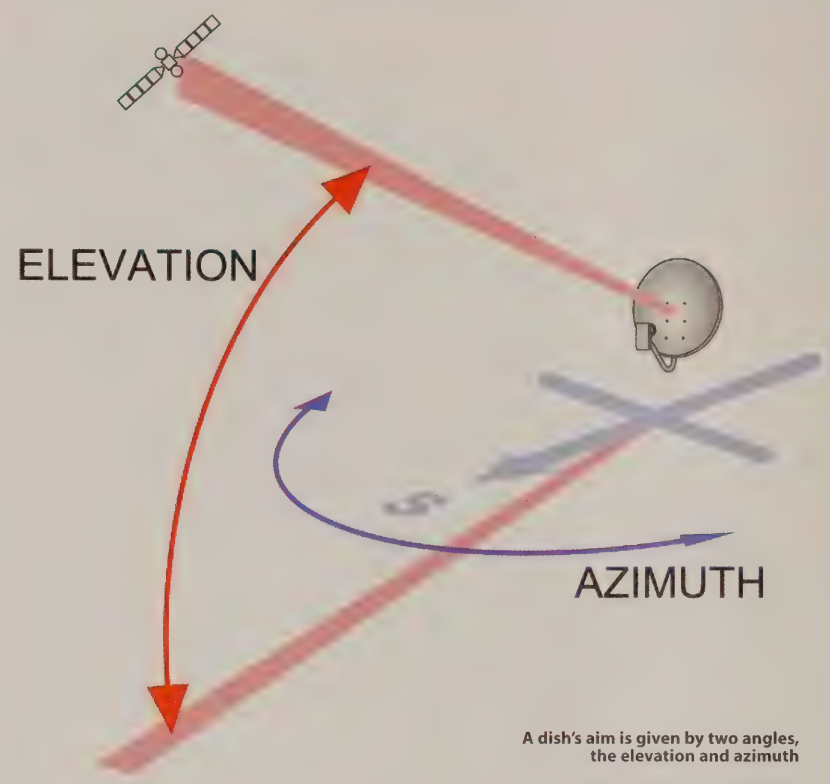
f=(ACOS(COS(RADIANS(sat)-RADIANS(long))COS(RADIANS(lat)))) 57.296 that allows you to calculate the elevation:

el=ATAN((COS(RADIANS(f))-0.1512)/SIN(RADIANS(f)))* 57.296

Which for the North London site gives 28° above the horizon.

Excel uses Radians rather than degrees for all trigonometry functions – that is the reason for the RADIANS functions and the 57.296 factors (or 180/Pi).



A dish's aim is given by two angles, the elevation and azimuth

The azimuth calculated is a true bearing to the satellite and does not account for the variation to magnetic North that a compass will show. Your local magnetic variation can be found in a good atlas.

Alternatively, you can download software that does all the calculations for you. Our favourites are SMW Link, at www.smw.se, and Accusat, at www.accusat.com (but you'll have to pay for the full version). There are online calculators at http://home.online.no/~jensts/satellite.html and http://www.satsig.net/ssazelm.htm

TAKING AIM

We'll take up the story with the dish mounted on the wall or ground mount, and ready to be aligned on the satellite. This is the bit that causes the most consternation – which is not really surprising because it requires accurately pointing a large lump of metal at an invisible satellite (and usually up a ladder)!

If a neighbouring dish is in sight (one that's pointed at the satellite you want – only likely if that's 28°E for Sky Digital), you can get a good first approximation by angling your dish the same way as that one. If there isn't one to copy, you'll need to work out some angles (see the box) and roughly point the dish using a compass and an inclinometer (a cheap model from a DIY store will do fine) and a straight edge to sight along.

It's quite tricky to set the elevation of an 'offset' dish (the common sort – with a single LNB arm from the bottom of the reflector) as they don't appear to look directly at the satellite. Some manufacturers mark the mounting with degrees of elevation but that relies on the mounting plate being accurately vertical to start with.

It doesn't matter if your first aim is a bit off, because the idea is to use the satellites' signals to home in on the right spot. You need to measure the strength of the signal being received by the dish. For this you can use either a signal meter or your receiver.

Signal meters vary from simple signal level meters costing upwards of about £25 to special digital satellite meters that cost about £250 or spectrum analysers that can cost thousands.

We'll assume you have nothing more than the satellite receiver. Along with a TV, this needs to be positioned within sight of the dish. If you're up a ladder this probably means inside a nearby window but make sure that the TV can be seen easily – at the top of a ladder you should not have to lean or strain to see the screen.

If the dish is on the ground, the TV can be right next to you (but plug the extension cable into an RCD for use outside).

Connect the LNB to the receiver's input with a length of satellite co-ax (make sure you have the right sort of cable), switch on the receiver and TV and select the signal level display on the receiver. With a Sky Digibox, you press Services-4-6, but all digital receivers have some sort of signal level display.

The display shows the overall signal level or strength received, the signal 'quality' (a measure of the correct digital data received) and an indication of the signal 'lock' (when the correct signal is found).

If you're very lucky, on connection, the level and quality meters will surge up and the indicator show the signal locked. But more likely, you will have to search a little to find the satellite. Starting from your first guess position, move the dish left and right and up and down to scan the sky. Move in small increments or you will move past the satellite.

Fortunately, the small dishes used for the major satellites these days have a wide 'beamwidth', and so they will get a portion of the signal even if they're not aimed well at the satellite – enough to alert you that you're getting close.

Fitting an F-Connector

To connect the LNB, first to a meter or a receiver placed near the dish for alignment, and later to the receiver in it's final position, you must learn how to make up a cable.

Use screw-on F-connectors. The crimp-on type can perform better but they require a lot more practice and a special crimping tool.

1. Use CT100 cable or equivalent (double shielded with copper braid and copper foil. RG6 will do but the copper braid/aluminium foil is more likely to corrode)

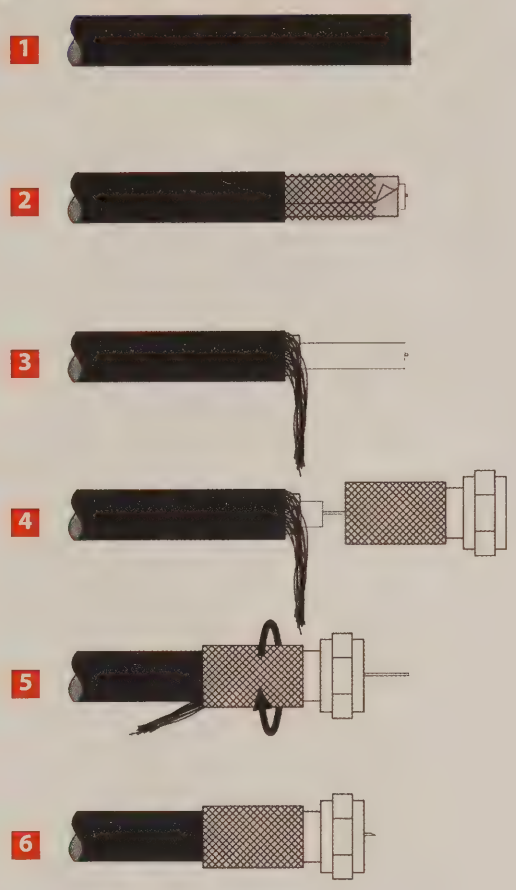
2. About 25mm from the end, cut through the outer plastic covering with a sharp knife and remove it. Do not cut through the braid beneath

3. Remove the exposed foil and twist the braid together to one side

4. Cut and remove the inner insulation (don't cut the centre wire) to leave all but a few millimetres of the wire exposed. Push on the F-connector

5. Twist the F-connector on to the cable as far as it will go (until the inner insulation hits the baffle inside

6. Finally, trim off the exposed braid and cut the centre wire to be just proud of the F-connector



'WHEN YOU'VE FOUND THE RIGHT SATELLITE, YOU SHOULD TWEAK THE ALIGNMENT FOR THE BEST POSSIBLE SIGNAL'

When the dish gets a glimpse of a satellite, the level meter will register (the quality and lock indicators may well do nothing). With many receivers (including the Digibox) there's a distinct delay before the meter registers the signal, so this whole process must be a slow one of move-wait-move-wait. The advantage of a separate signal level meter is that the response is near-enough instant so you can sweep the dish, watching for a kick of the meter.

The scanning process is repeated, centred on the new position to get a stronger signal – until the signal quality meter registers about 33 per cent, changes colour from red to green, or otherwise shows it's found a digital signal, depending on your receiver.

If you have found the right satellite, the lock indicator will come on (or on some receivers, the search channel flicks into life). Now set your receiver to perform the full search and check that you get the expected channels (with a Sky Digibox, that happens automatically – it will find the EPG listings if you have 28°E in your sights).

If you get no channels or ones other than expected, you have the wrong satellite and the whole procedure needs to be repeated from the start.

Expensive digital meters will analyse the signal and tell you which satellite you have found automatically and instantly.

When you've found the right satellite, you should tweak the alignment for the best possible signal, using the signal quality display. If you find that your get a 100 per cent reading (only likely with an over-sized dish), temporarily cut down the amount of signal reaching the LNB by draping a wet cloth over some of the dish reflector, and home in on the very best (diminished) signal. This works because water absorbs the microwave signals from satellites very efficiently.

The last task is to set the 'skew' of the LNB (it's correct rotational angle in its holder). With a Sky minidish this is sometimes preset. Otherwise, with the wet cloth in position, rotate the LNB to find the strongest signal.

When you have all the adjustments correct, thoroughly tighten up the various screws and bolts to lock the dish in the right position (tighten pairs of bolts evenly so the dish is not pulled out of position) and run the cable to where the receiver will normally reside.

Without any kind of meter, this whole process is very lengthy, often frustrating and liable to generate language you won't want your children (or parents) to hear, but you should now have your dish accurately trained on the satellite. If it is well aligned, the onset of rain or even light snow should not affect the picture and you will not have to repeat the process again – until you want a larger dish, a different satellite, or you move home ■

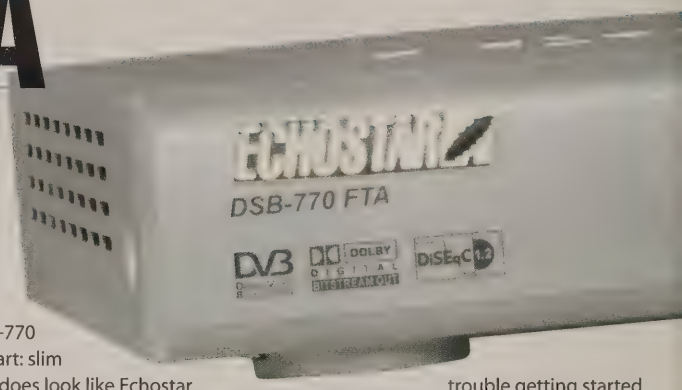
ECHOSTAR DSB-770 FTA



THE COMPACT SHAPE OF ECHOSTAR'S LATEST FREE-TO-AIR SATELLITE RECEIVER DOESN'T DIMINISH ITS POWER, AS ALEX LANE DISCOVERS

There's been a two-year gap since Echostar produced a new receiver, which is no big problem because the DSB-707 FTA (and other models using the same chassis) was a pretty good little package.

Like all of Echostar's receivers that have been released over the past three years, the DSB-707 used the Echonav menu system. This user interface offered a lot of features to the enthusiast, with total control over transponder lists and powerful sorting, but also had a pretty steep learning curve compared with most receivers.

Echostar's new range of receivers appears to have given up on Echonav in favour of a much simpler interface for the beginner. These are, after all, low-priced receivers for satellite beginners, and after three years of updates Echonav is much more suited to high-end equipment like traditionally motorised receivers and personal video recorders. You can do pretty much anything with Echonav, but sometimes it takes a minute to work out the correct menu sequence to get there.

The DSB-770 FTA has a couple of cousins: the DSB-880 2Ci (with a twin common interface), and the DSB-1220 FTA and DSB-2220 2Ci, which use the same software but have four-digit LED displays.

This is still Echostar, so low-priced doesn't mean cheap and nasty. The DSB-770 has a great design for a start: slim and compact, although it does look like Echostar decided not to put a display on the fascia at the very last minute. It's a little disturbing when nothing appears in the large window after you've switched on, as all that's behind there is the remote control sensor. Three small LEDs to the right indicate power, standby and signal lock, while you can change channels and turn the receiver on with the three buttons.

The small buttons are the only problem with Echostar's new remote handset. It's full of useful function buttons, clearly labelled and comfortable to hold, but the Freeze and Page Up/Down buttons are simply too tiny, particularly as they're recessed and right next to the chunky directional buttons.

Having two manuals – one for the hardware and one for the software – is also a little strange, but this probably saves on printing costs when there's a software update and only half the manual needs changing.

Even the novice shouldn't have too much trouble getting started with the DSB-770 FTA, using the first time installation menu. The receiver is set up for a fixed dish installation with a four-way DiSEqC switch and LNBs aimed at Astra 1, Hot Bird, Turksat 1C and Eurasiasat 1, with pre-tuned channel lists so you can start watching any of these satellites instantly. There's two-level DiSEqC switch control, so you can have up to eight fixed LNBs.

If your LNB is set up correctly, then you can also quickly get going with a DiSEqC motor, using either basic DiSEqC 1.2 or USALS. You might not recognise this as a USALS receiver, however, because Echostar has confusingly used the alternative name 'Goto X' for the auto-locating feature. What's odd is that the last version of Echonav called it USALS, but it works and that's the main thing.

A full set of DiSEqC 1.2 commands is featured, with both large and fine step movement, movement limits and re-alignment (if your dish has been affected by wind, for instance). The position

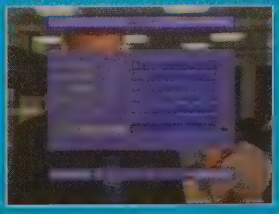
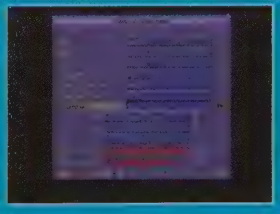
Echostar's new menus are as simple as possible



GotoX – or USALS – makes motorised installation simple



The channel search is thorough and fairly quick

of any satellite can be fine-tuned individually, too.

The quick-install and channel search menus allow you to tune in a single transponder and get a picture before doing a full search. This is an especially useful feature with a motorised dish. You can choose to search for free or scrambled channels, search a single transponder or use the network information table to update your transponder list and, unusually, choose to look for either TV, radio or data channels.

MANY FEATURES, SIMPLE TO USE

CAN'T EDIT SATELLITE LIST

The transponder list can also be edited (the wide symbol rate range stretches from 2000-45000) and channels added using their PIDs. There are 80 satellites with preset transponder lists, but you can't add new satellites to the list. Strangely, Echostar has listed satellites by their positions to the East. For instance, Thor appears as 359.2°E, instead of 0.8°W.

With memory for 4,400 channels across 1,500 transponders, you might not feel the need to restrict your searches. The channel search is reasonably quick, returning a complete scan of Hot Bird's 88 transponders in six minutes.

Navigating through this many channels can be a challenge, but fortunately there are four favourites lists each for TV and radio channels. The TV lists even come preset for accessing German channels, news, sports and music on the four initial satellites. You can delete channels from the active list, or whole satellites.

The onscreen list can be sorted on the fly with a combination of alphabetic order, transponder or network, free or scrambled channels, and by satellite. In alphabetic mode you can use the keypad to select different letters, mobile phone-style.

This being an Echostar receiver, we weren't surprised to find the picture and sound quality were a very high standard. This does tend to mean bad, over-compressed signals are shown up, but when you find something good it also makes the RGB and S-video outputs worth having. This goes equally for the digital audio output with its low ambient noise levels, and the rare pleasure of finding a channel using Dolby Digital (for high quality stereo even if it doesn't have surround).

Programme information is in good supply, with a now-and-next banner and a full-screen EPG capable of showing up to 14 days of DVB information. You'll never find it, but what the Hell. It's easy to call up full tuning and signal quality information, and there's a speedy built-in teletext viewer, if you've mislaid the TV remote. There are six event timers, allowing you to set up recordings up to two weeks ahead, of up to 24 hours duration. These can be set manually, or directly from the EPG.

In addition, there are the usual parental lock features over channels and menus, plus a simple freeze-frame, and a sleep timer running up to two hours.

The DSB-770 FTA is the quality product we've come to expect from Echostar, in a compact and affordable package. It doesn't have the total functionality of the Echonav receivers, but it is a lot simpler to use for the novice and casual users it is targeted at ■

GEOFF BAINS SCANS SATELLITES AT HIGH SPEED TO TUNE IN TO TWO VIACCESS NETWORKS AT ONCE

There's no shortage of receivers for free-to-air and encrypted foreign channels and it seems that another manufacturer pops up every fortnight. Mondeal is the latest new name to grace our pages and the 7500-2VIACCESS 2CI the first model to grace our dishes.

The 7500 is midi hi-fi sized, with a solid metal chassis and cover and a plastic front panel with the usual controls – Power, cursor movement, Select and Menu/Exit – and a fluorescent numeric display that shows the channel number or the time (in standby).

A fold-down flap beneath the display conceals two common interface slots for add-on CAMs and (unusually) two Viaccess card slots. Yes, the 7500 can take two Viaccess viewing cards at the same time, so you could watch, say, both TPS and ABsat without having to swap over cards as you flip between the two networks. You could even add two more Viaccess CAMs in the CI slots to watch four different Viaccess networks if you really wanted to. The CI slots are more likely to be used for other encryption formats and Mondeal says the 7500 will work with CAMs for Nagravision, Conax, Cryptoworks, Irdeto and Astoncrypt. So for watching encrypted channels the 7500 is pretty well equipped.

The remote control is refreshingly smart. It has a comfortable sculpted shape and a large finger-hold on the underside to help when using it one-handed. But strangely, there are two OK keys, and one of the lines of number keys is offset from the other two lines – which means mis-keying is all too easy.

The 7500 is equipped with DiSEqC 1.2 control, so you can connect it to four different LNBs on one or more dishes (the LNBs can be universal, various dual and single-band Ku-band models, C-band, or with a non-standard local oscillator frequency) or to a motorised mount.

This is only basic DiSEqC 1.2 so, when installing a motorised dish, each satellite has to be found 'manually' – but this is a once-only procedure and not too arduous. In fact, the 7500 is generally less arduous to set up than many other receivers because the 7500 scans a satellite for channels very quickly.

Once the LNBs are set up or the satellites found, the 7500 scans one or all of the satellites according to the transponder details stored in its database of broadcasters, frequencies, polarities and symbol rates. The scan can look for all channels, just the free-to-air, or just the encrypted ones.

The 7500 scans incredibly fast. For Hot Bird it searched through 86 transponders, finding 784 TV and 385 radio channels in just over three minutes. When it only takes this long you are more likely to scan a satellite more often to keep up-to-date with channel changes.

What's more, the 7500's transponder database can be easily altered as new networks come online or they change the transponder tuning parameters. Each entry in the database can be renamed, altered or deleted, and new entries inserted too. The next time you scan that satellite the new transponder parameters are used for the search for channels.

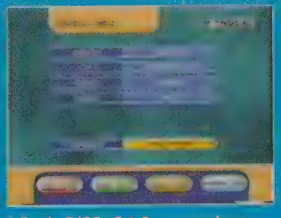
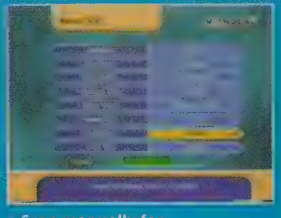
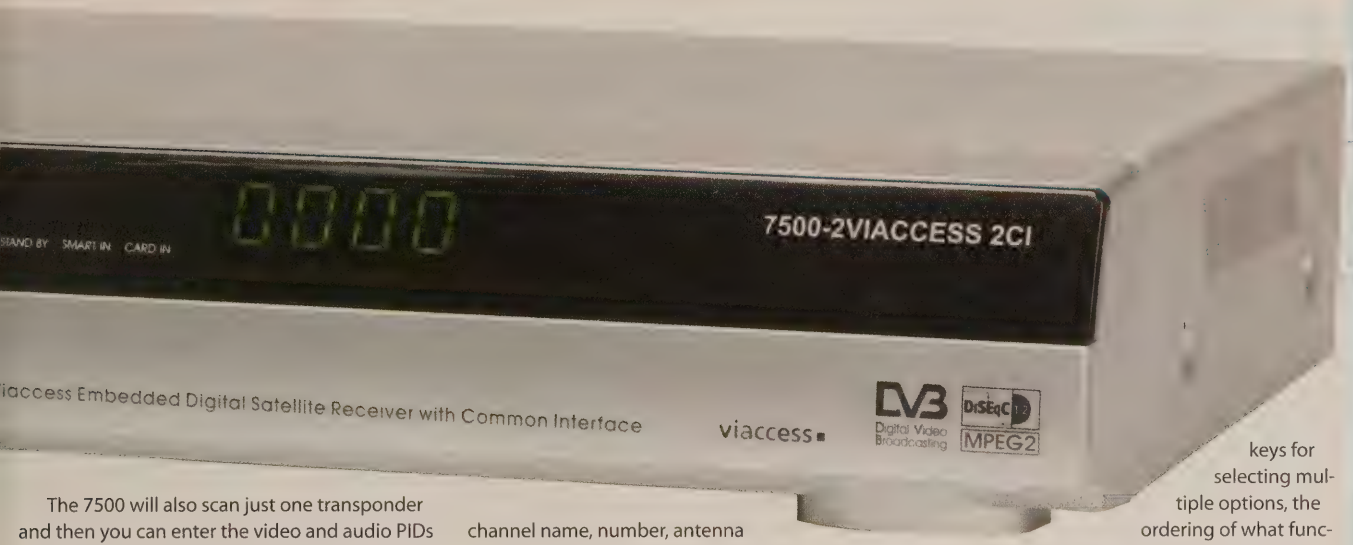
The EPG can cover up to seven days



Basic DiSEqC 1.2, so you have to find each satellite manually



Scan manually for transponders, or channels using PIDs



The 7500 will also scan just one transponder and then you can enter the video and audio PIDs too if that is required to find a channel.

With such a turn of speed, it's a shame that the 7500 doesn't have the facility to scan through all possible frequencies for active transponders. However, as it is, the 7500 makes a good machine for finding news feeds, and so on.

The 7500 is fast at changing channels too, but not so hot for selecting a channel from the onscreen list. All the channels are stored in one huge list (with another list for the radio stations). There is no indication of what satellite a channel comes from, whether it is encrypted, or which network it is a part of. With thousands of channels, the list becomes rather daunting. The list can be sorted by satellite or into FTA and encrypted channels, but this only affects the order without giving any more information onscreen.

+ 2 VIACCESS CARD SLOTS EMBEDDED AND CI SLOTS TOO. FAST TO SCAN SATS AND CHANGE CHANNEL

– POOR CHANNEL LIST AND CONFUSING MENU SYSTEM, AND WITH SPARSE CONNECTIVITY

Next to the channel list is a small window that shows the currently selected channel, so you can see what you're getting. But if it is blank it could be because the channel's encrypted or just not active at the time.

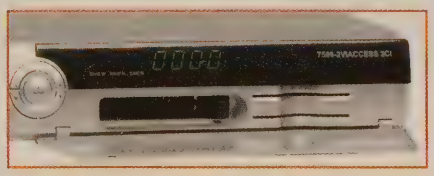
There are four favourite channel lists into which regularly watched channels from anywhere in the list can be placed for easy access. However, these cannot be renamed from FAV1-FAV4, so it's not a complete solution.

When you do find the channel you want the 7500 displays an excellent information banner with the channel name, number, antenna and transponder information, the PIDs, signal strength and flags for encryption, audio format and teletext (decoded for display by the receiver and reinserted in the video signal for decoding by a teletext TV). Again, this is good news for viewers of feeds and programme exchanges as it gives all the information regularly wanted.

The EPG display covers seven days of programming (if the information is broadcast) in three-hour chunks for four channels at a time. Again, the EPG has a window display of the selected channel and it displays the synopsis details of the selected show.

The event timer cannot be set from the EPG – it must be done manually. It provides for eight events, but only over a week. It can be used not only to turn on the receiver at a particular time but also to simply turn it off; in effect, it's an over-complex sleep timer.

Although the menus are bright and clear, and good use is made of the colour.



keys for selecting multiple options, the ordering of what function appears in which menu is confused, and getting used to the peculiarities take some time.

The 7500 produces a very reasonable picture. There's a tendency for images to be a little grainy or noisy, but they show good contrast, with strong, bright colours. The audio is also excellent – which makes the lack of digital audio output all the greater an omission.

But complaints are bit hollow. There are precious few receivers that can provide a Viaccess CAM (let alone two card slots) for this price. Although the 7500's connectivity is a bit disappointing – and the menus and channel lists are not all they could be – it scans channels at breakneck speed and provides reliable access to FTA and encrypted channels from many satellites. And because of this the 7500 makes a good first-time receiver or one for the enthusiast ■

THIS COMPACT FREE-TO-AIR RECEIVER PLEASES GEOFF BAINS WITH ITS FEATURES AND ITS PRICE

These days, more and more satellite receivers are equipped with DiSEqC 1.2 motorised dish control as standard. You can buy a DiSEqC 1.2 receiver for less than a fixed dish unit cost a few years back.

The Liberty FTA786 costs less than £100 but provides all the features that were once found on receivers costing five times as much. That's the nature of the constant stream of satellite equipment coming into Europe from the Far East.

The price isn't the only thing diminutive about the FTA786 – it's only 10in (260mm) across. It has a slightly retro look; the front panel is silver (of course) with a large round window in the middle containing the numeric display and remote sensor. Buttons on the front panel are kept to the bare minimum – power and channel up/down only.

The remote control won't win any design awards, but it does the job. It's best described as 'functional'.

The front has no hinged covers, as there are no card readers or CAM slots; this receiver is for FTA reception only. This is a bit of a restriction – if you're going to get thousands of channels from across the satellite arc it would be a good idea to have the potential of decoding the encrypted majority. However, the FTA786 performs pretty well with the many FTA channels it can receive.

The onscreen menus are reminiscent of those on Echostar's Echonav system. Press the menu key and you get a line of four icons for search, edit, setup and tools along the bottom of the screen, with the submenus for the selected icon at the top, so you move left and right keys between icons and up and down between menus. Simple, but effective.

As with Echonav, you can choose your background (there are spring, summer, autumn and winter photos) but setup is frustrating; you have to keep entering a PIN.

When the receiver is first switched on it goes through the installation 'wizard' (confusingly, you advance through the various menus with the Previous key). First, the onscreen and audio language and the UHF channel are set (a dedicated UHF button goes straight to this too – handy if you have a no-Scart TV).

Then it's time to pick the satellites that you want to watch from the menu of 141 pre-programmed birds (you can add more, too) and set up the antenna(s).

For each satellite chosen you can set the LNB local oscillator frequencies (to standard values or choose your own), set the LNB selection control (DiSEqC 1.0, mini-DiSEqC and 0/12V) and choose between a fixed LNB or a motorised dish.

'THE LIBERTY FTA786 COSTS LESS THAN £100 BUT PROVIDES ALL THE FEATURES THAT WERE ONCE FOUND ON RECEIVERS COSTING FIVE TIMES AS MUCH'

The FTA786 supports both standard DiSEqC 1.2 (which requires you to find each satellite) and the USALS extension that is programmed with the longitude and latitude of the dish and then works out all the positions for itself.

When the satellites are found the FTA786 can search them for active channels. The first time this is done the FTA786 does an automatic search using the transponder details already programmed into its satellite database. It's reasonably fast, taking a few minutes to scan Astra 1 for active channels.

USALS makes it simple to set up a DiSEqC motor

Later, you can perform a manual search on a particular transponder, or an automatic search on the lot. Usefully, the automatic search can either look just for active channels using the frequency, polarity and symbol rate in the database (FEC is automatic) or you can perform a 'detailed' search which looks at each transponder in turn and tries a number of symbol rates – those already programmed in the database for that satellite and additional ones that you add.

+ CHEAP BUT POWERFUL. GOOD EPG AND GREAT SATELLITE SCANNING FOR UNKNOWN CHANNELS

– NO S-VIDEO. NO CI SLOTS. SO ENCRYPTED CHANNELS ARE OUTSIDE ITS REACH

Although this search mode is far slower, it is most useful when searching for programme feeds and the like – with all the frequencies programmed you enter the symbol rate commonly used by an OB and the FTA786 will find the broadcast whatever transponder is being used.

The database of transponders can be edited as broadcasters change and additional satellites added, or redundant ones removed.

The FTA786 displays channels in onscreen lists of all channels, all TV, all radio and each satellite. You can also create additional lists (up to 20 in all) for favourite channels from any satellite.

In addition, of course, a channel can be called up by its number in the list or using the channel up/down keys. There's also a very useful Recall key that alternates between the current channel and the last selected, regardless of the lists. The channels in the lists are displayed with symbols to show if they are encrypted or radio stations, and any of the lists can be re-ordered, sorted and channels deleted.

When a channel is selected an information banner is displayed with the name, number, current programme (if available), satellite, time, list in use, signal level and various icons for TV/radio, encryption, a locked channel and the presence of EPG data.

The same display can be had with a press of the Info key and a further press produces the now-and-next programme information too.

Pressing the EPG key reduces the TV picture to a window and displays the current channel list beside it and the programme name and details below it. A press of the OK key displays the 'schedule' for the current channel – a list of times and programme names with a window of the details for the selected channel. For the few channels that actually transmit the information, this is a real godsend.

The handset also includes keys to freeze the image, mute or adjust the volume, select the soundtrack, and toggle the TV Scart switching voltage on and off for TVs without an AV input control. There are even a couple of games (Tetris and Breakout) to play if you get bored with TV.

The quality of images and sound that the FTA786 produces belies its price. It is especially welcome to see the digital audio output on a budget model (it's just a pity there's no S-video too).

This is a budget receiver and a few aspects of the features and facilities make that quite clear. However, with a reasonable turn of speed at scanning satellites and changing channels, good image and sound quality, an extremely useful detailed scan for unexpected channels, and a decent channel access system and EPG, the FTA786 can also look a lot more than its £90 price tag. If this is the way that satellite receivers are going – more for less – then so much the better ■

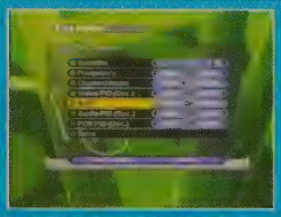
THE OPPOSITION

■ Fortec Star DVB-786V2
Almost identical specification. Proper event timer, but no Dolby Digital, fewer channels, less sophisticated EPG and dearer

■ Starsat SR-H2002CI
Very similar facilities, but with two common interface slots for a higher price

■ Technomate TM-5500D
Same price, similar specification – no USALS, no Dolby Digital, but more channels

Add special symbol rates to an automatic channel search



Manual scan includes PIDs and an ACS stream option

You have full control of the transponder, satellite and channel lists

HAUPPAUGE MEDIAMVP

THE CONNECTED HOME IS A STEP CLOSER FOR ALEX LANE, WITH THIS COMPACT PC-TO-TV INTERFACE FROM HAUPPAUGE

For years now, we've been warned of the imminent arrival of the connected home, with a multimedia server at its heart feeding audio and video outlets in every room of the house, and keeping your portable media jukebox up to date.

Hauppauge's MediaMVP is one step closer to achieving the connected home dream.

This unassuming little box can pull audio, video and still pictures from any PC on a network, and display them on a TV set or play through your audio system. It works with any PCs running Windows 2000 or Windows XP and, once set up, can be controlled from your armchair using the remote control.

The compact silver-and-black box is almost identical to Hauppauge's DEC1000 Freeview adapter, and can be mounted horizontally or vertically.

The remote is another Hauppauge standard design, but it's functional enough.

Setup is straightforward – just install the server software on the PCs you want it to see, reboot, and plug the the MediaMVP into the network. You'll need to run cable from your router to the TV room, or connect it to a wireless router (we already had one in place for our Soundserver S1000 – what a shame the MediaMVP won't connect to this).

If you've only got one PC, and it's already in the same room as the TV you want to use, the MediaMVP can connect with an Ethernet crossover cable, although it only comes with a standard Ethernet patch cable.

The MediaMVP isn't compatible with Windows XP's own firewall, so you'll have to swap this for Zone Alarm or another user-configurable firewall. This isn't a big issue because the basic Zone Alarm is free, and it's more secure than the Microsoft effort.

You're now ready to play. You can simply browse your hard discs for media files with the MediaMVP remote control, or use the server software to set specific directories on your PC, and most people will have these already.

The TV menus use a simple icon-and-thumbnail format, with the filename below. In any directory you can choose to play the highlighted file, play all the files in a loop, or in a random 'slide show'. This is more useful on music and photos than video, and it provides a limited functionality, since the MediaMVP can't read metadata such as genres for music files, and you can't create your own playlists.

It also supports quite a narrow range of file formats. Video users can only access MPEG1 and MPEG2 files, although support for DivX and AVI files is planned, although many people would expect these popular formats to be part of the basic software. Video and audio occasionally go completely out of sync, which is very hard to watch.

Digital picture viewers won't be too disappointed that it only supports JPEG and GIF images, although TIFs and bitmaps would be welcome. Music fans may be most disappointed because only MP3 files are currently supported; WMA and WAV are in the pipeline. You can use playlists in the M3U, PLS, ASX and B4S formats, but that will be small comfort.

With video or music, you can pause, fast forward and rewind through files, and there's a 'skip' button that allows you to jump forward or back six minutes on a video, or through six photo or music items.

To be fair, this is Hauppauge's first step into a new market. There will be software and firmware updates to provide a broader compatibility, and the £99 price is designed to make it an easy purchase.

Future versions of the MediaMVP will include wireless networking (probably 802.11g), digital audio outputs, AC-3 support for Dolby Digital, support for up to 12 MediaMVPs on the same network, and we'd like to add support for streaming audio and video to the shopping list.

It would be even nicer to be able to distribute audio and video across the network from TV room devices like Sky Plus, though we realise that would require some heavy on-the-fly compression. Perhaps simpler would be remote control of a PC satellite or TV receiver like Hauppauge's own WinTV devices.

It certainly performs well enough. We had no problem playing MPEG2 video, recorded via a Hauppauge WinTV Nova-USB satellite adapter, and video is automatically resized for a standard 720x576 display.

This success was a mild surprise because we were using an 802.11b network with limited bandwidth. MP3 audio at 128k sounded very good despite the analogue connections, and if you're feeling clever you can browse pictures while you listen to music.

The MediaMVP is certainly a good stab at creating the connected home on a budget, but the likes of Pinnacle and Sony are also working in the same direction, so Hauppauge will have to keep innovating to keep up ■

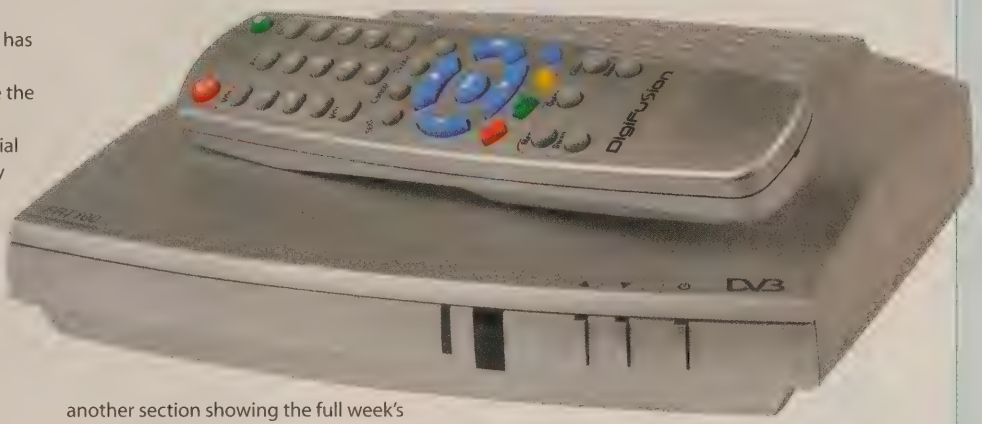
DIGIFUSION FRT100

THE SEVEN-DAY PROGRAMME GUIDE IS FINALLY A REALITY ON FREEVIEW (FOR SOME). GRANT RENNELL PLANS HIS TV WEEK WITH ONE OF THE FIRST ADAPTERS TO SUPPORT IT



Seven-day programme information has been one of the most requested features on Freeview adapters since the service was launched nearly 18 months ago.

Continuing technical issues mean an official seven-day programme guide is still some way off on the platform, but commercial outfit 4TV has recently set up its own service (on channel 704) providing seven-day information for a growing list of box manufacturers willing to pay to stay ahead of the game.

So far this includes Thomson, Bush, the providers of all boxes based on Setpal technology, and newcomer Fusion Digital Technology.

The FRT100 is a vanilla Freeview adapter that forms part of a comprehensive range of Freeview products set to appear from Fusion this year. This will include IDTVs and a twin-tuner PVR where seven-day programme information should prove particularly useful.

The grey plastic casing isn't the most compact we've seen but it's stylish enough to look at, being somewhat reminiscent of an oversized CD Walkman. Connectivity is par for the course for a mid-price adapter: two Scarts, a UHF loopthrough, stereo phonos, and an RS232 serial port (but software updates are made over the air).

The bulbous silvery remote control is a well-labelled affair, although it does need to be pointed straight at the receiver to get a response.

The efficient auto tuning process scans first for frequencies and then channels.

The menus are eye-catchingly designed (although the overly fussy background can be hard on the eyes when using smaller TVs) and divided into three main sections: Guide, Setup and Calendar. The Setup menu lets you select favourites from a list of channels, turn on subtitles, choose audio language, set a sleep timer, turn interactivity on or off, and choose a picture format (16:9, 4:3 full-screen or 4:3 letterbox).

The Guide Menu is essentially a full-screen EPG. This displays a main list of all available channels, with a week's listings for each, and highlighting each reveals a brief synopsis of each programme. Selecting a channel brings up another section showing the full week's listings. While you are watching a programme, pressing OK brings up a quarter-screen programme information banner letting you browse a week's listings for the currently showing and all other channels.

The FRT100 automatically updates itself with seven-day information from 4TV if when left on standby overnight and the listings can also be accessed from the Calendar. This displays a month at a time highlighting days for which programme information is available.

Onscreen programme reminders are a useful feature to have, particularly when you have extended TV listings to hand. Unlike a Digibox, however, you can't set them directly from the programme information bar – only by highlighting programmes in the Guide or the Calendar and pressing the blue button. Also, it would've been nice to have been able to browse a list of set reminders à la Sky's Personal Planner.

Interestingly, the Calendar can also be used to store reminders of other events, such as upcoming appointments or birthdays. This involves entering a time and typing a short message using the number keys.

The digital tuner isn't the most sensitive we've come across, but does manage to generate a pleasingly sharp picture from a reasonable quality signal with little discernible artefacting.

Aside from the odd operating niggle, the FRT100 reveals itself to be a most competent adapter for the money, sporting a few noteworthy innovations.

SONY KD-32DX200U

Model: Sony KD-32DX200U
Price: £1,200
Tel: 08705 111 999
Website: www.sony.co.uk

KEY FEATURES:
- 32in widescreen
- 3 x Scart
- CI slot

Black screen surrounds are becoming increasingly common on TVs these days, perhaps because this more cinematic approach to TV design ties in nicely with the public's current love of all things DVD. The KD-32DX200U has more than just an attractive appearance to its name, however, as it includes both analogue and digital terrestrial TV tuners as well as featuring the latest version of Sony's picture enhancing DRC (Digital Reality Creation) technology.

Build

Striking though it is, something about the black surround makes the screen look slightly smaller than it actually is. The fascia curves attractively inward at the bottom, and the TV looks fetching resting on the matching two-tier stand.

Features

There are a generous three Scarts on rear, two of which are RGB-capable only, the third RGB and S-video, and three UHF connectors. Also present are stereo phonos, an optical digital audio output and a CI slot. A panel flips out on the front of the set to reveal the front AV: stereo phonos, composite video and S-video inputs, and a headphone jack.

Sony's familiar wand-style remote blueprint is put to good use once again; it's comfortable to hold and has nice, responsive buttons. Plainer labelling would have helped in a few areas, though – a small book symbol, for example, rather cryptically leads you to the EPG.

The menus come in the same friendly pastel colours as other sets in the Sony range. The main menu lets you tweak audio and picture settings and includes a choice of aspect ratios: 16:9, Zoom, 14:9, 4:3, and Smart, which stretches 4:3 broadcasts to fit a 16:9 screen. The remaining three menus are used to control the digital portion of the TV and all make clever use of the coloured buttons of the remote. Pressing 'i+' brings up the Digital info banner showing now-and-next information for the current channel. From here, you can also turn on subtitles, select audio language, and set up to 10 timed recordings. Pressing blue brings up the Detail Set-up menu, where you can create a favourites list, choose from four different types of 'wallpaper' for the menus, add PIN locks, manually and automatically tune channels, check signal strength and scan for software downloads.The Channel index Menu is a three-quarter screen affair displaying six channels at a time. These can be sorted into categories including news, lifestyle, entertainment, sports and favourites. The third menu is the seven day-ready EPG which is another three-quarter screen effort.

Here, programmes can also be sorted into categories, and timed recordings scheduled either manually or by selecting programmes directly from the EPG.

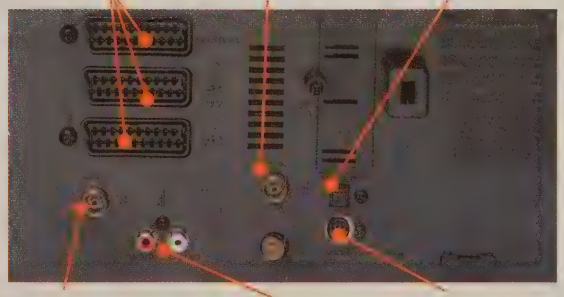
While analogue pictures are predictably softer than their digital counterparts, digital pictures are a little disappointing.

Despite apparently high signal quality levels on our test site, the digital tuner generates slightly blocky-looking results overall. Jagged lines and smearing are evident while observing fast movement on several channels such as the hyper-kinetic camerawork on a children's TV show. Switching on the line-boosting 50Hz DRC 50 or 100Hz DRC 100 modes does create a smoother picture but faint artefacting remains nonetheless. However, it's not a deal-breaker and, on the plus side, contrast levels are solid enough, with strong blacks seemingly enhanced by the black surround, and detail levels pleasingly high.

Sound

Two 10W speakers and a 30W subwoofer conspire to deliver a beefy-sounding audio performance even when faced with the blandness of daytime TV. The Virtual Dolby setting is predictably no match for proper Dolby, but it does add some perceived depth to more dramatic material.

BACK TO BACK



Conclusion

While the slightly under-performing tuner may fail to satisfy those seeking perfection in their digital TV picture, Sony has packed a lot into the KD-32DX200U. The operating menus are well thought-out and attractively presented and the seven day-ready EPG should be useful for when extended information becomes more widely available. It's not a world-beater, but Freeview lovers will still find much to admire in this slickly presented package ■

ASTRA UK HIGHLIGHTS THE LATEST CHANNELS TO LAUNCH ON 28°E

In March the UKTV channels unveiled a new onscreen look and launched two new channels as part of Sky Digital. UKTV's roots can be traced back to November 1992 with the launch of UK Gold, making the most of the back-catalogue of BBC and Thames TV.

Today the nine channels of UKTV are a joint venture between the BBC and Flextech TV. Shows that have been seen on the BBC are still the foundation of the schedules but they are combined with other best-of-British TV and with home-grown programmes especially created for the satellite channels.

A total revamp of the network has given all the channels the UKTV prefix and a new look. And with two new channels, UKTV Documentary and UKTV People, UKTV is Britain's second-largest non-terrestrial broadcaster, with more channels on Astra than any other network except Sky.

So now the three Lifestyle channels are called UKTV Food, UKTV Style and UKTV Bright Ideas. This is where much of UKTV's original programming is to be found. Alongside BBC bastions like Ready Steady Cook, Changing Rooms and Ground Force there are specially produced shows like Good Food Live, From House To Home and Galley Slaves.

The entertainment channels are renamed UKTV Drama, UKTV Gold and UKTV G2. UKTV Drama has the cream of British productions with hits such as Judge John Deed, Band Of Gold and Jonathan Creek. The newish UKTV G2 has already made a ratings splash with satirical contemporary shows like The Day Today, Alan Partridge and The League Of Gentlemen.

UKTV Gold is home to some of the nation's favourite TV from yesteryear: Only Fools And Horses, Blackadder and Dad's Army – and modern classics such Men Behaving Badly and The Office, a lather of soap from EastEnders to The Bill and, of course, Doctor Who.

The new channels join UKTV History as the factual arm of UKTV. Launched in October 2002, UK History has kept us up with the past, with biographies of both heroes and villains, and won the Edinburgh International Television Festival New Channel of the Year Award last year.

'Its success was the trigger for the new channels,' says Charlotte Ashton, UKTV's head of factual programming. 'It is so clear in its proposition, and has been an overnight success.'

The new factual channels replace general documentary channel UK Horizons. 'We're offering two channels in place of UK Horizons, both of which have a clearer remit,' says Ashton. UKTV Documentary is 'the broadsheet' channel, a 'high-end' documentary channel, showcasing the best of British factual programming.

> 'GROWTH IN FACTUAL CHANNELS IS A REFRESHING SIGN OF A NATION THAT'S CERTAINLY NOT "DUMBING DOWN" '

Exploring the issues, themes and interests that affect us as a nation, it features a range of series from popular science and technology shows like What The Romans Did For Us and Fred Dibnah, through to more established shows like Horizon and Panorama.

'Although most of the programming is contemporary,' says Ashton, 'we are also setting aside a part of the schedule for going back into the archive for documentaries that have changed the way that people have felt.' The huge library of BBC material to call on, means UKTV Documentary can re-run the international blockbusters like The Human Body, Life On Earth and The Ascent Of Man.

Each month, UKTV Documentary follows a theme and in April it's celebrity. Each weekend programmes look at what really lies behind the glossy façade of idols.

UKTV Documentary is on Sky Digital channel 364 (with a one-hour delayed version at 365) from 9.00am to 3.00am.

UKTV People is 'the tabloid' channel. Aimed at men, it is 'cars, crime, comedy, and what we're calling "extreme people",' says Ashton. 'Here the programmes ask how fast can we go? How brave can we be? How low can we stoop?'

Here, you can catch Louis Theroux's Weird Weekend with the California porn industry, the life of the British Transport Police, Clive Anderson's Conspiracies and a look at where it all went wrong for George Best. On April 10 you can see a whole evening of Jeremy Clarkson, and April 17 is devoted to Billy Connolly's World Tour Of Australia.

UK People is on Sky Digital channel 366 from 7.00pm to 3am.

'We're offering two channels to give people a choice,' says Ashton. 'Someone who is usually a Documentary viewer might think, "I've had a hard day's work; I fancy a bit of Top Gear to unwind, so I'll go to UKTV People".'

UKTV's two new channels brings the number of factual channels from Sky Digital on Astra 28.2°E to 15 – and that's not counting those channels that mix fact and entertainment (Men & Motors) or those that follow the sensationalist angle (Reality TV).

So is this just more channels chasing the same viewers? 'We have already seen that UKTV History has grown the overall demand for factual programming; it's brought new viewers into the multi-channel marketplace.' says Ashton. 'This growth in factual channels is a refreshing sign of a nation that's certainly not "dumbing down".'

Back in 1992, some were keen to write off TV from Astra as second-rate and down-market. With 15 thought-provoking factual channels attracting a huge viewing public daily, that's a judgement that can't be levelled today ■

DAVE TAYLOR LOOKS AT XPLICIT – A NEW CHANNEL THAT IS PUSHING THE BOUNDARIES OF SATELLITE TV EROTICA

It's been only a couple of months since a change of management at the TV regulator's office. So it is very encouraging to see that a UK channel is pushing the softcore barriers ever closer to hardcore.

A channel called Xplicit has certainly ventured into uncharted territory as far as UK regulated services are concerned. It has been showing scenes with female genitalia in close-up, penetration by fingers, female masturbation, graphic oral sex performed on women, and ejaculation shots (albeit with the penis off-camera) and semi-erect penises.

It still seems to be very wary of full erections and penetration, but during a recent viewing it has shown some shots of a guy with small obscuring censor marks strategically placed. Also one or two shots have shown penetration fleetingly and partly obscured.

Xplicit is also pushing the limits with S&M. A sample viewing revealed a scene with a girl being tied at the ankles and wrists, spread-eagled and being nipple-clamped. In addition she seemed to be gagged. I am not sure what the current TV guidelines specify, but this would seem to even push the British Board of Film Classification's video R18 guidelines. These currently allow little more than mild fetish material.

A SHIFT IN STANDARDS

Xplicit is available to Sky subscribers in the UK and Ireland on channel 984. It runs nightly from 10pm to 5:30am but there is a free view promotional broadcast from 8:30pm until the encrypted service starts at 10pm. There are several subscription options: £95 annually, £8.75 monthly, or £3.95 daily with a £9 registration charge. Further details are available on its website at xplicit984.co.uk, where it also maintains a programme schedule. The channel is also very keen to add interactive facilities such as voting for forthcoming programming.

Xplicit : can the new channel help rip off the figleaves that are obscuring satellite X from ready and willing viewers?

Of course, the interesting question is how this all fits in with the views of the TV regulators. The previous regulator, the Independent Television Commission, was adamant that hardcore material as classified R18 by the BBFC was not to be allowed on satellite TV. Strictly softcore material as classified 18 by the BBFC was generally welcomed for transmission on satellite. When the guidelines were originally drafted, the ITC was happy to rely upon BBFC judgment to distinguish between softcore and hardcore, particularly as at that time the BBFC was less liberal. No doubt the arrangement also proved very cheap to implement, as the ITC did not have to consider the merits of each film transmitted.

'I'D HAZARD A GUESS THAT THE XPLICIT LEVEL OF HALFWAY BETWEEN 18 AND R18 WILL REQUIRE A RAPID STATEMENT FROM OFCOM'

However, the BBFC has shifted significantly in its views and even 18-rated art films now occasionally contain a few scenes of hardcore or penetration. This was a little bit of a dilemma for the ITC, but it basically passed the buck to the new TV regulator, Ofcom before anyone called its bluff.

Ofcom has now picked up the job of TV regulation and recently scheduled a consultation about programming standards. It will issue a document for discussion this summer and will report back by autumn. There had been no apparent indication that it was to consider the issue before this consultation. So it seems that the Xplicit broadcasting of material halfway between softcore 18 and hardcore R18 must surely be something of an unscheduled challenge for it.

I believe that Ofcom has been meeting with the BBFC so that it can learn more about where the BBFC stands on its 18 and R18 guidelines. I would hazard a guess that the Xplicit level of halfway between 18 and R18 will require a rapid statement from Ofcom.

If you would like to follow the progress of Xplicit, then I suggest that www.ofwatch.org.uk will be the site to watch. In the meantime, I hope that Xplicit does well in its brave quest for the cause of satellite X ■

Every Thursday is Lesbian Night on The Adult Channel in April.

If full-on girl/girl action is your thing, then Thursdays will satisfy your urge. It features some of the most beautiful models in the world, getting down and dirty with each other.

On April 10 it's Anal Extreme Night as the girls get down to the bottom of matters.

April 17 is Big Bang Orgy Night, with another chance to see the infamous Adult Channel show The Big Bang, which is the UK's largest female orgy ever filmed, with 40 of the channel's favourite women. Who'll be the last one standing?

April 4 is Slutty Student Night. These horny students are away from home and trying all sorts of new experiences – see just how bad they can be when left to their own devices!

A classic Television X series goes all girly in April. Don't miss the New Anal Teens – as the dominating divas probe deeply, every Thursday at 10.10pm.

UK Swingers are also back. Who says the British are reserved? A randy couple breaks all taboos as they explore the world of swinging. These adventures are all with genuine swinging couples and they invite you to watch as they swap around. From Sunday, April 18 at 10.10pm. Then there's I Love Lucy Law – and she shows why from March 4 at 11.40pm.

Confessions of a Playboy Viewer

Dave Taylor traces the development of adult satellite TV in the UK and the current broadcasting restrictions on adult entertainment programming

For me, the story of Satellite X started in December of 1980. It wasn't a dramatic vision of the future, it was just the day when I went out and bought my first video recorder. No longer would I be limited by the constraints imposed by the controllers of TV. The choice was now mine.

I subscribed to a mail order video rental service and ordered a sex comedy called Penelope Pulls It Off. It turned out to be a dire softcore romp, but what the hell, it was my choice and I wasn't daunted. Somehow, I knew that I could now vote with my wallet and things would soon improve.

And things did improve. Within six months the local video shop was doing a thriving trade in under-the-counter hardcore from the Golden Age of Porn. The genie was out of the bottle, I would spend the next couple of decades being fascinated by the determination of the British authorities to keep the bottle plugged while enjoying a freely available supply of the good stuff. Technology, information and economics would better any censorship weapon wielded by the British authorities.

The most effective and repressive legislation passed in the UK was the Video Recordings Act of 1984. This was amended in 1993 as a knee-jerk response to the tragic murder of James Bulger. The press gleefully blamed the entire tragedy on the so-called 'video nasties' and the politicians of the time were happy to jump on the bandwagon.

The Act mandated that all video material on all media was to be pre-vetted by state-appointed censors. Unsurprisingly, the Home Secretary chose the British Board of Film Classification (BBFC), which had been censoring cinema films for years. The BBFC was given extended censorship powers by allowing it to consider that videos would be viewable in the home and could potentially be viewed by those under the age of the restriction imposed on the video sale. This led to a decade in which videos were censored more strictly than cinema films.

The majority of sex films were cut massively down to very safe softcore to ensure that all videos were little stronger than family viewing. Even those with an 18 certificate. This definition of an 18 certificate would also later be adopted as the fundamental definition of what would be permitted to be broadcast by cable and satellite channels.

However, the Video Recordings Act also introduced the concept of the R18, which could only be sold in licensed sex shops. In theory, R18 videos are only censored to comply with laws of the land, such as the Obscene Publications Act and the Protection of Children Act. In practice the interpretation of what constituted an obscene publication was so strict there was very little difference between the 18 and R18 versions. The only reported differences before 1997 were that R18 videos allowed the depiction of non-explicit group sex and that slightly more gynaecological detail was permissible (according to the BBFC: outer labia in, inner labia out).

This classification would later have a profound effect on satellite censorship guidelines in that R18 films would be categorically prohibited from satellite broadcast.

Then 1990 saw the launch of analogue satellite services in the UK. The TV establishment consulted the necessary dignitaries and technologists, who between them came up with an expensive but high-quality specification of just five worthy channels. Not a hint of sex entertainment in sight.

British Satellite Broadcasting (BSB) was created to see through the vision but it was easily beaten to the draw by Sky, which set up a cheap, cheerful and rapid solution by simply programming movies, football and lots of choices. There was no particular slot for sex entertainment at launch, but the emphasis on choice suggested that it wouldn't be long coming.

The ensuing competition was overwhelmingly one-sided and BSB gave up the ghost on December 31, 1992. It was unfortunate that BSB never got well enough established to make a battle of it, as a window of opportunity for sex on TV was surely lost. Sex programming in other countries resulted from healthy competition, particularly when the smaller competitor felt that they had to use sex to steal a march on the dominant player.

'THE CHANNELS ARE PROVIDED ONLY ON PAYMENT OF A PREMIUM RATE FEE IN ADDITION TO THE COST OF SUBSCRIPTION, AND MUST BE SPECIALLY SELECTED BY THE CUSTOMER'

The first dedicated sex entertainment channel joined the Sky team in 1992.

The Adult Channel started broadcasting at a similar time to the massively famous foreign hardcore channel Red Hot Dutch. The British establishment rapidly waded in to ensure that The Adult Channel did not step out of line.

The Independent Television Commission – the TV regulator at the time – warned the Adult Channel four times within the first few months. No way was it going to be allowed to venture far from the softer than soft guidelines of the previously mentioned 18 video certificate.

By 1996, Television X (also known as The Fantasy Channel) and Playboy TV had joined the Adult Channel. The government had also dreamt up the idea of proscription to restrict the commercial viability of foreign hardcore channels.

In 1996 the issue of pornography on satellite was debated in Parliament. Iain Sproat, a minister of state at the Department of National Heritage, went on record as follows:

'The type of television material about which we are concerned falls into two distinct categories: the domestic so-called adult channels, which are licensed by the Independent Television Commission, and the channels that are receivable in the UK via satellite and transmitted from abroad by foreign broadcasters.

'There are dedicated adult channels now licensed in this country which broadcast adult erotica. Their programmes are, broadly speaking, titillation and are licensed by the ITC and are subject to its licence conditions and guidance codes.

'To prevent viewing by children, several conditions must be met by the broadcasters. The channels are provided only on payment of a premium-rate fee in addition to the cost of subscription, and must be specially selected by the customer. That is to say, they must not be offered as part of a subscription package. They are encrypted. They may show material of a more explicit nature than would be acceptable on mainstream channels, but only between the hours of 10.00pm and 5.30am.

'I am told by the ITC that channels restrict their explicit output to the hours between midnight and 5.30am and show only material that has been given an 18 certificate by the BBFC or has been edited to an equivalent standard. They cannot show the more explicit sexual material which might be granted an R18 video classification.'

The three channels were pretty stable in terms of content for a few years but the softcore restrictions proved a bit of a commercial drain on Playboy TV and it merged with The Adult Channel. Television X continued to live within the government restrictions, but never stopped suggesting that it was somehow stronger than the ITC standards that were actually allowed. Such phrases as the 'Hottest channel on British TV' are frequently bandied around, but mean little when the British guidelines state that real sex must not be shown, nor can they even give the impression that real sex is taking place.

The upgrade to digital satellite completed by 2002 enabled shared transponders and therefore a lower cost base. Several new channels took advantage of this opportunity, including Sky itself. Most new channels were based upon a pay-per-view model, with The Adult Channel and Television X both introducing a pay-per-night charge to supplement their longer-term subscription rates.

Meanwhile, the year 2000 saw the incorporation of the European Convention of Human Rights into British law and this led to the full legalisation of hardcore porn in Britain. The BBFC now classifies hardcore for sale in licensed sex shops as R18. In addition, British citizens are now free to import porn from abroad. Prohibitions on domestic mail order are keenly being debated, but there is sufficient doubt about the legality of the prohibition that mail order and internet sales are commonplace. In fact, the only place where hardcore is still prohibited is on British satellite television.

The television regulators have maintained their commitment to use the BBFC for setting the standards for satellite TV. The BBFC has marginally liberalised the 18 rating over the past couple of years but it is still steadfastly softcore and so are all the current channels available on the Sky platform.

I certainly foresee that some of the adult broadcasters will be pushing the new TV regulators this year and first out of the stalls is Xplicit. Scenes of sadomasochism and semi-erect penises have ventured way beyond the current BBFC guidelines.

Surely there will soon be a change to the current situation. After all, I have been waiting 24 years for my choice to watch hardcore on British satellite TV ■

The Rules of Attraction

Although Ofcom has replaced the ITC, it currently enforces the same guidelines as its predecessor as far as broadcasting sexual content is concerned, although this may change following a period of consultation later this year.

The guidelines are as follows:

PREMIUM SUBSCRIPTION SERVICES:

Services which are available only to adults who have actively chosen them may, between the hours of 10pm and 5.30am, include material of a more explicit nature than would be acceptable at the same time on a more broadly available service. Arrangements for subscriptions to such services, including access by the right, must include measures that ensure that the subscriber is an adult for "R18" or service refused a BBFC certificate may be shown at any time.

PAY-PER-VIEW SERVICES:

Where security mechanisms such as a PIN system or equivalent, automatically restrict access to film or programmes solely to those authorised to view, scheduled rules may be waived. The mandatory security mechanism and the safeguards that is provided for children must be clearly explained to all subscribers. It should normally be supported by a suitable billing system that enables subscribers to check all viewing and, in particular, out-of-watershed viewing. In addition providers are asked to implement a suitable film classification system, or equivalent, and to provide any additional information about programme content and reasons for any restrictions that might assist parents and other adults to judge the suitability of material for children.

'Pay-per-view channels may only show films and programmes that are acceptable on video [Ofcom] licensed services and should exercise caution in the scheduling of controversial material which may be considered unsuitable for day time showing. In particular, "adult" sex material may not be shown outside the hours set aside for "more adult material" (10pm to 5.30am).'

Will you Top-Up your TV?

Top-Up TV is hoping a cut-price subscription package can succeed where ITV Digital failed. What Satellite & Digital TV looks at the opening shot in a battle for the digital terrestrial airwaves

It's almost 18 months since Freeview took over the digital terrestrial TV airwaves, and it can only be described a runaway success, getting into more than two million homes from a base of around 800,000 and giving British TV viewers a serious third option to cable or satellite for digital TV.

Freeview's simple proposition of getting a cheap adapter – and possibly upgrading your aerial – with no ongoing subscription, has dramatically changed the perception that you have to pay for digital TV; 26 TV channels and 21 radio channels with very little fuss.

Now it's set to get complicated again. Top-Up TV is about to launch 10 subscription TV channels – including Discovery and UK Gold – alongside Freeview for just £7.99 a month.

There will be no long-term contract, unlike with Sky, cable or ITV Digital. There's a £20 one-off connection fee (£10 if you subscribe online) and if you want to stop watching, you just stop your payments and you'll be disconnected.

Top-Up TV plans to launch in March, but there's no firm date yet because of a last-minute wrangle with the BBC over the position the new channels will have in the EPG.

Initially, it will be targeting viewers who still have an old ITV Digital adapter, but these will soon be joined by dedicated decoders and compatible IDTVs.

To pick it up you'll need to be able to receive both Channel 4 and Five on Freeview, which are on the digital terrestrial multiplexes 2 and A. These still use the original 64QAM signal modulation, so the operators can squeeze in more channels per multiplex than Freeview.

Following recent power increases both multiplexes cover about 80 per cent of the population, but the 64QAM signals are more prone to interference, so viewers in fringe areas may have trouble picking them up compared with the more robust 16QAM multiplexes operated by the BBC and Freeview.

Piracy was a major issue for ITV Digital because the early version of Seca Mediaguard encryption which it used had been comprehensively hacked. Up to 500,000 pirate viewing cards for ITV Digital were believed to be in circulation; they cost you as little as £5, but cost the service some of the millions of pounds which finally lead it to go bust.

Top-Up TV will be using the latest version of Seca Mediaguard which, it says, will last at least three to five years before the hackers break it. This is actually the same version of Mediaguard used by Sky Italia to combat pirates in Italy, with great success.

Then there's the question of incentive; is it worth buying a £5 pirate card from a dodgy geezer in the pub when the full service costs just £8 a month?

WHAT BOX?

If you've got an old ITV Digital box from Nokia, Pioneer, Philips or Pace, then you'll be able to use Top-Up TV from the start.

There may be up to 800,000 of these still in use, although anecdotal evidence suggests that many have been relegated to children's bedrooms or chucked in the bin and replaced with newer Freeview adapters.

This is partly because many of the old ITV Digital boxes were out of date two years ago, and many will have reached end of their natural lifespan. While Top-Up TV won't be using them for anything intensive like interactive TV or digital text, they're still slower than the current boxes.

Top-Up TV will broadcast a software update when it launches, enabling ITV Digital box-owners to upgrade their hardware to the new encryption format.

Not surprisingly, several major manufacturers are interested in Top-Up TV, and Thomson is already committed to producing an adapter with a built-in card reader, which should be available soon after launch.

Up to 400,000 British homes are also using an integrated digital TV to pick up Freeview.

A few old Sony IDTVs, built for ITV Digital, cannot be upgraded, but the encryption on other older models will be brought up to date.

Newer IDTVs are all required by law to have a common interface slot. This means they can be upgraded with a Conditional Access Module (CAM) – a credit card-sized unit carrying the encryption technology, into which you slot your viewing card.

When your viewing card arrives you will need to scan for the new channels before you insert the card. You'll then have to perform the software update to receive Top-Up TV's new encryption technology and either wait for your card to receive an automatic activation code or call Top-Up TV to have your viewing card authorised.

COMPLEMENTARY OR CONFUSING?

Technical issues aside, many people are asking if we need a pay-TV service on digital terrestrial. After all, Freeview has proved successful precisely because it's free once you've bought the box.

The BBC clearly fears Top-Up TV will confuse viewers, and its row about programme guide numbers is because it doesn't want encrypted channels sitting alongside free channels. Top-Up TV claims this is going back on an agreement made last year with the other Freeview channels, when they decided channels should be grouped by genres like news and music.

Of course, they were only talking about free channels six months ago, and worries about compatibility with pay-TV could put off those who would just pick up an adapter in the supermarket (not to mention the easily confused staff in Dixons or Comet). The Freeview consortium certainly doesn't want to risk its chances of hitting three million or more viewers by the end of this year.

Equally, the prospect of a few extra channels with premium content you won't see for months on Freeview, for less than a tenner a month, could be the incentive some people need to take the leap into digital.

The glaring absence of Sky One will tarnish Top-Up TV for many. Sky chief James Murdoch made it clear to journalists in February that there are no plans to put Sky One on Top-Up TV, nor to make Sky Travel on Freeview any more like Sky One for the foreseeable future.

E4 offers shows like The Sopranos, The West Wing and Six Feet Under several months ahead of Channel 4, but put the latest season of ER on just a week ahead of its free-to-air showing. Discovery and Cartoon Network are obvious draws, and UK Gold is always nice to have, once you've seen what's on.

The lack of a minimum contract term will be attractive to many as well, and provided you've got a bank account or credit card you'll be able to subscribe (although Top-Up TV won't take payments by cheque).

Former ITV Digital customers will also be wary of backing another white elephant, but this shouldn't be a danger if there's any truth to Top-Up TV's claims of needing just 300,000 subscribers to break even. The most hardened cynic would find it hard to predict this level won't be reached.

Ian West, one of the founders of Top-Up TV and a former executive at Sky, believes some of the channels on Freeview will be forced into pay-TV because there isn't enough advertising to sustain so many.

He added: 'The BBC are slightly naïve in thinking that because their channels don't need advertising, all these other channels can survive on advertising and low market penetration.

'Look at the last few channels which have joined Freeview – they're all shopping channels – because there isn't enough interest to run an entertainment channel on [it]. None of those channels have approached us yet, but I can see the day when channels like Ftn will need the revenue from subscribers' ■

the memory game

CIA agent and mistress of disguise Sydney Bristow (Jennifer Garner) returns with a new mission. Elise Harris follows the clues

This year's Alias has a curious setup. If you've been watching the first few episodes you'll know that Vaughn has been sent to pick up Sydney from a drug den in Hong Kong. He reveals that Syd has been missing for two years – and she hasn't got a clue where she's been, or what she's been doing. Everyone assumed she was dead.

Once it has been established Vaughn is who he says he is, and Sydney is as alive as she's ever going to be, the plot starts to get even more complicated.

Things have changed in the time she's been missing. Dixon (Carl Lumbly) is the new agency boss, and Syd's one true love, Vaughn (Michael Vartan) is no longer available – and he isn't working for the secret service anymore, either. Syd's dad Jack (Victor Garber) is in prison and the shady Sloane (Ron Rifkin) is now working as a consultant with the CIA. There is still no sign of the missing Will (Bradley Cooper).

Syd's big mission in this series is to find out where on Earth she's been all this time. You can put money on it involving lots of wigs and changes of clothing. There are clues scattered throughout – but it's all a big mystery. Jack has a vague idea; he managed to get hold of video footage of Syd in a blonde wig, stabbing a Russian politician – which is why he knew she was alive. He worked with Syd's mother (played in the last series by Lena Olin) to try to find out more – the reason he ended up in jail.

Was Syd working for the enemy? And why can't she remember? Who is the enemy now, anyway? A shadowy organisation called The Covenant may play a part.

The biggest change this year is that the show is on Bravo, rather than Sky. Jennifer Garner's salary for the new series has reportedly sky-rocketed – and she has dumped her husband-to-be and taken up with co-star Michael Vartan in real life.

The new series is set to feature many guest stars – including a return appearance from Quentin Tarantino, a rare acting role for David Cronenberg (director of The Fly and The Naked Lunch), and cameos from Isabella Rossellini, Griffin Dunne and Golden Globe-winning Ricky (The Office) Gervais. Maybe he'll even do the David Brent dance ■

Episode Guide Spoilers ahead

THE TWO
Syd returns to the US and the NSC and tries to get her life back together. Where has she been all this time? She pretends to remember being held captive in a French warehouse to regain CIA security clearance and to try to get her father freed from jail.

SUCCESSION
Sydney continues to search for clues about the missing two years. She visits Sark (David Anders) in jail. Jack is highly suspicious of Sloane's new peace project and Vaughn decides to return as an operative. Syd discovers what happened to Will and her mother (he is in the witness protection programme, and she is still alive).

REUNION
Sydney and Vaughn are reunited as a team.

A MISSING LINK
Sydney meets Simon Walker (Justin Theroux), who may have some information about the last two years. Vaughn's marriage to Lauren is under strain – which could directly affect Syd.

REPERCUSSIONS
Vaughn's marriage is in jeopardy – Lauren thinks Sydney is partly responsible. Meanwhile, Sydney is still suspicious of Sloane. Jack gets in trouble when he tries to find more clues about Sydney's disappearance.

THE NEMESIS
Sydney meets a key member of The Covenant, Allison (Merrin Dungey) – who looks remarkably like Francie (who was presumed dead in season two). Sydney is told to look after Sloane.

PRELUDE
Lauren gets closer to the truth about Sydney. Sydney begrudgingly agrees to go on a mission with Sloane.

BREAKING POINT
Sydney is taken into custody by the NSC, and threatened with electro-shock treatment. Jack, Vaughn and Sloane band together with freelance operative Brill (Richard Roundtree, Shaft) to rescue her.

CONSCIOUS
Syd agrees to let Dr Brezzel (David Cronenberg) perform the experimental electro-shock therapy – designed to help her remember. Her brain proves surprisingly resistant to the procedure.

REMNANTS
Syd pulls Will out of the witness protection program. The two of them encounter Allison again. Lindsey plans to get rid of Sydney.

FULL DISCLOSURE

CROSSINGS
Sydney and Vaughn face a firing squad. Jack tries to free the pair – he contacts a mysterious woman (Isabella Rossellini) with close ties to Irina. She agrees to help if, in turn, Jack agrees to assassinate Sloane.

AFTER SIX
Syd and Vaughn discover that high-ranking Covenant members are being murdered, They are sent after the Doleac Agenda. Marshall (Kevin Weisman) and his pregnant girlfriend get married. Quentin Tarantino returns as McKenas Cole, and Vivica Fox is Toni Cummings.

BLOWBACK
Unknown assailants ambush Sydney and Vaughn while they try to retrieve a bomb. Sloane tells Dr Barnett a dark secret.

FAÇADE
The one you've been waiting for. Ricky Gervais guest stars as bomb-maker Daniel Ryan. Sydney and Vaughn pretend to be members of The Covenant to try and find out where he has hidden one of his devices.

Viva Las Vegas

Sky One has taken a gamble on new series Las Vegas. Elise Harris takes a look at the glamour and intrigue

It's been a long time since there's been a really shiny soap opera on TV – the sort that focuses on rich and beautiful people.

The characters in Las Vegas are not, in the main, independently wealthy. They have jobs, and don't tend to own the casinos and hotels where they work – but their jobs and lifestyles are still beyond the dreams of most of those watching.

Like Dallas it's named after a place – whereas the name 'Dallas' immediately conjured up mental pictures of gruff men in stetsons riding steers across plains spurting with oil geysers, Las Vegas is synonymous with gambling, with a sprinkling of sex and showbiz and a massive dollop of corruption. Dynasty (set in Denver, Colorado) was not named after a place – but it's one of Las Vegas's antecedents.

It stars James Caan as Big Ed Deline, ex-CIA agent, now head of security at one of most prestigious casinos in Vegas.

Dallas had Pam and mad-eyed Sue Ellen; Dynasty had cynical Alexis and doe-eyed Krystle. Las Vegas has 1970s pin-up Cheryl Ladd as Big Ed's wife, Jillian.

The show promises to be star-studded and glamorous. Guests include Paul Anka and Jean-Claude Van Damme (as themselves) as well as society girl Paris Hilton, Alec Baldwin, Dennis Hopper and ex-hobbit Sean Astin in character parts.

The hair was biggest in Dynasty – but it's blondest in Las Vegas. Many of the female cast members were brunettes in early publicity shots. By the time the show aired they were peroxided within an inch of their scalps. The only woman who seems to have escaped the bleach is British actress Marsha Thomason, who plays pit boss Nessa Holt.

Although there is a story arc, it's mainly episodic rather than ongoing, with new situations and characters introduced weekly. The casino/hotel setting paves the way for almost unlimited storylines (rather like the Love Boat with more sleaze or Hotel with more excitement). There are also some fantasy elements – Van Damme plays himself, but his fate in the episode is not shared by the real-life actor. Unless Hollywood has found some way to make real-life snuff movies undercover ■

Las Vegas starts on Sky One this April

The Beautiful People

James Caan – Big Ed Deline
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Jock Ewing with a sprinkling of JR.
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: Blake Carrington

Cheryl Ladd – Jillian Deline
Big Ed's wife, mostly stays in the background looking pretty and vaguely regal.
Nearest Dallas equivalent: A younger Miss Ellie or a slightly more sane Sue Ellen

(Linda Gray)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: Krystle

Molly Sims – Delinda Deline
Big Ed's daughter. Very skinny, very, very blonde. Extremely shiny.
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Lucy Ewing

'LAS VEGAS IS SYNONYMOUS WITH GAMBLING, WITH A SPRINKLING OF SEX AND SHOWBIZ AND A MASSIVE DOLLOP OF CORRUPTION'

Josh Duhamel – Danny McCoy
Big Ed's protégé – and he's secretly sleeping with the boss' daughter.
Nearest Dallas equivalent – Bobby Ewing (Patrick Duffy)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent – Miles Colby (Maxwell Caulfield)

James Lesure – Mike Cannon
Hotel valet and mechanical engineer
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Ray Krebbs (Steve Kanaly)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: Brady Lloyd (Billy Dee Williams)

Nikki Cox – Mary Connell
Childhood confidant and ally to Danny McCoy.
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Afton Cooper (Audrey Landers)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: Sammi Jo (Heather Locklear)

Marsha Thomason – Nessa Holt
Pit boss and 'ice-queen', played by British actress Marsha Thomason (Burn It and Pie In The Sky).
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Jenna Wade (Priscilla Presley)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: a cross between Dominique Devereaux (Diahann Carroll) and Fallon Carrington-Colby (Emma Samms or Pamela Sue Martin)

Vanessa Marcil – Samantha 'Sam' Jane
Wheeling and dealing, spoilt girl who is ever-so-slightly mad.
Nearest Dallas equivalent: Pam (Victoria Principal)
Nearest Dynasty equivalent: Alexis (Joan Collins). Except a lot younger, blonde and American. Not much like her at all, in fact.

Sky high

For the past 10 years Kay Burley has been the mainstay of Sky News. Elise Harris asked her about the changes she's seen during her tenure

Sky News celebrates its 15th anniversary this year – and it's difficult to imagine the channel without Kay Burley.

She has certainly made an impression on Wotsat readers; Kay was voted sexiest female for three years running in the Readers' Poll. She says: 'Once is a fluke, three times is a definite run of form. I was flattered. My little boy Alexander – now 10 – was embarrassed.'

Kay first joined Sky News back in November 1988. The channel was three months away from going on air and had only six staff. It was a challenge, she says. 'The studios were building sites and we had potholes the size of double-decker buses in the car park. Very long hours and a quickly growing, dedicated team of journalists meant that we did make it to air on time – though there were moments when we thought that might not be possible.'

She says that in the early days everyone worked extra-hard to establish Sky News, Europe's first dedicated 24-hour news channel.

'It took us 10 years to become an overnight success, but eventually the establishment began to appreciate our energy and determination and the awards began to flood in. Now politicians, including the Prime Minister, agree that when there's a breaking story they turn to Sky News first.'

Nowadays, Sky News employs more than 350 dedicated staff worldwide, based at the Sky News Centre in London and around the world. Its award-winning team of correspondents include Andrew Wilson and Ian Woods reporting from Washington, DC, Middle East correspondent Emma Hurd based in Jerusalem, Moscow correspondent Laurence Lee, Asia correspondent Richard Bestic, Africa correspondent Stuart Ramsay based in Johannesburg, Colin Brazier based in Brussels, and foreign affairs editor Tim Marshall.

Alongside Kay, studio anchors include Jeremy Thompson, Julie Etchingham and Martin Stanford.

ALL THE NEWS – AS IT HAPPENS

But it isn't just the journalistic expertise that is celebrated. The introduction of Sky News Active, the world's first interactive television news service, has revolutionised the way news is watched.

Two stories have affected Kay deeply during her Sky career – the death of Diana, Princess of Wales, and the World Trade Centre disaster.

'I was on air for both and as events unfolded it became increasingly challenging to remain detached and professional,' she says.

'With Diana, I had been called into the office after reports that she had been injured in a car crash but was thought to be fine. It soon became clear that the situation was much worse and within an hour the announcement was made that the princess had died. We were the same age and both mothers. I felt deeply sorry for her young sons and the image of a very small but brave Prince Harry walking behind his mother's coffin will stay with me for a long time.

On September 11, Kay was already in the studio when the first plane crashed into the North Tower and was commentating live when the second plane hit.

'As events unfolded, it became increasingly unbelievable. Eight hours later I left the studio and rang my little boy to tell him what had happened. It was a challenge to stay calm and focused when so many people lost their lives in such a terrifying way. The memory of what happened that day I'm sure is still very fresh in everyone's mind.'

'THE INTRODUCTION OF SKY NEWS ACTIVE, THE WORLD'S FIRST INTERACTIVE TELEVISION NEWS SERVICE, HAS REVOLUTIONISED THE WAY NEWS IS WATCHED'

Since she has been with Sky News, Kay has interviewed many notable personages. She says Michael Heseltine was a challenge.

'He had a habit of answering first questions with a "yes" or "no", definitely putting a cub presenter off her stride. I learned to box a little more clever when I was interviewing him.

She was also very struck by legendary actor and boozer Oliver Reed.

'He came into the studio to talk about his new single, Wild Thing. He was, of course, a little more relaxed than the rest of us. During the interview, he turned to me and said "can you shake your funky stuff at me, red thing?" I was eight months pregnant at the time.'

She refutes the idea it's harder for a woman to make it in broadcast journalism.

'It's challenging for both sexes and there's always someone very keen to step into your shoes. Keeping focused and looking as presentable as possible is the key.'

However, she admits it is sometimes hard combining family life and professional commitments.

'There are a lot of balls to keep in the air and sometimes you drop one. Even Cherie Blair admits it can be tough. The key is a good support network and I have the best.'

Kay is fairly confident that Sky News will continue to be successful over the next 10 years, and she hopes to be a part of its next phase of development.

'Picture the scene, if you will... Bafta television awards ceremony 2014 at the Palladium in central London and the presenter saying "and winner of breaking news story of the year, for the 10th year running is Sky News". I'll be delighted to collect it on behalf of the channel' ■

Technomate has a strong line of receivers. For example one of our receivers, the TM-5000D has been reviewed the best value satellite receiver seen for years in "What Satellite & Digital TV" Magazine - January 2003. Furthermore, the updated TM-5500D model has had a review in "What Satellite & Digital TV" magazine - December 2003. All of our receivers are based on the TM-5000D/TM-5500D with extra features.

"The Budget Satellite Champion"

The TM-5500 D model has many new features, including optical digital audio output with Digital 5.1 support, SVHS, new remote, extra flash memory and a low-threshold tuner. Other extras include a Full Auto Navigation System and a Diseqc motorised display satellite locking system. There has been an increase in tuning speed and channel change with storage for up to 5000 channels and 130 satellites.

What Satellite & Digital TV magazine commented that:

'The TM-5000D offers the best value for money we've seen for years . . Low-price, lots of features, easy to use . . . If something is cheap and cheerful it often means that corners have been cut, but all the Technomate TM-5000D's important little places seem to be present and correct" What Satellite & Digital TV January 2003

'Fully featured USALS receiver, competitive price . . . Audio output is also very satisfying" What Satellite & Digital TV December 2003

Sky Digital

EVERYTHING YOU EVER WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT RECEIVING AND SUBSCRIBING

How to get Sky Digital

The easiest way to get Sky Digital is to call Sky on 08702 404040, pick your package using the table opposite, and book an installation. You must have a Digibox to get Sky Digital. The Sky Digibox receiver and mini-dish are free, although non-subscribers must pay a £120 installation charge. Otherwise, installation costs £50 if you take the top Sky World package, or £70 if you take any other package.

If you'd prefer to see a demo before you buy, see an independent satellite dealer or high street electrical shop. The likes of Dixons just pass on your details to Sky's installers, but if you visit an independent, you'll also be able to assess the people who'll fit the system.

It's possible to buy the mini-dish and Digibox outright for about £299 to avoid any contractual obligations to Sky, but you'll have to do this through an independent dealer.

Sky prefers to be paid by direct debit or a standing credit card order. If you choose to pay by cheque, there's a monthly surcharge of £4.

Watching the BBC, ITV, Channel 4, and Five by satellite

All BBC channels, including regional variations, are free-to-air and can be picked up by anyone in the UK with any digital satellite receiver and a 60cm-plus dish in diameter pointed at Astra 2D. Obtaining a free Digibox and mini-dish from Sky and paying the £120 installation fee for non-subscribers can get you all of the BBC channels as well as many other FTA channels. ITV1, Channel 4, and Five remain encrypted and currently only available to those with a subscription viewing card (including lapsed subscribers) or those with a free-to-air card (no longer obtainable).
ITV2 is only available to Sky subscribers.

The Sky Digital small print

The Sky Digital contract you sign contains rules you must adhere to. Remember the following:
CONNECTION: You must keep your Digibox connected to your dish, mains power and a working phone line in the UK or Irish Republic for the first 12 months of your contract. If you don't, Sky could block your viewing card or demand you pay the value of their subsidies, currently £220.
CHANGING CHANNELS: You can alter your subscription package at any time, but you must take it for at least a month before changing again.
CANCELLATION: Sky requires a month's notice for cancellation, but since you can't cancel until the end of the first year, you'll actually pay for a minimum of 13 months.

Box Office films and pay-per-view events

These are ordered using the Box Office button on your Sky Digital remote. You'll need to give your PIN number (the last four digits of the customer number on your viewing card). All films are now Multiplay – you can watch them as many times as you like for a day after your purchase, though in Sky's case this day ends at 6am.

Sky Plus – the premium choice

Sky Plus is a next-generation Sky Digibox, with two tuners and a PC-style hard disc drive. It can record the satellite signal direct to the hard disc with no loss of quality, and holds 30 hours of material on average. The twin tuners allow you to record on one channel while watching another, or two channels at the same time and you can also pause live TV, and fast-forward or reverse at up to 30 times' normal speed.
Sky Plus costs £199 and requires a £10 monthly subscription to use its extra features (waived if you subscribe to two or more Premium channels), along with £50 to install a quad-output LNB on your dish.

Sky in more than one room

Every Sky Digibox has two UHF outputs, and a second TV in another room can be connected to one of these, along with a Remote Link (£10) which allows you to change channels from the second room. Alternatively, you can buy a wireless Videosender for £60-£100, which will send a high quality picture and stereo audio up to 30m indoors and relay remote commands back to the Digibox. But if you want to watch two different channels in different rooms you'll have to buy a second Digibox for £99 (direct from Sky, or shop around for less), plus £50 to upgrade to a quad-output LNB. The second Digibox can be watched with a second subscription card costing £15/month.

Choosing your Digibox

The only way to choose which model of Digibox you one is to buy through an independent dealer or secondhand. Dixons allows you to state a preference, and Sky In-Home Services won't offer a choice of receivers.

Extra and secret channels

There are no secret channels hidden by Sky as a treat for those in the know. However, subscribers can add extra ITV regions using the Add New Channels feature in the Services menu on 10.832GHz/H, 10.892GHz/H, and 10.906GHz/V (all SR 22000, FEC 5/6). New channels usually test for some time before joining the EPG, but if you find out the frequencies you can tune these in manually. There are also a dozen or so foreign channels on Eurobird that are too weak to be picked up with the mini-dish and which use odd symbol rates the Digibox cannot read.

Foreign channels

The old Sky analogue service shared the Astra 1 satellites at 19.2°E with dozens of German channels. Sky Digital broadcasts from Astra 2, 28.2°E, and Eurobird, 28.5°E, each developed to give the UK a very large digital satellite capacity. There are no mainland European channels available through the basic free-to-air Sky Digital system but there are several Asian and Arabic services.

Sky Digital in Europe

Sky can't officially sell subscriptions to anyone living outside the UK or Irish Republic, and it is technically fraud to claim you're living in the UK or the Irish Republic to obtain a viewing card. Legalities aside, thousands abroad use their friends/relatives' addresses, and there's a profitable industry using real and bogus UK addresses to get viewing cards which are sold round Europe at a premium.
Reception is a problem outside the UK, particularly for BBC channels. You'll need a far larger dish to get reliable reception, but reportedly, people as far away as Egypt and Morocco pick up Sky Digital.

Free-to-air channels from abroad

There are dozens of broadcast TV satellites orbiting over Europe, beaming thousands of free and encrypted channels, although only Astra 2 and Eurobird (at the 28.2°E/28.5°E position) can be picked up with the Sky Digital mini-dish and Digibox.

Two of the most important positions are Astra 1 at 19.2°E and Hot Bird at 13°E.

A 60cm dish can be used to pick up more than 60 free TV channels from Astra, while a 70cm dish will bag well over a hundred free signals from Hot Bird. The Sky Digibox has a limited symbol rate range (just 22000 or 27500), so we recommend buying a dedicated free-to-air receiver if you enjoy what you find.

The Digibox is also useless for watching encrypted channels from any foreign broadcaster, which will require a specialised receiver.

ARIRANG TV WORLD 1

LOCATION: Hot Bird 13°E
FREQUENCY: 12.207GHz/H, 22000, FEC 3/4
PROFILE: 'Bringing you the best of Korean TV', 24 hours a day, the channel includes a variety of family-oriented offerings in the form of films, sporting events, news, travels, soaps and animation.
Includes English language as well as subtitled (English/Chinese) programming.

Sky prices and packages

There are six Sky Entertainment packages to meet different tastes and budgets, but the most common is the Family pack, which contains everything except the Sky Premium channels and the stand-alone Premium channels, and costs £19.50 a month.

- The Value Pack (£13.50/month) contains Sky One, Sky News, Discovery Home & Leisure, Bloomberg, and 10 Music Choice audio channels. For viewers interested in the Irish Republic, it also contains RTE One, Network 2 and TG4.
- The Popular Mix pack (£16.50/month) provides Discovery, Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, Fox Kids, Paramount, UK Gold, National Geographic, Living and the Value Pack channels.
- The Knowledge Pack (£16.50/month) provides Discovery, National Geographic, History, CNBC, UK Horizons, Animal Planet and the Value Pack channels.
- The Kids And Music Pack (£16.50/month) provides The Box, Cartoon Network, Fox Kids, MTV, MTV2, MTV Base, MTV Hits, Nickelodeon, Trouble, VH-1, VH-1 Classic, and the Value Pack channels.
- The Lifestyle Pack (£16.50/month) provides Bravo, Challenge, Men & Motors, Granada Plus, UK Drama, UK Style, Trouble and the Value Pack channels.

Note: Several channels have one-hour timeshift channels which we have not listed for reasons of space.

Sky premium channels

You can add the Sky premium channels Sky Sports 1 and 2 (together known as Sky Sports World), Sky Movies Premier and Sky Movies Max (together Sky Movie World) to any of the Entertainment packs. All four Sky premium channels are known as Sky World. With the Family Pack, these cost:

- Sky Movie World, £34
- Sky Sports 1 or 2, £27.50
- Sky Sports World, £33
- Sky World, £40
- Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £27

- Sky Sports 2, Sky Movies (screens 1, 3, 5, 7, 9), £33
- Sky Sports 1, Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £29
- Sky Sports 2, Sky Movies (screens 2, 4, 6, 8), £29

Bonus channels

Subscribers to Sky Sports World get Sky Sports 3 and Sky Sports Xtra free. Subscribers to Sky Movie World get Sky Cinema and the Disney mini-package free.

Stand-alone premium channels

You can add several extra channels to your Sky channel selection at the monthly rates below:

- Adult & Playboy TV, £7.99
- Artsworld, £6
- Chelsea TV, £6
- Disney (Disney Channel, Playhouse Disney & Toon Disney), £5
- Film Four, £7
- MUTV, £6
- Music Choice Extra, £5
- Star TV (Star Plus & Star News), £12
- Television X, £7.99
- Sky Sports Xtra, £6

Free channels

All BBC channels are free-to-air on Astra 2D, including regional variations. If you subscribe to Sky, any ITV region can be added using the Add New Channels dialogue box in the Digibox's Services menu. There are currently over 40 FTA digital TV channels and more than 50 radio channels from Astra 2 and Eurobird which can be picked up using a Sky Digital system without a viewing card. For frequencies see Channel Check.

AMERICAN PIE: THE WEDDING

SKY BOX OFFICE

In the final (for now) of the gourmet comic trilogy, the lovable and permanently startled-looking Jim (Jason Biggs) and former flute-playing lame-ass Michelle (Alyson Hannigan) have decided to get married.

And as if Jim doesn't have enough, his old-Finch (Eddie Kaye Thomas) and Stifler (Thomas Ian Nicholas) are in the proceedings. But the bride's uncle and help when the permanently revolting Steve Stifler is [illegible] William Scott, who's his sort-of. Obviously, his main interest is orchestrating a fabulous stag night. Meanwhile, Michelle's pretty younger sister Cadence (Jewel Staite) quickly becomes the object of lust for both Finch and Stifler. Who'll win her heart – and do we really care? And how many times will Jim and Michelle get down the aisle? Well, plenty.

Blending bawdiness with a dash of cinema, American Wedding is funnier than the first sequel, yet [illegible] the first two film. [illegible] in creator/screenwriter Adam Herz's love for his characters. The film begins with a [illegible] and keeps the edgeyness running. People is involved, but where there's a wedding, there's a cake.

Biggs and Scott are the mainstays of the ensemble cast, but comedy veterans Eugene Levy (Jim's impressive father) and Fred Willard (Michelle's [illegible]) [illegible] to a degree the movie is [illegible] Levy's [illegible] with furries on it is a gross because [illegible] Hollywood fare. It's [illegible] the [illegible] year-olds who dominate the movie going public in the US. Still, it will please almost [illegible] American kids [illegible] the degree of [illegible]

TV Choices

A CLOCKWORK ORANGE

Film Four, Midnight
Director Stanley Kubrick successfully suppressed this until his death, so it's still not widely seen. The film is sandwiched between two more films starring Malcolm McDowell – Lindsay Anderson's If... (10pm) and O Lucky Man! (2.15am).

THE MATRIX RELOADED

Sky Box Office, every 30 minutes
Hugely disappointing sequel to the 1999 original. Where The Matrix was groundbreaking and trend-setting, this is derivative and pretentious. Not anywhere near as clever as it thinks it is. Keanu Reeves stars.

Sky One, 9pm
It's 9pm and, ooh, it's getting tense. Jack and the Salazars learn they have a rival in the auction for the virus – and all this time Chase is being tortured by the Salazars' men. Kim and Michelle realise Tony may not be fit for duty.

THE CRYING GAME

Film Four, 10.25pm
Mixing gender, crime and politics to great effect, Neil Jordan's almost-sequel to Mona Lisa has many of the same themes and obsessions. Jaye Davidson and Stephen Rea star alongside a wonky-accented Miranda Richardson.

DAVID CROFT COMEDY DAY

UKTV Gold, 9.40am

They may be dated and cheesy now, but for many years the comedies of David Croft and Jimmy Perry were dominant. Dad's Army, Are You Being Served?, It Ain't Half Hot Mum (pictured), 'Allo 'Allo, Hi-De-Hi – all David Croft's fault.

DEADLY ARTS: AIKIDO

TV Choices

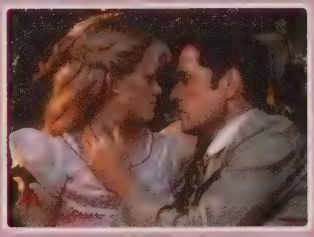
MALCOLM IN THE MIDDLE

Sky One, 7pm
Start of the fifth series of the hilarious and sometimes fairly shocking family comedy. Will the new baby affect the dynamic? Reese is the true middle-child now, and Dewey isn't the youngest anymore – will he crave more attention?



THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST

Sky Movies 1, 7pm
Remake of the Oscar Wilde play. The cast is mostly effective, but this is no more innovative than the 1952 version, so what's the point? Reese Witherspoon and Rupert Everett steal the show.

TV Choices

SMALLVILLE

E4, 9pm
Lex hasn't been himself lately, especially now that most of his comic-book back-story has been given to his dad Lionel. This week is more of a Jonathan-centric episode – he's in hospital on the brink of death. Can Clark save the day?

ANCIENT EPICS

UKTV History, 3pm
Dramatic reconstruction, location shooting and CGI bring ancient history to life. Pyramid reveals the secrets of Egyptian architecture. Pompeii – The Last Day (above) and Colosseum – Rome's Arena explore aspects of the Roman Empire.

TV Choices

2 FAST 2 FURIOUS

Sky Box Office, every 15 minutes
No Vin Diesel in this sequel, but Paul Walker is still doing his blond Keanu and there's just as much (if not more) homo-eroticism between Walker and co-star Tyrese. Eva Mendes provides a little oestrogen.

WILL & GRACE

LivingTV, 9pm
Jack (Sean Hayes) discovers his calling – as a student nurse – and begs Will and Grace to help fund his dream. They don't think he's serious. Meanwhile, Karen (Megan Mullally) gets a physical from an unorthodox doctor (Jack Black).

TV Choices

DARKNESS FALLS

Front Row, every 45 minutes
Emma Caulfield (Anya from Buffy) stars in this quirky horror based on a story by comic-book writer Joe Harris.
The town of Darkness Falls is haunted by a vengeful spirit known as the Tooth Fairy.

JONATHAN CREEK

UKTV Gold, 9pm
Back to one of the old episodes, with sexual tension between Jonathan and Maddie, and not too much cynicism. A cosmetic surgeon is found murdered at his Harley Street clinic. Alan Davies and Caroline Quentin star.

BOAT TRIP

Sky Movie 1, 8pm

Dopey, mildly offensive comedy starring Cuba Gooding Jr. Best friends Jerry and Nick offend a travel agent and end up on a gay cruise (of the boating variety). Roger Moore and Horatio Sanz co-star.

PENN AND TELLER WEEKEND

FX, 10.35pm

The big, brash illusionist and his silent companion expose more frauds and trickery, revealing the workings of charlatans everywhere. They maintain that there is no such thing as real magic in the world, which is sort of a shame.

SHAKESPEARE WEEK

UKTV History, 10pm
Michael Wood, historian and presenter of In Search Of Shakespeare, fronts a week-long celebration of the bard's remarkable, if slightly hazy, life. Also showing – Great Historical Britons: Shakespeare.

JEEPERS CREEPERS II

Front Row, every 60 minutes
Every 23 years a creature rises to eat humans and collect body parts. This time its victims are a bus-load of jocks and cheerleaders – so nobody will be very sad to see them go. As gruesome and gory as you would expect.

TV Choices

JACK NICHOLSON NIGHT

Sky Cinema 1, 6.30pm
Showing in the Legends strand – Jack Nicholson stars in The Border and The Shining and makes an early characteristically freaky appearance in Roger Corman's The Little Shop Of Horrors (the part played by Bill Murray in the musical).

KATH AND KIM

LivingTV, 10pm
It was a big hit on FTN (although FTN is hardly a massive hit itself) now the quirky Australian comedy establishes itself on LivingTV. Some of the humour doesn't translate to Britain all that well, but it's mostly funny enough.

SWEET DREAMS

Hallmark, 9pm
Tiffani-Amber Thiessen (Saved By The Bell) stars as a girl who comes out of a coma to find her world has changed – and she's sure someone is out to get her. Mildly diverting woman-in-peril thriller.

PAUL ROSEBY DAY

UKTV Bright Ideas, throughout the day UKTV esteems Paul Roseby enough to have a whole weekend dedicated to his programmes. Showing are Fab Pads, Weekend Away and Flavours Of Britain. One wonders what the spiky-haired presenter has done to be so honoured.

HITLER WEEK

UKTV History, 10pm
If Hitler hadn't invaded so many nations and committed such atrocities the world would no doubt be a better place – but what would all the documentary channels make programmes about? More Egyptians and Elizabethans, probably.

AMERICAN PIE: THE WEDDING

Front Row, every 30 minutes
Jim (Jason Biggs) and his flute-playing girlfriend Michelle (Alyson Hannigan) tie the knot – their embarrassing families and friends provide all manner of unpleasantness and low humour. Eugene Levy and Seann William Scott co-star.

TV Choices

CASABLANCA NIGHT

TCM, from 7pm
Two documentaries – Bacall on Bogart and Casablanca: You Must Remember This, followed by the classic film itself at 9pm. Which is the real love story at the heart of it, anyway – Rick and Ilsa, Victor and Ilsa, or Rick and Louis?

SHARPE

UKTV Gold, 9pm
Sean Bean – rugged and handsome and loved by ladies everywhere – stars as gallant soldier Richard Sharpe. This episode he's on a dangerous mission to protect the identity of Wellington's master-spy 'El Mirador'. Ooh, he's so dashing.

TV Choices

MISS MATCH

LivingTV, 10pm

Clueless star Alicia Silverstone plays a young divorce lawyer who uses her free time to match-make. Ryan O'Neal co-stars. It's good to see Silverstone and O'Neal in regular, fairly high-profile employment.

SUSHI TV

FTN, 9pm

Julian Clary presents this comedy clip-show focusing on Japanese TV and its extremes. The camp comedian's career is a little on the wane, but he can still be relied upon to provide suitable innuendo and an arch approach.

OLIVER REED: LIVING FAMOUSLY

UKTV People, 10.40pm
The life of notorious hard drinker and lech Oliver Reed overshadowed his acting career. He died while making Gladiator – just after beating five young sailors at arm-wrestling. Caroline Quentin narrates this affectionate biography.

COLD CASE

Sky One, 10pm
More unsolved cases explored. Detective Stillman is still haunted by the unsolved case of an eight-year-old boy who was murdered in 1980. He asks Lilly (Kathryn Morris) to investigate. First glimpse of Lilly's apartment this week.

Turn your video projector, CRT, LCD or plasma display into a true multimedia centre – use the PV105 to link it to a DVD player, VCR, camcorder, games console or satellite receiver, or to watch TV on it. No PC required. Incorporates a line doubler to increase brightness and reduce flicker with 480p line resolution output at 31.5kHz on a VGA or LCD monitor. Inputs: RF (satellite or cable), S-video, composite video, VGA (15 pin D type connector), stereo audio. Outputs supported: VGA (640x480), SVGA (800x600) and XGA (1024x768) via 15 pin D type connector. IR remote, UK mains adaptor included [PV105] £109.00

NEW Plus model with all features as above plus Nicam stereo, Teletext and channel re-order [PROVP] £149.00

"The digital TV landscape is being redefined."

Chief Executive Officer,
Fusion Digital Technology Ltd
Stand D12 at Mediacast 2004

Broadcasters, cable operators and consumers are now realising the many benefits of personal video recorder products as they maximise the viewing experience and assist in building customer loyalty. Barry Rubery of Fusion Digital Technology believes this will have a lasting impact on how media is consumed.

He sees the integration of hard disk technology with digital set top boxes as a revolutionary move forward for the industry and believes it will create a plethora of opportunities for both broadcasters and consumers alike. At Mediacast he'll be talking about how different organisations can capitalise on this.

Come to Mediacast and learn from Barry how the shape of the digital TV market is changing forever.

Visit www.mediacast.net to pre-register for the free exhibition and conference.

BLASTS FROM THE PAST

Over the years What Satellite & Digital TV has tested more satellite receivers, decoders, dishes and home cinema gear than you can shake a stick at.

If you've missed that vital test, or want to upgrade your system, our Test Reprint service can provide you with a photocopy of any article from What Satellite & Digital TV since its inception.

The date of testing for current equipment can be found in the Buyers' Guide.

To order, fill in the coupon, adding details of your requirements, enclose a cheque or postal order for £3 per reprint (made payable to Highbury Entertainment London) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send it to What Satellite & Digital TV Reprints, Highbury Entertainment London, Unit 601, Highgate Studio, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW. Please allow 28 days for delivery.

For orders outside the UK, the price is £4.00 (sterling cheque), which includes the return postage.

Exclusive to What Satellite & Digital TV readers! Three publications for satellite TV enthusiasts at a very special price

Digital Satellite TV

Evolved from the famous Ku-band Satellite TV series of books, this 486-page tome is crammed full of background information, and technical details on all aspects of satellite TV – both digital and analogue – with pretty much everything you need in the way of theory, installation and troubleshooting of satellite systems. An indispensable guide to satellite TV technology.

UK £36 • Rest of Europe £42 • Worldwide £47

Classic Black Book

The 'bible' of the black art of signal security, European Scrambling Systems is principally concerned with analogue scrambling systems, but is still of interest today to anyone interested in how scrambling and encryption systems are set up and knocked down by illicit 'hackers'. This 576-page book is packed with technical data, circuit diagrams, software listings, tables and photos with details on hacks of scrambling systems for PAL, Mac and the DirecTV DSS American digital network.

SatMaps Footprints CD-Rom

On CD-Rom for both PC and Mac, SatMaps is a simple collection of satellite footprints – essential to work out which signals you can receive with your dish. Place the disc in your computer, double-click on an icon and away you go. Each footprint can be viewed, printed or downloaded for use in other software. From Afristar to Turksat, over 600 footprints of broadcast satellites around the world are here. SatMaps requires either Microsoft Internet Explorer or Netscape Communicator installed as the default internet application in your computer.

UK, Europe and Rest of World £29

Hailing Hutton: The Hutton report arrives at the Royal Courts of Justice to the relief of Prime Minister Tony Blair on the Sky News feed, pictures via W2 at 10°E

Bombers step up terror

ROGER BUNNEY SEARCHES THE SKIES EVERY MONTH FOR SIGHTINGS AND NEWS SNIPPETS FOR MOTORISED DISH ENTHUSIASTS

February 1 saw violence across the Middle East. Pilgrims died in the midst of Hajj during the traditional stoning of the 'devil pillar'. Saudi TV always carries extensive coverage of the Islamic ceremonies and presented impressive images live into the TV channels of the Middle East. The Arabsat 26°E bouquet at 11.747GHz/H (SR 27500, FEC 3/4), which carries Saudi TV 1 and Saudi TV 2, that evening saw English language Saudi TV 2 feature a live interview from the Mina studio discussing Islam and the impacts of the Hajj. In the background could still be heard vehicle emergency sirens. Check out the Arabsat bouquet details in the digital Channel Check info.

Publication of the Hutton Report saw resignations at the BBC. Greg Dyke exited and was seen making tea for the TV crews outside his home while 'Teflon Tony' smiled again in Parliament. Eutelsat W2 is a favourite for Sky News feeds, particularly the 12.510/12.525GHz/H slots, but a curious feed at 12.554GHz/H (5632, 3/4) on January 28 showed copies of the Hutton Report arriving at the back door of the Royal Courts of Justice for the public to scrutinise. The Sun, of course, received a copy from a 'mole' the day before. Pictures came courtesy of UKI 784 C2.

In contrast to the misery downlinking at 11.044GHz, another signal on W1 at 10.989GHz/V (6109, 3/4) revealed pictures of folk snow-biking down the Bavarian Alps. Crash hat-wearing riders on bikes with heavy tread tyres cycled at astonishing speeds down icy slopes. Siemens Mobile was sponsoring the Snow King Championships.

Weekends are busy times on both Eutelsats W1 (10°E) and W2 (16°E) for European sports. On February 1 cameras covered a play-off in the Euro 2004 Handball championships between Slovenia and Germany at the Ihala Tivola stadium in Ljublnana, downlinking at 12.563GHz/H (5632, 3/4). The series will cover most countries in Europe in coming months.

Mid-evening is a good time for European weekday sports and volleyball seems a popular mainland Europe activity. January 14 saw a Poland vs Hungary match over W2, 12.654GHz/H using the 'VTM DSNG 5 EN' sat truck. Next evening at the same time on W1 the Friedrichafen vs Tours VB volleyball match was seen via the 'INTRAX 62/LBR/' sat truck.

Extreme travelling: Passengers bed down as airports around Europe were closed by extreme weather in January; PAS 1 carries footage from the hot and dusty Paris-Dakar Rally on one of its less arduous coastal sections

On January 25 the TERRACOMM-SWE-3 satellite truck from the icy wastes of Sweden was linking ice hockey over W1 at 11.020GHz/H with an unusual SR 13328, 7/8. Earlier that day (4pm) a little higher up the W1 band at 11.164GHz/H (5632, 3/4) came football from North Africa, with the African Cup of Nations Championships. This kickabout featured Egypt vs Zimbabwe.

Midwinter sees the Paris-Dakar car rally across the Sahara under a blazing sun. TV coverage footage used to be carried over 7°E and 10°E but, with overcapacity across the Clarke Belt, finding the elusive Saharan pictures can be a challenge. Roy Carman (Dorking) found this year's video coverage lurking on the underused Panamsat PAS-1 at 45°W. In early January 'GCR/FLY' appeared downlinking from PAS-1 at 11.575GHz/H (6111, 3/4) with pictures resembling a remake of Lawrence Of Arabia as vehicles made their way south to Dakar. Coverage of the rally continued over PAS-1 on January 12 and GCR-DAKAR/FT running 11.585GHz/H (6111, 3/4) providing parallel coverage with GCR/FLY as above. The TV crew was entrenched at the remote location of Bobo-Dioulasso. Later that day the aforementioned 11.585GHz slot changed content to transmit a Panamsat test card before carrying a soccer match into Europe from South America. SIGNAL 4 CHANNEL 4 changed parameters, however, to SR 6620, FEC 2/3.

Many of our news feeds went black when Reuters WNS hit the encryption button on 21°W a couple of years ago. And, with the prospect of the CNN NEWSOURCE lease also going black in April, US news output is getting thin on the ground.

NASA TV output – carrying Shuttle, ISS and other space action – often feeds over the above vehicles, which means fewer space offering. As all is not lost, however, as APTN Direct often carries NASA material on its W1 10.972GHz/V (4167, 3/4) lease, which is used for European distribution to its broadcast subscribers. Recently, there has been much activity on Mars, with at least two small wheeled probes taking soil samples. APTN on January 30, for example, carried the latest news conference with updates on probe movements. The three-channel Globecast bouquet on Telstar-12 at 15°W is another source of NASA output, although this slot rarely carries hot breaking news (11.014GHz/H, 20145, 3/4).

In mid-January a large cargo ship capsized in a Norwegian fiord. Checking over the 1°W slot during the evening, I found little live news feed activity, although earlier in the day 11.485GHz/H (6111, 3/4) had been active. I did find an NTSC Baghdad feed for ABC SCOPUS at 11.659GHz/V (5632, 3/4) which for most of the time carried a live but locked-off shot showing the backs of houses in downtown Baghdad, possibly the view from a hotel balcony. Occasional live reports were fed into New York.

Since I installed the new Coship 'Blind Search' receivers at Christmas, checking the satellite airwaves has become easier and by conducting searches over the whole Ku-band first in vertical and then horizontal polarities and making the receiver do the walking, I captured many signals I might have missed using more primitive search techniques. Roy Carman found that the Coship 'Blind Search' will go down to an SR of 1861, 7/8. On January 20 a search over the empty wastes of EuropeStar-1, 45°E found POWTORKA 1, 2, a horse racing feed from Poland at 11.617GHz/V, linked by STWK.

More religious events appeared on NSS-7, 21°W on January 17. 'Cap Sur Jesus' was a French-language presentation that appeared at 11.668GHz/H (6617, 3/4) from 5.50pm, for an hour or so, with sections rerun from videotape, closing at 6.51pm with 'DSNG 3 AMLX' ident on colour bars. Later a service was transmitted for the New Apostolic Church from the Los Angeles Central Church in Pasadena, California. This was a production by the NAC TV Network. NSS-7 carried this OB at 11.659GHz/H (5632, 3/4).

NSS-7 also carries an Algerian entertainment bouquet – or did at the time of writing – comprising four TV channels and 20 radio channels. These are: Canal Algerie, A3, Programme National, and Bouchaoui TDA 3. This had been seen in October 2003 with less programme content and more test transmissions. Parameters have changed slightly; check 12.736GHz 16625, 3/4. The radio channels are mainly Arabic and French-language offerings. Checking on the information panel on the RSD-303 receiver, I found the originating service was 'Telediffusion d'Algeria'. (The RSD receivers feature a signal strength scale in their information data menu; often inlaid across the signal strength scale is uplink sourcing data such as the broadcasting network, the equipment/encoder in use in the sat truck. Few receivers offer this feature. The Manhattan Digiplaza has another unusual feature – check the Globecast 15°W three-channel bouquet – the Digiplaza will show the original three channels, plus another three engineering 'spare' video circuits. No other receiver can reveal this secret. Or can it?

Hellas Sat slots at 39°E and carries occasional news circuits from the Mediterranean. These are intermittent and it's sheer luck if you catch one. I was cruising in Telecom band and up popped 'ERT VAN 1' ident on colour bars. It sits there for an hour and then switches off! ERT is a national Greek broadcaster and its OB links are infrequent (this time 12.635GHz/V, 6109, 3/4). The service ident offered only 'INA NEWS/www'. An easy catch, however, on this bird is a convenient and very strong programme bouquet at 12.525GHz/V (27500, 3/4). A couple of TV channels – Alpha TV and Antenna Pacif – are encrypted, but these are in the clear: RTS-SAT, MKTV-SAT, Cyprus-SAT, and ERT-SAT. For those dreaming of Greek holidays the OET PROMO channel offers travelogues and Greek history documentaries – and in English.

Eutelsat's E-Bird sits at 33°E, showing little evidence of TV but more of data feed linking. The downlink output on the Spectrascope* monitor on January 15 brought several peaks of activity and little other movement. But there is movement. The whole output of the sat slumps down to nil and a single baseline is seen, over a couple of seconds the output peaks rise again, then steady and once more fall to zero. The cyclical rise and fall is repeated. Most strange! (* the 'Spectrascope' display shows the whole Ku-band downlink output as a vertical bar with any signal activity appearing as horizontal peaks.)

There have been several I'm A Celebrity...-type shows with D-listers in a jungle, battling with beetles, snakes and themselves in a modern version of Carry On Up The Jungle. In January a German version appeared on W2, 16°E at 12.548GHz/H (5632, 3/4). The service ID of 'Ich_Bin_Ein_B', meant little to me, but a colour bar pattern was captioned 'Back Up lac' and Roy , who also monitored it, says the W2 feeder into German TV was the backup feed (for the German show 'I am a Star') – in the clear. The primary circuit from the Australian jungle fed over Panamsat 3R, 43°W at 12.696GHz/V (13200, 3/4 plus encryption). It was the usual activity with beetles and bugs, but one interesting scene was a semi-clad female in a mud pool.

Alan Richards (who's moved from Nottingham to Horncastle, Lincs) is resuming his satellite observations, though with an 80cm dish – much smaller than his old 1.5m prime focus! The African RTNC Congo TV channel that appeared for a time over NSS-7 and then faded to black is still available on the 30°W Hispasat slot (11.583GHz/H (20150, 3/4). Be warned, the picture quality is lousy with very low power. Alan says Eutelsat II F3 at 21°E is possible with only an 80cm dish on an inclined bird.

At 12.692GHz/V (an unusual SR4094, 3/4) he found 'B92 Haag' running news footage for both CNN feed and for Mraza Plus from The Hague with Milosevic and other Balkans tyrants – the war crimes trials seem to go on forever. Of course, a smaller dish means a wider beamwidth so, in theory, an inclined bird should prove easier to find, provided a very low-noise LNB is used.

Look for the Israeli AMOS-2 Ku-band satellite launched on December 28 from Baikonur. It's slotted at 4°W and downlinks across the Middle East, Europe and over the Atlantic into North America. Rather a struggle for most is the low-horizon Telstar-14 bird that launched on January 11 from the Pacific Sea Launch platform to slot at 63°W. It carries 41 Ku-band transponders, half of which will target Central/South America with TV. The rest will blanket the North Atlantic on behalf of Connexion for data/internet access into passenger aircraft ■

ROGER BUNNEY is pleased to hear from readers with reports of interesting, rare or unlikely satellite sightings. WRITE with details (photos/video recordings gratefully accepted), where, when and with what equipment, to: Satellite Search, What Satellite & Digital TV, Highbury-WV, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW

COMPLETE GUIDE TO EURO DIGITAL CHANNELS

There are hundreds of satellite channels up there. Tune in with our monthly updated guide

Although the Astra craft at 19.2°E and 28.2°E are the highest profile satellites in the skies above the UK, there are many more providing TV channels. More than 40 provide thousands of digital stations, plus newsfeeds across Europe. This guide gives you all the details needed in order to tune in to them using fixed dish, dual-feed or multi-satellite systems.

For each satellite we have displayed the regular TV channels transmitted, plus the more dependable sources of news feeds. For each transponder (broadcasting frequency) we list the bouquet name, frequency and polarity, transponder number, encryption type, symbol rate and forward error correction (FEC) rate. These tuning details can either be manually entered into your receiver or are automatically found using some systems.

We also list two approximate minimum dish sizes for the South (London) and North (Edinburgh) to give you an idea of the strength of the signal. Remember that your own particular location, LNB type and even weather may also affect your ability to receive the channel. For each channel we show its name, a description, and main language.

■ All listings believed correct at the time of going to press. If you have a correction, e-mail it to us marked Channel Check or post it to us at the usual address.

A flock of seagulls

EVERY MONTH, DR MATTHEW HOLBROOK KEEPS AN EAR TO THE SKIES FOR NEWS OF SATELLITE RADIO

There are quite a few changes to report on Sky Digital this month. Radio Seagull (www.radioseagull.com) from The Netherlands is now time-sharing with Apple FM on EPG channel 913, 11.385GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, A-PID 2328 from 7p.m. to 12am. This English-language station specialises in mainly album tracks of 'quality rock'. And The Selector (www.selector-radio.com) is now on channel 934, 12.344GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, A-PID 2312. Rather than being a Ska band from the 1980s, The Selector is a syndicated radio show produced weekly for the British Council, a UK-based international charitable organisation for educational opportunities and cultural relations.

The eight Emap radio channels have all now joined the EPG, remaining on 11.623GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3 but with a few A-PID changes. The complete line-up is Kiss 100 (channel 920, A-PID 2331), Smash! Hits Radio (channel 922, A-PID 2334), Kerrang! Radio (channel 928, A-PID 2335), The Hits (channel 929, A-PID 2336), Magic 105.4FM (channel 930, A-PID 2337), Mojo Radio (channel 931, A-PID 2339), Q Radio (channel 932, A-PID 2338) and Heat Radio (channel 933, A-PID 2340).

Radio Seagull's bite out of Apple FM on channel 913

Four of the other non-EPG channels on the same transponder have also changed their A-PIDs. These are McCoy's FM (2326 to 2329), Moto Radio (2327 to 2330), Ted's FM (2328 to 2331) and Topp's FM (2330 to 2332). On 11.681GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, The Dream has changed its A-PID from 2319 to 2321. Trans World Radio UK on channel 888 has relocated from Astra 2B and can now be found on Eurobird 1's 11.585GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 2/3, A-PID 2320. And at the time of writing, Radio Okey had turned free-to-air in common with most of the other Slovak Republic channels on Eurobird 1's 12.643GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0885.

It's not a place we visit very often, but eight channels have started at 42°E on Turksat 1C's 11.096GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4. These are TRT Radyo 1 (A-PID 0815), TRT Radyo 3 (0816), TRT Gap Radyosu (0817), TRT FM (0915), TRT Radyo 4 (0916), TRT Tourist Radio (0917), Voice of Turkey (1016) and TSR (1017).

Finally, this month we move to the Hot Bird satellites at 13°E. France Inter, France Info and France Culture have stopped broadcasting in analogue on 11.422GHz/V. They are now only in digital on 10.796GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PIDs 3534-6. Italian station Radio Onda d'Urto (www.radioondaduro.org) is new on 11.200GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 5/6, A-PID 0418. Radio Classica (www.radioclassica.net) has begun on 11.623GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0268. RNE Radio 4 (www.radio4.rne.es) is on 11.785GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 3563. Radio Lider 107 FM (www.lider.fm) is on 12.149GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 0194. And The Overcomer has left its slot on 12.597GHz/V, but can still be found at 12.207GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, A-PID 2160. ■

GUIDE TO RADIO CHANNELS

Satellite receivers spend most of their time tuned to TV but there is also an abundance of radio stations transmitted from the same satellites and receivable using the same equipment. There are three broadcasting formats for satellite radio – digital, analogue and Astra Digital Radio (ADR). Digital and analogue radio are receivable on digital and analogue (respectively) TV receivers, and ADR requires a special receiver and these are not widely available in the UK. ADR is only available on the Astra 1 satellites (please note that due to pressure on space ADR listings may not be included) ■

HOW TO BUY A SATELLITE TV SYSTEM

Choosing a satellite TV system is a confusing business. Here are a few guidelines to help out the first-time buyer Buying a satellite TV system will involve you in a whole lot of choices, but you've made the right choice so far – to go for the wealth of entertainment available on satellite TV.

WHAT SYSTEM?

The first choice you must make is which type of satellite system to go for. It all depends on what you want to receive. Take a look in the Channel Check section of this magazine for an idea of which channels are broadcast from which satellites.

The cheapest and simplest satellite system uses a fixed dish to receive just the free channels from the Astra 1 satellites. This is what most people plump for – the ubiquitous 60cm dish (although an 80cm dish is needed in the north of England, the South-West, Scotland and Ireland). A Sky Digital system will not only receive the free and scrambled stations from Astra 2 and Eurobird at 28.2°E, it can also be used for free-to-air channels from some other satellites, with a suitable dish.

If you want to go the whole hog and receive all the channels that are available, you'll need a motorised multi-satellite system and think about receiving encrypted channels. These are more versatile, but also much more complicated and expensive than simple free-to-air systems.

Antennas come in a wide range of shapes and sizes, but you'll need a large dish for multi-satellite. A smaller dish is required for Sky Digital

WHAT MODEL?

In the following tables we list all the receivers currently available, separated into categories of fixed dish digital receivers, motorised digital receivers with traditional positioners built-in, and motorised receivers which use DiSEqC 1.2 software.

Mixed into all categories you'll find several combined receivers which can deal with both analogue and digital transmissions.

For each category and model there is a lot of information, much of which many buyers need not worry about. For a fixed dish digital receiver, look for plenty of channels, a Common Interface or built-in conditional access module, and DiSEqC 1.0 LNB switching.

If you want to receive channels on multiple satellites you'll need even more channels, but most importantly you'll need a built-in positioner or DiSEqC 1.2 software, depending on the type of motorisation you go for. One golden rule applies to any satellite system: don't rush out and buy the first model you see. Decide what you really need – both now and for the future – and consult this guide and your dealer for advice.

WHAT ABOUT INSTALLATION?

Whatever model you pick, the dish will have to be installed. You can do this yourself, but it's a task for the DIY-competent only.

Satellite receivers vary from the dirt cheap to all-singing, all-dancing models like the Echostar DVR7000, which has analogue and digital facilities, plus a hard disc drive for recording in digital quality

The installation must be done correctly if you're to receive the proper quality of pictures and sound.

A typical simple Astra installation will cost between £40 and £80 and will take a professional anything from 30 minutes to a couple of hours to install.

A multi-satellite installation is a far more complex task (and therefore much less suitable for trying yourself) and will cost you anything from £200 upwards.

WHAT TO ASK?

Unless you know a fair amount about satellite TV already, it's probably wise to buy your system from a dealer, rather than through mail order. Visit as many satellite dealers as you can, and try to see every possible system in use. Have a go yourself.

If you don't like the way a receiver operates, it's better to find out in the shop than in your lounge after you've bought the wrong model. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Ask about other models, why the system on offer is right for you and why it's better than the others available.

Check the price of the receiver and for the installation – some shops appear to offer a bargain on the equipment but cash in on the installation charges.

Make sure you are being offered the right size dish for your area – even though a 60cm dish may work all right in Penzance on a fine day, the picture will suffer when it rains.

If you intend to subscribe to any foreign channels, think about arranging it through the same dealer you buy your system from – you may qualify for a discount.

WHAT NEXT?

Once you've selected your satellite TV system and had it fitted, and the installer has shown you the basics, there's nothing more you have to do.

Watching satellite TV is then as easy as watching the five channels of terrestrial TV you're already used to.

The only difficulty then is choosing which of the tremendous choice of programmes to watch and fighting over who watches what.

FIXED DISH DIGITAL RECEIVERS

Key to fixed dish Sky Digital receivers

Known as the Sky Digibox, these receivers are the only way to pick up both the Sky subscription channels and channels from the BBC, ITV, Channel 4 and Five. All Sky Digiboxes have an integrated Videoguard conditional access module, and support the OpenTV software used for interactive TV and the electronic programme guide. The remote controls are interchangeable for all Digiboxes except Sky Plus, which has extra recording and playback controls

RECEIVER PRICE: Prices are for guidance only. Individual retailers may decide their own price, and What Satellite & Digital TV cannot be held responsible for market prices

MONTHLY SUBSCRIPTION: Sky Plus requires an extra monthly subscription to take advantage of its digital recording features

NUMBER OF LNB INPUTS: Two LNB inputs are useful for watching one channel while recording another, or receiving two different satellites without external switching

LNB LOOPTHROUGH: IF signal from dish can be passed to a second receiver while this unit is in standby

22KHZ SWITCHING: Universal-type LNBs are switched between high and low reception bands with a 22kHz tone from the receiver

POLARISER CONTROL: Polarisers are controlled by pulse (servo motor), current (magnetic), or voltage (combined LNB/polariser used in universal LNBs). Only current and pulse control allow skew adjustment for multi-satellite upgrading SYMBOL RATE: The data rate varies from transponder to transponder, according to the level of compression and number of channels. Low symbol rates are used by news feeds with a single channel (SCPC or Single Channel Per Carrier), but most transponders on Astra, Eurobird and Hot Bird work on 22000 and 27500

FEC: Digital channels use differing Forward Error Correction rates (redundant information signals added to help receivers recognise and correct errors in transmission). Most receivers detect FEC automatically (A), but selectable FEC (S) can be useful for pinning down weak signals

HARD DISC SIZE: Measured in Gigabytes, this does not reflect recording capacity, which depends on the level of compression used for each recording MODEM: Used to inform Sky of any Box Office events purchased, or for registering with some interactive services and downloading extra information. A faster modem will supply faster downloads.

NUMBER AV OUTPUTS: For direct connection via Scart cable to a TV or VCR for superior picture and sound

S-VIDEO OUTPUT: A dedicated S-video mini-DIN output connects to your TV or VCR for superior picture

STEREO AUDIO OUTPUTS: Phono sockets supplying left and right analogue audio channels, along with any Dolby Pro-Logic surround signals

DIGITAL AUDIO OUTPUT: For noise-free audio, either a coaxial link (c) or an optical link (O)

DOLBY DIGITAL: Receivers which can pass the AC-3 encoded signal via their digital audio output will produce superior Dolby Digital surround sound with a suitably-equipped audio amplifier

NUMBER UHF OUTPUTS: Extra outputs can be used to supply TVs in other rooms

UHF TUNING RANGE: Tuning the channel which a receiver 'broadcasts' to via the aerial lead. Larger ranges avoid crowding and interference between several receivers or VCRs

TESTED: Date of the What Satellite & Digital TV issue with a review of the receiver. Most will also be found in the following year's Book Of Tests

Key to digital video recorders

The recording complement to digital TV, DVRs can store video, audio and data on a computer-type hard disc drive, which enables instant access, simultaneous read-and-write, and many other features a VCR can't emulate. DVRs can be combined with a digital satellite receiver, digital terrestrial TV tuner, analogue TV tuner, or even with DVD players/ recorders and VCRs. They're most useful in tandem with an electronic programme guide rather than a VCR-style manual timer – this is known as a personal video recorder, or PVR.

HARD DISC CAPACITY AND RECORDING QUALITY LEVELS: Increasing the level of data compression increases the amount which can be stored on the disc, but reduces picture and sound quality; Sky's compression system changes dynamically to maximise both compression and quality

MP3 PLAYBACK: Audio files or radio channels can be stored in a very small space using MP3 compression, so you can play back audio as well as video

BACKGROUND RECORDING: Watch from the hard disc while your DVR records live TV

LIVE TV CACHE: The DVR continually records (up to a fixed amount), so users can jump back fast to anywhere in the programme

PAUSE RECORDING: The DVR starts recording as soon as you press Pause .

TWIN TUNERS: The DVR can record two channels at once or record one channel while another is being watched live

USB PORT: Transfers audio and video files to a PC, or vice-versa

PACE TWIN DIGITAL RECEIVER – £349

A combined personal video recorder (PVR) and digital terrestrial receiver, the Pace Twin is the first of its kind. Twin digital tuners mean you can record one Freeview channel while watching another and the modest 20GB hard disc can store around 10 hours of TV and radio. Recordings can be scheduled using either the EPG or manual timer option and, as with most PVRs, there's also a pause live TV option. Recordings can be rewound and fast-forwarded up to 64 times and, if need be, archived to videotape if you're in danger of maxing out the hard drive. Picture and sound quality are both excellent and a recent software update added support for interactive and digital text services.

FIXED DISH DIGITAL RECEIVERS

Key to fixed dish digital receivers

This category lists digital receivers used for receiving MPEG-2 channels. To watch such channels you require a DVB-compliant system instead of a conventional analogue receiver.

You will also need a dish pointed at one of the satellites broadcasting digital channels (see Channel Check for details) and a universal LNB to receive the high frequencies which digital channels normally use. Digital technology typically presents higher quality pictures and sound comparable to CD quality. Also, due to the nature of compressed digital TV signals, other facilities such as electronic programme guides, audio subchannels and teletext can be offered. While every digital receiver is capable of receiving these signals, it requires both a CAM and viewing card to decrypt scrambled pay-TV channels. Some receivers feature a Common Interface to enable a number of CAMs to be inserted for viewing of a number of different digital bouquets. Digital receivers can be linked to your existing analogue system for ease of use. This can be done using either a twin-output LNB, a priority switching system or a special IF splitter. In the future, interactive services such as home shopping, educational facilities, the Internet and e-mail will also be offered – depending on the compatibility of your receiver and the broadcaster involved.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – they cannot be altered). Many of the column headings are the same as for the analogue receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.

COMBINED ANALOGUE: Some receivers integrate analogue and digital reception in one box. Digital features are listed under Fixed Dish Analogue Receivers

RECEIVER PRICE: Digital receivers are typically sold without a dish because it is assumed that buyers already have an antenna for analogue TV reception

DISEQC: This facility enables you to control several LNBs (or dishes) from one LNB input. It's ideal for buyers planning to watch digital channels from more than one satellite. The version indicates how many can be connected. Version 1.0 allows up to four, 1.1 allows up to eight

SCPC COMPATIBLE: Some digital channels use a whole transponder's capacity, known as Single Channel Per Carrier, and your digital receiver should ideally have this facility

CAM: The Conditional Access Module provides the crucial conditional access technology required to decode the scrambled signals broadcast by the service provider. The modular approach ensures that the cost of upgrades will be reduced and that the receiver will keep pace with advances in CA technology

NUMBER CARD SLOTS: In addition to a CAM, digital receivers require a suitable DVB viewing card to be inserted before viewing encrypted digital channels

COMMON INTERFACE: A slot that enables a Common Interface module (similar in looks to a PC card) to be inserted in some receivers. Such a slot is desirable as it enables the separation of the proprietary CA technology from the receiver

EPG: Some receivers have access to an electronic programme guide that enables the latest channel listings and programme info to be seen onscreen. EPGs are broadcast as part of the MPEG-2 signal

TELETEXT: You don't need a TV equipped with teletext to access text from digital channels. The teletext signal is broadcast within the MPEG-2 data stream. If the receiver has a text option you should be able to access it

R232 INTERFACE: Links a computer printer or other peripherals to the receiver. May not be operational; available for future services

MODEM OUTPUT: Used to attach a phone modem for accessing interactive services

OPEN TV: Interactive software used by channels in France and Germany

SCSI OUTPUT: High-speed data interface for linking a CD-Rom, CD-player and video CDs in the future

UHF TUNING RANGE: Some digital receivers do not have a UHF modulator (and therefore no tuning range) because the manufacturers consider that using UHF leads is inferior to Scart connections

Key to digital satellite PC cards

These cards can also be used for multimedia-via-satellite, which includes high-speed downloads and 'streaming' video and audio, which can be watched on a computer using appropriate media player software, as well as the ability to surf the Internet at speeds higher than a normal telephone link.

KEY: A blob in the feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (selectable – they take one of a number of discrete values), F (fixed – they cannot be altered) or A (automatic – the receiver detects the correct value). Many of the column headings are the same as for analogue and digital receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.

MAXIMUM RESOLUTION: The greatest resolution at which the card can produce a picture in a window. This is defined as a number of pixels wide, by a number of pixels high. The size this appears onscreen will depend on the resolution at which your monitor operates.

FULL SCREEN VIEWING: Most cards can stretch the maximum resolution picture to fill a larger screen, either by interpolating the missing lines or by spreading the original pixels over a block of several pixels on the monitor. Both of these methods reduce clarity at the expense of a larger picture.

INTERNET-VIA-SATELLITE: A worthwhile satellite receiver card should be compatible with consumer high speed Internet-by-satellite services such as Europe Online, unless it is intended for use with other satellite data services.

VIDEO OUTPUTS: By attaching a TV to an external analogue video output, a larger picture can be obtained from the card without the loss of clarity by expanding to the fill your computer monitor.
Also allows satellite TV programmes to be recorded on a normal VCR. PC cards will have either a composite video phono output socket, or a high quality S-video output.

INTERNAL AUDIO CONNECTOR: Connecting your satellite receiver card to your sound card internally is neater, offers higher quality sound, and keeps the line-in port of your soundcard free.

RECORD TO HARD DISC: Software can capture still images from TV, or record in MPEG2 to the PCs hard disc drive

MAC ADDRESSING: Individual MAC addresses are widely used to verify subscriptions to internet and multimedia-by-satellite services and address information

AV INPUTS: With composite video or S-video inputs, your satellite card can be used to watch signals from an external DVD player, VCR, or you can use a videosender to send Sky Digital from the living room to the PC in your home office.

MINIMUM PC PROCESSOR: The slowest Pentium processor recommended for reliable use, in MHz

MINIMUM PC RAM: The minimum memory capacity (in MB) for running under Windows 98, usually double under Windows 2000 and XP

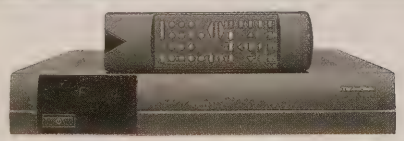
SKY DIGITAL

SKY PLUS £199

The ultimate Sky Digibox – at least for now – Sky Plus slickly combines an excellent Pace digital satellite receiver with a cutting edge personal video recorder. The Sky EPG and many interactive services run fast enough to be a pleasure rather than a chore, but you'll have to pay an extra £10 monthly subscription for the PVR features, on top of your Sky subscription (but not if you subscribe to more than two premium channels).

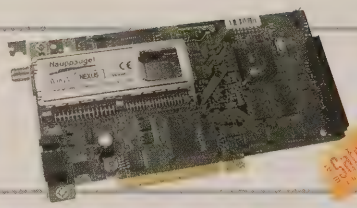
FIXED DIGITAL



TECHNISAT TECHNIBOX CAM1 PLUS – £199

High-quality German receiver with twin common interface and Dolby Digital audio support. User interface is very straightforward, but flexible enough for enthusiasts' needs, while picture quality and sound quality are excellent. The UHF output isn't UK-compatible, but it would insult this receiver to use anything other than Scart.

SATELLITE PC CARD



HAUPPAUGE WinTV NEXUS-S – £199

The successor to the Win TV DVB-S offers fewer connections but enhanced performance and features. Picture quality is great and it has most features you'd expect from a standalone satellite receiver, and easy-to-use software for internet-via-satellite and streaming media services. It can also turn your PC into a PVR as it can pause live TV and make scheduled recordings. Unlike many PC TV cards, its onboard MPEG processor means it won't hog too much of the system doing it.

Key to DiSEqC 1.2 digital receivers

Many new receivers use Eutelsat's DiSEqC software system to offer a cheap and easy route to a motor-ised dish which can point at different parts of the sky. DiSEqC 1.2 receivers send signals and power along the LNB cable to an 'intelligent' motorised dish mount which is programmed with the satellite positions. Because the cable is carrying control signals and the IF satellite feed from the LNB, the power it can supply without causing interference limits dish size to one metre. However, interfaces are available for larger dishes which interpret the DiSEqC signals for a traditional motorised mount.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values), F (fixed – they cannot be altered), or A (automatic)

Many of the column headings are the same as for the analogue and digital fixed dish receivers. The additional column headings are explained here

COMBINED DIGITAL: Some receivers integrate analogue and digital reception in one box. Digital features are listed under the neighbouring table

DISEQC LEVEL: Versions 1.2 provides simple positioning and movement limits. USALS enables receiver to automatically calculate satellite positions. Satscan is competing but similar technology used by Nokia

NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: The more the better. Standard DiSEqC 1.2 allows for up to 50 positions, but this is limited by some software.

Key to motorised digital/analogue receivers

To view the programmes from more than one satellite, a motorised dish system is required. This includes a dish able to point at the different parts of the sky where the satellites are situated, and a positioner unit to control the dish motor The range of formats and standards on all the satellites is enormous, so multi-satellite systems must be flexible.

KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – they cannot be altered). Some of the column headings are the same as for the analogue and digital fixed dish receivers.

The additional column headings are explained here.

MAKE & MODEL: The models listed are all systems with integrated positioners which are capable of moving automatically to a new satellite on a channel change.

RECEIVER PRICE: The price of the receiver on its own without dish, LNB, mount and so on.

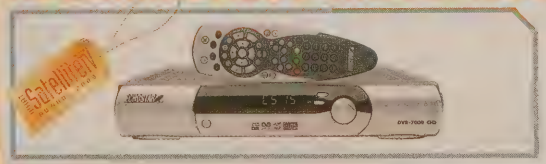
NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: Not all receivers can pick up as many satellite positions as are needed for receiving 'everything'. The more the merrier.

VIDEO BANDWIDTH: Reducing the video bandwidth can reduce sparklies on weak signals, although some loss of picture quality is inevitable.

EXTERNAL SWITCH OUTPUT: Programmable 5V or 12V output to trigger an external LNB switch or other equipment.

OPTICAL ACTUATOR DRIVE: Dish actuators using an optional switch for feedback require a continuous 5V supply.

Recommended Motorised



ECHOSTAR DVR-7000 – £900

Not just a very flexible motorised analogue and digital receiver, but a personal video recorder and MP3 player, the DVR-7000 is the first luxury receiver we've seen in some years. It can store 4,700 channels across 100 positions, with automatic satellite locating and searching. Programme information is stored on the 40Gb hard drive, along with around 12 hours of video and hundreds of MP3 files. There's also a twin Common Interface and a Viaccess CAM to enjoy the high-quality audio-visual performance on any channel.

MANHATTAN STARLIGHT 6800 – £299

A high-end motorised receiver needs lots of features to merit the outlay, and the 6800 has them. One of most advanced, easy-to-use receivers we've come across, the 6800 has a twin CI and an integrated CAM, built-in Teletext viewer, timers, S-video and RGB outputs, and digital audio outputs. It's fully motorised for both 36V users or DiSEqC motors and has a capable auto-locating system for traditional actuators as well as the full range of DiSEqC and USALS features. There's memory for 5,000 channels and channel lists can be edited.

FORCE D-MASTER 1145S – £295

The 1145S replaces the highly regarded 1122S. The sleek design is largely unchanged, and it features twin CI slots along with Viaccess and Seca CAMs. The 1145S can auto-locate satellites when used in conjunction with a DiSEqC motor and is preset for use with a four-way DiSEqC switch expandable to two-level DiSEqC 1.1 for use with up to 16 fixed LNBs. There's memory for 3,000 channels and 50 satellites and a symbol rate range of 2,000-45,000. An excellent revision of an old classic.

CONTACT ADDRESSES

A to Z of satellite

AC-3
Flexible audio data compression format designed by Dolby Laboratories to enable transmission of high-quality multi-channel audio such as Dolby Digital 5.1 alongside digital TV signals. A digital TV receiver with the correct hardware recognises the AC-3 signal and passes it to a digital audio output, for decoding by suitable home cinema audio equipment
Actuator
motor and feedback system to drive a motorised multi-satellite antenna Antenna
any device to pick up and deliver satellite microwave signals to the receiver Apex
the highest point (eg. of a motorised dish's arc)
Arc
the imaginary curve connecting the Clarke Belt satellites in the sky Aspect ratio ratio of the width of a TV picture to its height. Conventionally 4:3 (pronounced 4-by-3). See also Widescreen Astra Digital Radio system for digital audio broadcasts by satellite using compressed digital audio occupying the audio subcarrier space AV (audio-visual) equipment for all aspects of TV and audio Azimuth
compass bearing of a satellite or a dish's reception path Bandwidth range of frequencies occupied by a signal or allowed by equipment Baseband
raw satellite TV signal from a receiver before modulation to a signal suitable for a television Beam satellite transmission pattern; may be wide, narrow or spot beam Beamwidth
the acceptance angle of a dish Belling-Lee
plug/socket type used for UHF (aerial) connections and for LNB connections on a few European receivers BER (bit error rate) accuracy of a digital signal. Equivalent to analogue S/N Bird satellite Bit rate
digitised TV signal reduced in size by removing repeated information to allow several TV channels to occupy a single transponder Conditional access technology which prevents unauthorised viewing of TV or other content, usually by scrambling (encrypting) it and issuing a viewing card DBS band portion (11.700-12.500GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for direct broadcast by satellite channels Declination
small offset angle used on a polar mount to tilt the dish towards the horizon and so track the satellite arc Decoder
unit to unscramble a protected TV signal for viewing De-emphasis filtering introduced by a receiver, in conjunction with the opposite 'pre-emphasis' at transmission to reduce audio noise Depolariser device to convert circular polarised signals to linear polarisation for selection by a conventional polariser Digibox
digital satellite receiver for the Sky Digital service incorporating a Videoguard CAM Digital TV
see Compressed digital TV
Digital TV converter (aka DTT converter) low-cost digital terrestrial TV receiver which enables an individual analogue TV or VCR to pick up DTT channels via a reception of Astra 1D signals EPG (electronic programme guide) onscreen guide to the programmes showing at the time, and to come, on a number of channels

Eurocrypt
Smart card scrambling system used with many Mac transmissions Event timer
programmable timer built into a receiver to switch on and change channels for unattended video recording F-connector
a screw-on plug/socket commonly used for LNB-receiver connections FEC (forward error correction) tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Expressed as a fraction of the data used for correcting data errors introduced in the reception Feedhorn
collects the microwave signals at the focus of a dish and channels them to the LNB Flat-plate antenna
Flat (often square) antenna used instead of a dish. Works by adding together the signal from an array of collectors Focal point position in front of a dish reflector where the reflected signals are gathered Footprint area of the Earth in which a satellite's signal can be received. Also refers to contour map of the received signal strength from a satellite Free-to-air
channel broadcast without any conditional access or scrambling, allowing reception with any suitable receiver FSS (fixed satellite services) band portion (10.700-11.700GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for business use, but now the main analogue satellite TV band Geostationary orbit orbit used by TV satellites at a height of 22,250 miles, in which satellites make an orbit in 24 hours, remaining fixed relative to the Earth's surface Geosynchronous orbit
see Geostationary orbit
GHz (gigahertz)
a billion cycles per second or 1,000MHz Gregorian
design of dish using a concave hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector Half-transponder mode method of transmitting two TV

10.750GHz for DBS, 11.475GHz for Telecom, 10.600GHz for Astra high band and 5.150GHz for C-band Longitude
the distance east or west of the Prime/Greenwich meridian, expressed in degrees Loopthrough
pair of output and input connections on a receiver that allows external equipment to be inserted in the TV signal path LNB (low-noise block down-converter) amplifies received signals and converts them from microwaves to lower-frequency electrical signal to send down cable to the receiver Luminance part of a TV signal carrying the brightness information of the picture (see also Chrominance) Magnetic polariser solid-state polariser controlled by current from the receiver Marconi-type LNB
see Voltage-switched LNB Mechanical polariser
servo-actuated polariser controlled by electrical pulses from the receiver MHz (megahertz)
one million cycles per second. 1,000kHz Microwave
radio signal with a frequency of 1-30GHz Modulator device which impresses the TV picture and sound signal onto a radio carrier for broadcast or loopthrough Mount device to hold a satellite antenna and allow aiming adjustments MPEG (moving pictures expert group) international body to agree standards Polarity
property of satellite signals to differentiate between signals of similar frequencies and squeeze more channels into the available space. Signals are either linearly polarised (horizontal and vertical) or circularly polarised (left and right-handed) Polar mount multi-satellite antenna mount aligned so single movement allows the antenna to track the arc of the Clarke Belt Positioner
unit to control the motor of a motorised dish to point the dish at pre-programmed positions. Can be included inside a multi-satellite integrated receiver/positioner PPV (pay-per-view) pay-TV system allowing the purchase of an individual one-time TV event Primary focus focal point corresponding to the signals in the dish's boresight Pro-Logic
surround sound decoder system invented by Dolby Laboratories to reproduce cinema sound in the home PVR (personal video recorder) device using a hard disc drive to record TV in digital format, combined with an EPG to make programmed recordings easier
Quad-band LNB
LNB capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands (including the 10.700-10.950GHz band first used by Astra 1D) in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V). See Triple-band LNB
Receiver
indoor unit to take signals from the antenna, tune and convert them for display on a TV Reflector dish-shaped surface of an antenna which collects the signal Secam (sequence à memoire)
a television system used by some French channels. It displays as black and white tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Measure of the rate of supply of data in the signal Sync

TV signal constituent which synchronises the picture scanning of the TV set with the transmission Telecom band portion (12.500-12.750GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies first used by the French Telecom satellites but more correctly called broadcast satellite services (BSS) band Threshold
minimum C/N required to produce a sparklie-free picture. A measure of the sensitivity of a receiver – the lower the figure, the better Transponder (transmitter/responder) equipment inside a satellite responsible for receiving a single uplinked channel and re-broadcasting it back to Earth
Triple-band LNB
LNB which is capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V)
UHF (ultra high frequency)
300-3,000MHz. UK terrestrial TV uses 470-890MHz
Universal LNB voltage-switched type LNB with two reception frequency bands of 10.700-11.700GHz and 11.700-12.750GHz using local oscillator frequencies of 9.75GHz and 10.60GHz, selected by a 22kHz tone on the LNB power supply Uplink
the signal's path from Earth to the satellite USALS (universal satellite location speed of digital transmission, usually expressed in Mb/s. About 5Mb/s is considered equivalent to a broadcast PAL picture, while about 2.5Mb/s is equivalent to VHS direction along the principal reception path of an antenna; where it is 'looking'

CAM (conditional access module) electronics used to unscramble a protected digital broadcast

Cassegrain
design of dish using a convex hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector

C-band signal frequency range (3.700-4.200GHz) used for satellite TV, particularly in the US

Centre-feed dish dish with the focal point and feedhorn at the centre. See Offset

part of a television signal carrying the colour information of the picture

CI (Common interface) connection standard for adding equipment to a digital receiver. Uses the same connector and card format as the PCMCIA computer standard

Clarke Belt
see Geostationary orbit

C/N (carrier-to-noise ratio)
a measure of the performance of an antenna. Ratio of the received power to the noise power, expressed in dB

co-axial cable and connectors used for aerial and antenna cables

Co-located
Satellites in the same apparent orbital position (within 0.2° of one another)

Composite Video
TV signal containing chrominance, luminance and sync information. Used in Scart connectors

Compressed digital TV
Scart or analogue UHF input

DiSEqC (Digital Satellite Equipment Control) control system for antenna peripherals such as LNBs and switches using digital codes formed from 22kHz pulses on the LNB power supply

Dish
antenna using a parabolic reflector to collect microwave signals

Downlink
the signal's path from the satellite to the receiving antenna

DTH (direct-to-home) satellite TV intended for domestic reception

DTT (digital terrestrial television) channels broadcast by ground-based transmitter masts and received by a standard rooftop or indoor aerial through a DTT converter or IDTV, using a version of DVB standard optimised for terrestrial TV

Dual-feed
see Multi-feed

DVB (digital video broadcasting) standard for digital broadcasting established in Europe but used worldwide with the exception of the US

EIRP (effective isotropic radiated power) measure of a satellite's signal strength received on the ground

El-az (elevation-azimuth) mount Simple fixed dish mount allowing adjustments in horizontal and vertical planes

Elevation vertical angle between an antenna's reception path and the horizontal

Enhanced
LNB (9.750GHz local oscillator) or receiver (extended IF) designed for the channels on one transponder by sharing the bandwidth between them (usually two 36MHz channels on a 72MHz transponder). Reduces the EIRP of each channel by about 4dB

Horizon-to-horizon compact polar mount allowing extremely wide range of movement and accurate tracking

Horn
antenna using an enlarged feedhorn and no reflector

HDTV (high-definition television)
TV system using an increased number of screen lines for a sharper picture

HEMT (high electron mobility transistor) type of low noise LNB

IDTV (integrated digital TV)
TV set with a built-in DTT or digital satellite TV receiver, removing the need for an external converter or receiver

IF (intermediate frequency) signal in cable between LNB and receiver. Also receiver's tuning frequency. 950-2050MHz

IF shifter device inserted in the LNB cable to enable reception of frequency bands not intended for the LNB

Inclined orbit
orbit inclined relative to the Equator. Produces apparent motion of the satellite above and below the arc

Inclinometer
device to measure a vertical angle

Interference
picture (or sound) distortion caused by an additional unwanted signal

Jack
see Actuator

kHz (kilohertz)
one thousand cycles per second

Ka-band
signal frequency range (approximately 21-25GHz) now used for two-way broadband satellite services with small user terminals and dishes of less than a metre diameter signal frequency range (10.700-18.000GHz) used for most satellite TV in Europe

Ku-band

Latitude
the distance north or south of the Equator, expressed in degrees

Local oscillator
Device inside the LNB which determines which received frequency band is converted to within the receiver's tuning frequency: 10.000GHz for standard FSS, 9.750GHz for 'enhanced' FSS, for compressed digital TV. MPEG-1: compression standard on VHS quality used in CD-video. MPEG-2: transmission-quality standard used for digital TV broadcasts

MHEG-5 (Multimedia and Hypermedia information coding Expert Group) international open standard of software for operating interactive TV applications, used for British DTT

Multi-feed
antenna system with two or more LNBs on a fixed dish to view more than one satellite

Noise unwanted constituent of a signal

Noise figure measure of the performance (noise contribution) of an LNB, in dB – the lower, the better

NTSC (national television standards committee)
TV broadcast standard used in North America and Japan

NVOD (near video-on-demand) multi-channel system broadcasting many editions of a film with staggered start times so a complete film is always available to a viewer after a short wait

Offset
type of dish antenna with the focus and feedhorn below the centre of the dish

OMT (orthogonal mode transducer) waveguide splitter to allow two LNBs to receive horizontal and vertical polarised signals simultaneously

OpenTV
proprietary software for operating interactive TV applications used by Sky Digital in the UK and the FUN alliance of channels in Germany

Orbit
path of satellite round the Earth

PAL (phase alternate line)
TV system used by terrestrial TV in the UK and on most European satellite channels

Parental lock receiver's PIN-operated lock that allows you to block out a specified channel

Phono
plug/socket type used for receiver connections for audio, video and baseband signals

PIN (Personal Identification Number) user-set security code number which must be entered to watch certain channels, order goods, access menus, etc

Polariser device fitted on the dish to separate one polarity signal from the other on UK PAL television

Skew fine-tuning of polarity to account for different angles of signals from different satellites

Scart
European 21-pin plug and socket standard to link audio-visual equipment

Secondary focus focal point of a signal off the boresight of a dish. Used by multi-feed antennas

Slot satellite position in the Clarke Belt, expressed as degrees east or west of South (the orbital position above 0° longitude)

Smart card
credit card-sized electronic key put in a decoder to unscramble a protected channel

SMATV (satellite master antenna television) satellite TV distribution system for blocks of flats with single antenna

S/N (signal-to-noise) ratio ratio of a signal's power to the noise power in a specific bandwidth, expressed in dB

SNG (satellite news-gathering) use of satellite TV technology to send news material from portable uplink stations

Sound-in-sync broadcast format in which audio data is placed in the picture's sync pulses, producing an unstable silent picture without a decoder

Sparklies
impulse noise seen as black and white speckles in the picture caused by too low a S/N ratio (too weak a signal)

S/PDIF (Sony/Philips digital interface)
Standard for digital audio transmission using both fibre optic and coaxial connections, between a digital TV receiver and a home cinema audio system

technique to increase the number of digital compressed channels broadcast in a given bandwidth by dynamically varying the compression ratio for each channel according to programme content

Subcarrier
auxiliary signal associated with an analogue satellite TV signal used for carrying the audio soundtrack or additional radio stations

S-video
video format which maintains separate chrominance and luminance signals

Symbol rate

enhancement of DiSEqC 1.2 motor control software enabling a motor to calculate the site of any satellite based on the user's latitude and longitude

USB (universal serial bus) high-speed data interface for connecting peripherals, such as cameras, PCs, hard disc drives and printers to satellite receivers, DTT converters and PVR

Videocrypt
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky analogue subscription channels

Videoguard
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky digital subscription services

VOD (video-on-demand) multi-channel system allowing a film to be broadcast immediately it is requested by an individual viewer

Voltage-switched LNB combined LNB/polariser used on Astra systems with polarity selected by changing the voltage (13/18V) supplied to the LNB

Waveguide accurately engineered channel for a microwave signal

Widescreen
TV picture with an aspect ratio greater than the standard 4:3. Usually 16:9, but 14:9, 23:3 and others also seen very extended receiver's IF tuning, allowing reception of Astra 1D with a 'standard' LNB (with 10.000GHz local oscillator). 700-2,050MHz at least

Wideband

22kHz tones
control system for LNBs. Conceived to select reception bands on universal LNBs, also used for LNB switches and as basis for the DiSEqC control system

YOUR GUIDE TO LOCAL CAI QUALIFIED SATELLITE INSTALLER

You've bought your new satellite and now you want to install it. Who do you go to? Look no further than your local CAI installer.
The CAI (Confederation of Aerial Industries Limited) is THE recognised trade body for the aerial and satellite industry. The CAI is committed to raising standards within the industry and whilst the criteria for membership is extremely high, the consurer is assured of A QUALITY INSTALLATION AT A FAIR PRICE.

What is so special about a member of the CAI?

- CAI Members only employ qualified personnel whose work is monitored by an Inspector.
- All CAI Members are required to work to the exacting standards laid down in the CAI's Codes of Practice.
- All CAI Members guarantee their installations for a minimum of twelve months. In addition, the CAI undertakes to back-up this guarantee with its own twelve months guarantee, for domestic installations only.
- CAI Members should carry identity cards that clearly state their name and company details together with a photograph.
- All CAI Members are required to have full insurance cover. This gives the consumer total peace of mind before the work commences.
- If a customer is unhappy with any aspect of the installation, the CAI has a formal complaints procedure.

Advice. Our systems from Technomate & Echostar include internal 36 volt positioners and heavy duty "bolt-on" motors. (Or a V Box is included with the Xtreme.) This avoids the use of lightweight universal fit (i.e does not fit anything properley) diseqc motors. All our dish motors are 36V and up to 5A.)

Here are a number of examples from our web site.

The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 1
This video is packed full of easy to understand information. Including comparing the capabilities of dishes from 80cms to 1.8m, comparing polar mounts with horizon to horizon motors, we demonstrate a simple method for fitting & setting up a motorised system, budget, mid priced & top end systems, receiver programming, tools & products, digital receivers, how to recognise well engineered products, Suitable for beginners but we take you to an advanced level. We explain the terminology & the Physics.

The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 2 Running time 2 hrs. 20 mins. £14.95 Free UK Del.
Including fine tuning the satellite arc, get the most out of your system, C Band equipment & programs, Indian & Middle Eastern channels, we visit "What Satellite" More tools, fault finding. Spectrum Analysers. Digital uplinking. We go live on 1W. Systems in flats, multiple receivers from 1 dish, system visits, and much more.

The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 3 Running time 2 hrs. 20 mins. £14.95 Free UK Del.
We talk to many manufactures and see dozens of new products. Including Nokia. Triax. Channel Master. Humax. RSD. Hirschmann. Cambridge. Unicorn and many more. All of the latest digital products included. High efficiency dishes. Setting up a horizon to horizon motor. The 1224 Supermount. The Jumbo H to H motor for 1.8m plus dishes. Installing a Jumbo on a Channel Master 1.8m. Test instruments, Inexpensive satellite meters & inclinometers reviewed. Internet via satellite. Vol. 3 is a continuation of Vol. 1& 2 The 3 videos form a complete series. Once again the presenter considers technical subjects & explains them in "plain English".

(Paying by cheque? Videos should be payable to "AVS." All other goods "Visiondotcom Ltd.")

Better Satellite Reviews The Motorised Satellite Videos
"They'r crammed full of technical info. - all explained in easy to understand terms". - and reffering to the videos. Costs will quickly be recouped if the advice is followed.

Customers Comments. I have just watched my copy of the Vol. 1 All I can say is SUPERB ! The narrator is interesting and obviously speaks with knowledge and competence. / I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the video. It's about time someone expelled the "myths & mysteries of satellite tv & explains them in plain English./ Wish I'd bought the videos before I bought the system. / The Vol. 1 video has saved me loads of money ...

computer VIDEO

April's issue of Computer Video takes an in-depth look at three top-end dual-processor PCs and considers their suitability for video editing.

Apple's range-leading G5 Power Mac is tested along with two Armari-built Windows systems, one centring on a pair of Intel Xeon processors, the other fitted with two Opteron CPUs from Intel's deadly rival AMD.

The Apple didn't come out of tops for speed – that accolade was won by one of the Windows machines, which took the honours in 10 out of 19 real-world tests – but is highly desirable and amazingly well built.

Other in-depth reviews include a critical look at TDK's over-priced and under-featured MkII direct-to-disk thermal printer, and Pinnacle's latest budget and prosumer video editing programs, Studio 9 and Liquid Edition 5.5.

Both Pinnacle programs have the rare distinction of being able to author DVDs from their timelines but, like so many Windows programs with writing capability, can be struck down by conflicts with other software that writes to CDs and DVDs.

That all-too-common affliction is the subject of our back-page DVdoctor editorial. Dr John Ferrick lays the blame at Microsoft's door and says that it's well past time for Microsoft to sort out the problem – something that no one else can possibly do.

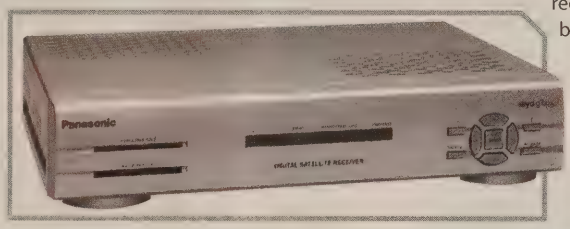
SECOND BOX SOLUTION

I have just had Sky Plus installed and I would like to use my old Sky Digibox (a Panasonic) in the bedroom with a second TV. Will Sky sell me a second box subscription if I install this myself? It only needs running a bit of co-ax to the four-way LNB (which is actually closer to the bedroom than the Sky Plus in the living room!)
– PETER ARNEDALE, MANCHESTER

Yes, Sky should be quite happy to sell you a second box subscription for a self-installed second receiver. You do have to have both boxes connected to the phone line (to prevent second box subscriptions going abroad) so you may have to install a phone extension socket too.



All second-box subscriptions require a phone line, even if you install it yourself

BOX IS OUT OF TUNE

My Sky Plus box has been working fine for about six months until last weekend, when it refused to act like a Sky Plus – it would receive all the channels OK but wouldn't record or even play back recordings. After a lot of press buttons, I found that the second input was not locked and showed no signal strength or quality. I swapped around the LNB cables and still the second input showed nothing. What's going on?
– R LACKLY, ROTHERHAM

It sounds like the tuner for the second input has failed. As your Sky Plus box is only six months old you should be able to get it fixed under guarantee.

OFF THE MENU

I have an old Philips ONdigital receiver which has developed a fault with the onscreen menus. When I press the menu button on the receiver or remote control, the screen goes black and no menus appear so I cannot set a video timer or update software and the like.

I was wondering if you have heard of this problem and know a easy fix for it. I have switched the receiver off and unplugged it for a few hours but the problem persists, leading me to think that it is terminal and to contact you.

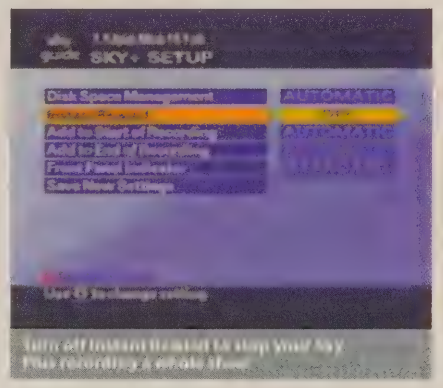
I guess that you will say I should buy a new receiver as mine is a dinosaur, but I do not have a lot of money to spend and would prefer to save what I have to buy a receiver in the future, possibly with a hard disc.
– STEVEN ASKEW, CHESHIRE

It does indeed sound as if you have a terminal problem with your ONdigital box, and we do indeed suggest that you buy a new one – since Freeview adapters are available from £60 upwards, this will probably cost no more than having the Philips adapter repaired. A new adapter will also probably operate faster.

JUST SAY 'R'

Since the new software was downloaded to my Sky Plus box, I (and everyone else, presumably) have been able to press the R button while watching a programme and get the whole programme recorded, instead of just the section from when I press R until the end.

This can be very useful, but it can also eat up a lot of hard disc space. Is there anyway I can record just the remaining section of a programme?
– JASON DALES, BY E-MAIL



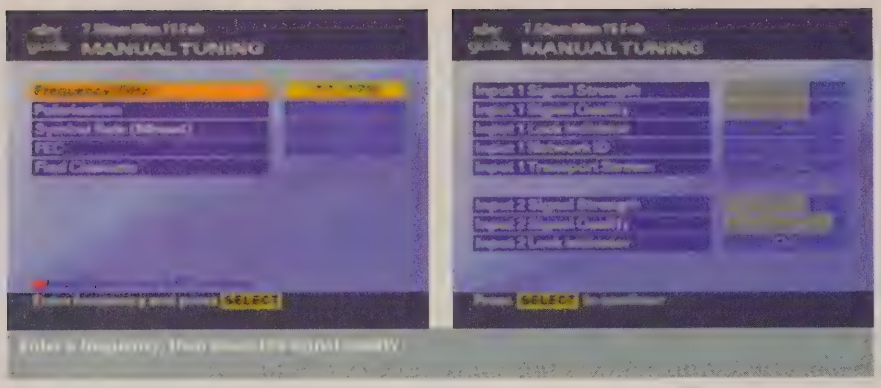
This feature is a very clever one but it can cause problems if you have a lot of programmes stored on the hard disc. There is no way to go back to the old way of recording but you can arrive at the same result. Your Sky Plus, in fact, records 'back to' the last channel change or the beginning of the programme, whichever is the more recent. So if you want to record only the remainder of a show, just change channel and back again and then press R.

Alternatively, if you want the box to never record back to the start of the show, set the Instant Rewind buffer to zero in the Sky Plus Setup menu (Services – 5).

Another way around the problem is to fit a huge replacement hard drive so you never run out of space.

BLOCKED CHANNELS

My problem is that I cannot receive a number of channels on my Sky Digital system. I have a Panasonic Sky Digibox. The channels I can't receive are all from Eurobird 1 and are horizontal polarisation (channel numbers 220, 247, 268, 420, 642 and 673). They are referred to as '11623 H TpD9S'. My main problem is that channel 420 is NASN, the American sports channel, and I'm the biggest baseball fan this side of the Atlantic! I won an annual subscription back in March and the channel is playing up just as the play-offs (last stage of the competition) get going – Aaaaah!



On the advice of the Sky Digital helpline, I have cycled the power to the receiver (no improvement), taken out the lead from the back of the receiver that connects to the aerial and checked it is not damaged and reconnected (no improvement), cycled the power to the LNB from the installers menu (no improvement) and checked that my reflector installation is solid – it seems OK; it does not move around, and the LNB seems secure (without forcing too much).

The problem I'm experiencing ranges from blocky images to complete loss of signal. It is not a permanent problem. It started about six months ago and was very irregular and not very often. At the time I thought it was a problem with the baseball feed to NASN from America.

I did not realise there were other channels with the same problem. More recently, the problem is almost all the time – although once it was perfect throughout a complete game (three hours). There are absolutely no problems on any other channels at any time.

Do I need a call-out or is there something I can try?

– MARTIN GREEN, ALTON, HANTS

The crucial indicator here is that your problem occurred gradually; everything worked originally. So what has changed?

The fault could be down to something as simple as a tree growing in the way of the dish's view of 28°E. Some judicious pruning may be in order.

It could be that the dish has moved or distorted, or the LNB arm has drooped under the weight of the LNB. This is quite easy to test. Enter the suspect frequency and polarisation into the 'Manual Tuning' menu (press Services, 4, 0, 1, Select, 5) and select Find Channels to display the onscreen tuning meter. Now monitor the signal quality display (or have a partner do so) while you push up the LNB arm slightly and push on the reflector to move is a touch in each direction. If the signal quality improves with any of these actions you should realign the arm and/or dish yourself or get a professional in.

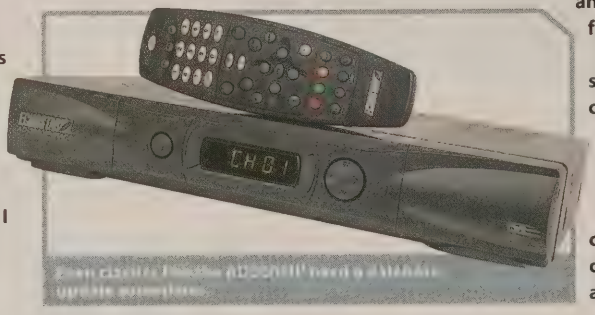
You may have a receiver fault and the best way to check this is to connect your receiver to a friend's dish and see if the problem recurs.

If it's not the receiver and not the dish alignment, it's probably the cable or the LNB. Replace the cable with a new length temporarily connected. If the LNB is suspect, try a new one.

Last, the problem may be caused by external interference from a newly installed mobile phone repeater mast, electricity cables, microwave transmitter as used by some businesses to transmit data, DECT portable telephone or a radar detector in a car nearby. Put dish at ground level to minimise such interference as a test.

LOST IN THE SURF

I have an Echostar 3000IP Viaccess which I am feeding from three LNBs, using a DiSEqC 1x4 switch. The LNBs are pointing at Astra 19°E, Astra 28°E and Hot Bird 13°E and are all set up as 'universal'. The Astra 28°E LNB is a quad LNB on a Sky dish which also runs to my Sky box, a Panasonic.



The Sky box picks up the BBC channels perfectly, but the Echostar does not. They are not listed, even though I have done a new Channel Search. The channels that I can receive from Astra/Eurobird 28°E are those between Thomas Cook TV, Motors and Galaxie Sport, Stanice O (although scrambled).

So I am missing the low frequencies as listed in the magazine in Channel Check, ie 10.773 to 10.818 and also Eurobird frequencies 11.390 to 11.488.

– DEREK HARRISON, BY E-MAIL

Since your Digibox can receive these frequencies but your Echostar cannot, the problem must be with the Echostar receiver. It's probably just a case of the relevant transponders not being included in the 3000IP's database so when you do a Channel Search, it doesn't even look at these transponders for active broadcasts (the Digibox is automatically kept up to date with Sky Digital channels and for others, you need to enter the frequency anyway).

So you should add in the Astra 2D BBC transponders manually. Or you can download a new database from Echostar's website (www.echostar.nl).

POINT IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

I have been considering if it is worth getting Sky Digital. A friend of mine was moving and has given me his old Sky Digibox and old dish. The box is a Pace 2500 the dish is a 60cm mesh type, although it did have an Amstrad LNB from about 1992 on it. I spoke to one of your advertisers, who told me that the dish would be better to use than a Sky minidish and to change the LNB. This I ordered – it is a Cambridge universal LNB 0.6dB set at 0° skew angle.

The problem is that when I align the dish using a Maxview Omnisat Finder and the Sky system/signal setup, it only seems to find one setting. The box has been checked and is OK. I live in the Essex area.

I phoned another of your advertisers who said that the Network ID displayed of 013e meant it was on Hot Bird and the dish needed to be moved round to the left. Later he told me that the 013e were transmission errors – the dish was the wrong type, so was the LNB and there could also be a cabling fault!

The inclination scale on the dish shows 25° and according to my compass it points to approximately 28° east of South.

As you can gather, I am now totally confused. The idea was not to get into a year's contract/subscription until I had a chance to trial it. Can you offer any advice ?

– COLIN H, BY E-MAIL

We don't fully understand what the problem is – what you mean by only finding 'one setting'. However, we can provide a few pointers. If your friend was receiving Sky Digital with the Digibox, dish and LNB that you inherited then there's no reason to suppose that you shouldn't. Changing the LNB certainly wouldn't do any harm, and is not a bad idea (and it seems that you have the right sort).

Similarly, replacing the cable is always good practice, but you shouldn't need to replace the dish unless it is obviously about to rust away or it is bent or dented.

If you are getting some kind of signal but not Sky Digital, then it is likely you have the dish aligned on the wrong satellite position. Although the Astra 2 satellites are described at being at 28.2°E, this doesn't mean that you point your dish 28.2° east of where your compass says South is. For a start, there's the magnetic variation in your area to account for and – more importantly – the bearing the dish should take depends on where it is sited. You don't say where you are, but it's likely that the bearing should be more like 30° east of South.

Troubleshooter questions are answered by Malcolm Titmus of Smallworld Satellite (0121-359 8016), Martin Pickering of Satcure (see Digibox website at: www.satcure.co.uk) & the What Satellite & Digital TV editorial team.Queries cannot be answered by phone

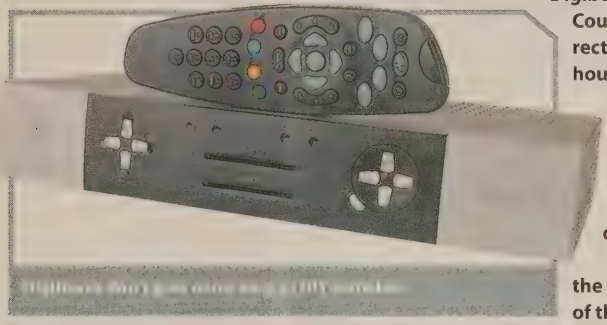
Your elevation of 25° is probably about right (again, we can't be certain without knowing where you are), but it could equally well apply to other satellites.

So you may well be pointed at Hot Bird (although that's not what the 013e means). It's more likely you are pointed at Astra1 at 19°E.

You do need to turn your dish (to the left, when looking towards the South) to pick up another satellite, align it to get a decent signal and then check on the Digibox to see if it is recognised.

When you have found the satellite and have fine-tuned the dish alignment, you should set the skew. Again, this depends on your location, but it's not zero. Observe the signal level display while turning the LNB in its mount in small increments to find the highest reading (it will be something like 20°).



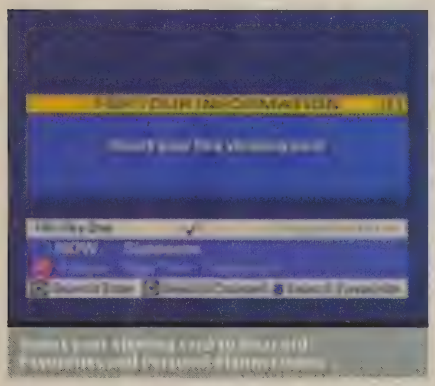
I KNOW WHAT YOU SAW LAST SUMMER

Using the Personal Planner, my brother selected a movie shown on BBC Choice months ago, and it came up with the reminder and everything, but it hasn't deleted itself from the Personal Planner.

When I press the yellow button to delete, it doesn't let me! It says 'This Box Office programme has already been viewed and cannot be deleted' or something like that.

I don't want to do a forced update because it went terribly wrong before, but is there anything I could do to get rid of it otherwise?

– MIKE, BY E-MAIL



Try this procedure. It also removes redundant programmes from your Favourites list. Remove the viewing card and re-insert it upside-down (yes, really!).

Switch box off at the mains, wait 30 seconds and switch it back on. Give the Digibox a minute to generate listings, then press Sky to take the box out of standby. Remove the viewing card and wait until the 'Insert card' message appears.

Now re-insert the viewing card the correct way up.

This should clear the redundant channels from the Personal Planner and favourites (but leave the others intact).

FRENCH DISH

I intend to install my Panasonic TU-SB30 Digibox in my house in France. Could you inform me of the correct size dish I should use, the house is about 50 miles north of Toulouse, and has a clear view to the South and East.

At home, I use a 60cm dish that gives me about 85 per cent on both signal and quality.

Also, is it possible to receive the Arte French channel from any of the satellite at 28°E, or would I need to install a separate LNB to point at another satellite?

Any other information would be much appreciated.

– E S PARKES, BEDFORDSHIRE

Near Toulouse you would need a 45cm dish for most of the transmissions from 28°E, but for Astra 2D your 60cm dish that would have to be increased to 80cm. It's probable that you do want Astra 2D as that carries the BBC and ITV transmissions.

Arte is not carried at 28°E but it is available in the clear on other satellites: Astra 1 (transponder 24 – 11568GHz/V 22000 5/6) and Hot Bird (transponder 128 – 11060GHz/V 27500 5/6). Both these transmissions would require a 45cm dish in Toulouse. So to get both Astra 2 and one of the carriers of Arte you should install an 80cm dish pointed at Astra 2 with a secondary offset LNB for Astra 1 or Hot Bird.

AUNTIE ON THE COSTAS

I recently acquired a 1.8m dish in order to receive BBC here on the Costa Blanca.

My local engineer has been unable to receive a signal any stronger than one he would expect from a 0.8m dish.

Can you put me in touch with the manufacturer or help in any other way? Various LNBs have been tried.

– RON CARTWRIGHT, SPAIN

You don't say where you got this dish (the lorry it fell off the back of must have been exceptionally large). It is probably not intended for Ku-band reception.

The chances are that the feedhorn is not suitable and the secondary reflector may well be set up incorrectly. You would be better off buying a Ku-band dish and consigning this one to the scrapheap (or turn it into the largest bird bath on the Costa Blanca).

CZECH YOUR ALIGNMENTS

I am watching the Czech channels on Eurobird at 28.5°E.

My problem is that, regardless of the weather, the signal is dropping out. The level of the signal is around 40 per cent and the quality around 20 per cent.

Please help me to improve my vision. Sometimes it is very difficult to watch it. The receiver is so confused from the level fluctuation it even 'freezes' and I have to switch it off and than switch it on. I live in North Wales, close to Chester. I have an 80cm dish with a universal LNB.

– J.STEELE, NORTH WALES

An 80cm dish should be quite large enough to bring in reliable signals from all the satellites at 28°E in any part of the UK, and certainly North Wales.

A 45cm dish is sufficient for all the different footprints from the various satellites at this spot, with the exception of Spotbeam2 from Eurobird 1 (which the Czechlink channels use), and that requires a 60cm dish in your neck of the woods.

So something else is wrong.

Either your dish is not aligned correctly (and so all signals are reduced in power, but the weakest – Eurobird Spotbeam2 – is too weak to be received properly), or your LNB or receiver or cable is faulty (less likely), or your system is suffering some kind of interference that affects the frequencies used by the Czechlink transponder.

The first answer is probably the most likely. If you either check (ha-ha!) the alignment yourself or get in a professional, you will probably be enjoying trouble-free Czech TV in no time ■

WIN free AVC Broadband installation and save £95 on your subscription

Satellite has been the third way to get high-speed internet access for a while, but it's always been reliant on getting a second dish. Now that's all changing.

AVC Broadband is now offering guaranteed average browsing and download speeds of up to 768kb/s on a one-way satellite connection, with a range of speed packages and all installation and equipment supplied. Prices range from £26.99 a month for 256k to £43.99 a month for the top speed.

You use the same dish as Sky Digital, aimed at Astra 2 at 28.2°E. AVC will replace your old Sky dish with a new dish and quad-output LNB, as well as installing a USB satellite adapter, setting up all the software and checking that your dial-up access is compatible, for £249.99 plus a £29.99 connection fee.

AVC Broadband is powered by Astra and can be used for high-speed browsing, high-quality audio and video streaming, speedy file downloads, fast access to your e-mail server and file sharing. There are no monthly download limits – AVC will just buy more bandwidth from Astra when the current transponders fill up.

Five lucky What Satellite & Digital TV readers have the chance to win:

- Free AVC Broadband installation
- Free connection
- Free first month subscription to the 512k package (normally £34.99 a month)
- Reduced subscription to the 512k package for 12 months at £29.99.

LOST CLASSICS

I first got a large dish, 1m and motorised system way back around 1988. In those days satellite TV was something special – seeing lots of channels. I remember well Super Channel's mix of pop and classic films. Talking of classic films leads me up to this message: after all those years of being able to watch a high-standard classic movie channel in the UK we've lost our last hope for true free worthwhile-watching satellite television.

I am so sad to lose TCM. I know they'll turn around and say things like 'It was due to costs/copyrights/and other things', or 'It's only going cost £19.50 a month to maintain the service of TCM'.

Very true, TCM, and I could maybe afford the money, but seeing as I don't want to watch any of the stuff that comes with the deal, £19.50 is a lot to pay for ITV News, Sky News, Travel, and a few others I have enjoyed over the years for free. I will always remember a certain three-letter-word TV company speaking of its four new free satellite channels starting soon.

I wonder if there is anyone else feeling like me?

– DAVID HUTSON, BY E-MAIL

... On 6.1.2004, Sky encrypted TCM. Well, they have gone too far now, if they think people are going to spend even more money to watch the same films repeated week in, week out!

I, for one, will go to Hot Bird.

– JOHN, BY E-MAIL

...Would you happen to know whether there are any plans in the pipeline to show Turner Classic Movies on Freeview? As you know, it has now gone from free-to-air satellite TV.

– BOB CARLYON, BY E-MAIL

David, John, Bob and the other TCM fans who e-mailed us – it's the end of an era.

For whatever reasons, TCM encrypted with no warning and joined Sky's most expensive non-premium package. It has looked unlikely that any Turner channels would appear on Freeview, ever since TCM and Boomerang were removed from the line-up at the last minute.

A few weeks later, it all became clear, as Top-Up TV announced that TCM, Cartoon Network and Boomerang would be part of its budget subscription package on digital terrestrial. For those of you who can pick it up, maybe this won't be a large expense. Sadly, this was the last free feed of TCM in Europe, so we're not sure what John's up to!

IRISH HOPES

I would like to watch Irish TV, but I live in the UK. I used to watch Tara TV, but it has stopped broadcasting. Could you tell me what equipment I need to watch the channels?

– JOSHUA WELBY, CAERPHILLY

This is a popular question this month. The Irish government and broadcasters have struggled to get a co-ordinated digital TV policy together, and overseas viewers seem to be the last thing on their minds. Irish viewers even have to pay to get RTE by satellite, when it's free on terrestrial.

The only way to get the Irish TV channels at present is to import a complete Sky Digital system, by subscribing through an Irish address (you also have to buy the Digibox outright to avoid any contractual worries). You could use friends and family to do this, or get them to find you a friendly satellite dealer in the Republic.

WIDESCREEN DETAILS

Reading Barry Fox's article entitled 'So farewell, Solus' and the problems some digital recorders have with some BBC channels, prompted me to write about another annoying issue related to recording many of the programmes received through satellite.

This is the problem experienced when recording most widescreen programming, where the signal to identify the material as widescreen is not transmitted to the video by the Scart of the Sky receiver (my receiver is a Panasonic TU-DSB31). It is very irritating when playing back these recordings to have to tell the TV to go widescreen rather than to have it happen automatically.

I assume that it is a feature which is in the power of the broadcasters to implement because some channels behave as they should. These are only the BBC1 channels on 10.788GHz, 10.818GHz and 10.847GHz (BBC1W, BBC2, etc., on 10.773GHz and 10.803GHz are a no-go), the only other channel I have found which seems to send the appropriate signal is OBE TV on 11.681GHz.

Is there anything you can do to encourage the BBC to be consistent across all its channels and all the other broadcasters transmitting widescreen programming to make the necessary adjustments? After all, widescreen is becoming the norm and videos have been able to handle widescreen for years.

The candidates to get on with it would be the main channels: ITV, Channel 4, Five, Sky (with at least Sky One and its Sports) and S4C plus, of course, the BBC in ensuring all its transmissions join the club.

– MR I M WILLIAMS, SUTTON COLDFIELD

It's a shame that most broadcasters don't bother to transmit the widescreen switching signal, and that the BBC is inconsistent, when the Sky Digibox is designed to send it along the Scart.

It also makes life difficult if you want your TV to automatically select the best aspect ratio.

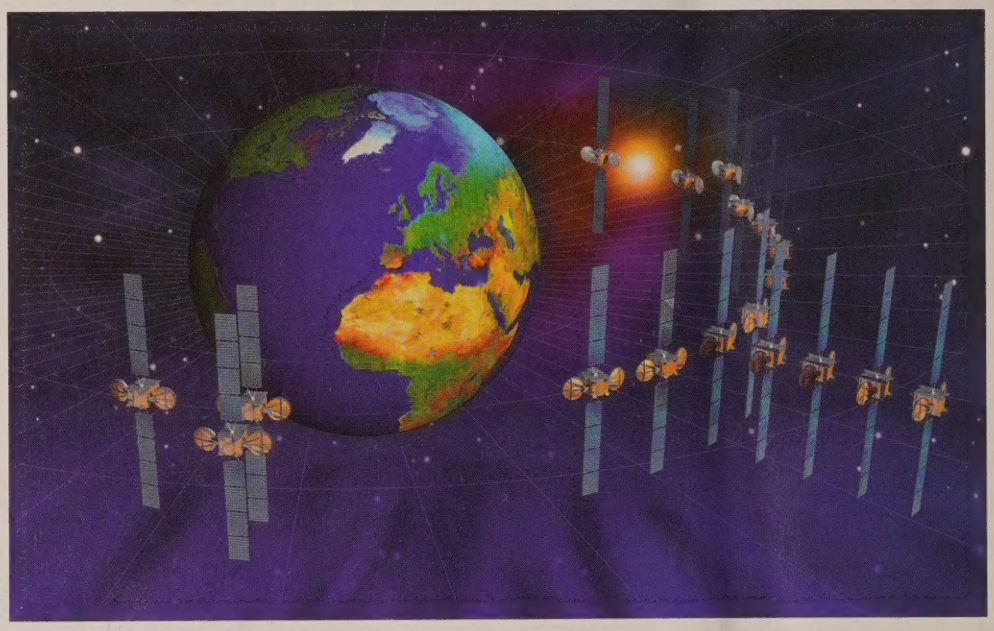
The problem is that, even in this age of DVD and digital TV, few people are even aware that their equipment has these useful features, so broadcasters get lazy. We're sure Barry will enjoy another crack at this old chestnut.

THE HIGH GROUND

I wonder if you could tell me why the satellites that serve the British Isles are so low in the sky.

It seems to me it would be far simpler for households to get access to the satellite if it were overhead. There would be no obstructions, so more viewers for the stations and a lot less hassle with planning, as the dish would not need to be seen from the ground.

– JOHN LUCKIN



■ A good question with a simple answer. TV satellites need to be in a geostationary orbit, which does not appear to move relative to an observer on the planet, so we can use a simple fixed dish.

To achieve this, they orbit 33,600km above the Equator, where a satellite goes round the Earth in a day.

From the UK, in the 28 degrees east-of-South location chosen by Sky, satellites appear at between roughly 24° and 26° above the horizon. Even a satellite directly due South will only appear between 28° and 31° above the horizon from British latitudes, and the only way to have a satellite overhead would be to live on the Equator.

HELP FOR THE STATES

I moved to the US last November and am still suffering serious Sky withdrawal symptoms!

Is there any way to receive British Sky in America? Please say 'yes' and rescue me from this purgatory!

– CLAIRE BOND, BY E-MAIL

■ You can't get Sky or the BBC in America. So if you're moving anywhere west of Ireland, east of Poland, or south of Morocco you'll be giving up British TV.

You won't miss Sky One (the good stuff's all American anyway), but there are no TV channels in North America carrying live Premiership football, EastEnders or Coronation Street. BBC America used to show EastEnders, but it was dropped last year because not enough people watched it.

You might get The Office (cult fare in the US) and other classic sitcoms, but sadly, Americans prefer their TV home-grown.

It is technically impossible to pick up Sky direct from the US. The satellites at 28°E are only just visible from parts of the East Coast, and the signal will be so weak you'll need a radio telescope to pick up anything useful.

The Premiership is the world's most popular football league, so it's quite likely you'll be able to find it on TV in many countries (maybe even live on a Saturday). We couldn't find a website to help out football fans on the move – surely an opportunity for an enterprising footie fan?

SLOT MACHINE

I'm wondering why the Pace DTVA Freeview box has a viewing card slot under the unit. Could this be for a future pay-TV service, or did Pace think ITV Digital would be brought back to life!

Also, why is the SDN multiplex so weak? Could this be the amount of channels broadcasting on it? Maybe they should put some on the Sky multiplex [we think you mean Freeview], as it only carries four channels, and any news on a seven-day EPG?

– RICHARD DAVIES, WREXHAM

■ Pace designed the DTVA when ITV Digital was still in its death throes, so the card slot was a way to keep its options open. It could turn out to be useful now that Top-Up TV intends to launch, and the DTVA could be updated to access the new service with an over-the-air software download.

The SDN multiplex appears weaker because it uses 64QAM modulation instead of the 16QAM modulation used by the BBC and Freeview. SDN can fit more channels into its multiplex, but the downside is that it is weaker in fringe areas like Wrexham.

As for the seven-day EPG, the official Freeview guide is still being tested, but 4TV has just launched a seven-day EPG which is compatible with all adapters using the Setpal software, plus Fusion and Thomson adapters

PRUDISH POSTCODES

Why does Freeview insist on checking your postcode? I live in a non-coverage area, but receive Freeview with no problems. My Panasonic TU-CT20 gives me nine out of 10 on signal quality on all channels. The postcode checker is really not reliable.

– GARY WHITEHURST, WARWICK

■ Freeview tells us its postcode database is deliberately conservative so that no one buys a Freeview adapter only to find it doesn't get them anything. It's a predicted coverage database which can't deal with every quirk of terrain and atmosphere, so their advice (and ours) is to borrow an adapter from a friend to check the signal at your home before buying an adapter ■
